CITY ITEMS.

("Zeb Crummet") says man occupies nine-tenth's of his time in pursuit of ambition, love and wealth.

Mrs. Mary Livermore has given a lecture entitled "superfluous women" in which she asserts that there are in Massachusetts 63,084 more women than men, and advises that they emigrate elsewhere. Let 'em come South.

During the Fair week the Republican Club rooms, corner of Princess and Front streets, have been the favorite resort of visitors to our city. Hospitalities are dispensed there with an elegance that charms all outsiders who can gain admittance within its mystic doors.

In consequence of the rainy weather of Wednesday, the Board of Managers have decided to continue the Fair until 5 p. m. on Saturday, and return tickets of those who are here in attendance on the Fair will be received until Monday night by the various railroads which issued them. See ad.

POSTPONEMENT.—The sale of the city property which was advertised to have taken place on Wednesday last was postponed until next Wednesday the 17th inst. One piece of property was offered but there were no bidders. Those in arrears should take advantage of this delay and pay up, as the sale will positively take place next week.

There is some little comment in private arising from the fact that Gov. Brogden has not visited our Fair. We are certain his absence is not caused by any dislike of the Cape Fear people, nor any want of interest in agriculture and mechanics. It is true that we live in one corner of the State, but we are made its line, which is Little River, and we are covered by its laws, some of them inscrutably shabby ones. But we like a nod once in a while from those high dignitaries who loiter around the Doric columns of the Capitol.

We are requested by the young gentleman, who at 2 o'clock on Thursday morning was amusing himself by throwing brick-bats and paving stones against the doors on Market street, that the occurrence was not on account of any misapprehension as to the locality of his lodging house. He respectfully presents his apologies to any who may have been suddenly awakened from their slumbers, and avers that he was just as sober as he ever was. He insists that he was not the man who, in the region of Dry Pond, mistook a policeman for one of the "Survivors of Fort Fisher" and insisted on going home with him.

PENNYROYAL AND POTASH.—If mosquitoes or other bloodsuckers infest our sleeping rooms at night we uncork a bottle of the oil of pennyroyal, and these animals leave in great haste, nor will they return so long as the air in the room is loaded with the fumes of that aromatic herb. If rats enter the cellar, a little powdered potash, thrown in their runways, never fails to drive them away. Cayenne pepper will keep the pantry and storeroom free from ants and cockroaches. If a mouse makes an entrance into any part of your dwellings, saturate a rag with cayenne, in solution and stuff it into the hole, which can then be repaired with either wood or mortar. No rat or mouse will eat that rag for the purpose of opening communication with a depot of supplies.

FIREMEN'S CELEBRATION.—Our colored firemen celebrated their anniversary Monday last by a parade through our streets, accompanied by a band of music. The fine steam fire engine of the Cape Fear Company, No. 3, was very handsomely decorated with garlands of flowers, &c., and made a very handsome appearance.

The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department visited the Company at their engine house in the afternoon, by request, and made them a flattering speech as to the fidelity of their conduct since their organization, for which compliment they felt greatly obliged. The Company has served at forty-three fires since its organization four years since, and has always been promptly at the call of duty.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.—The Board of County Commissioners met pursuant to adjournment Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, present—J. G. Wagner, Chairman, Commissioners A. J. Morris, Stacy VanAmringe and Delaware Nixon.

The report of the Auditing Committee for the month of October was received and ordered on file.

A communication from Captain A. L. Rhouset was referred to the Finance Committee.

A communication from the City Marshal in regard to the pavement in front of the Court House was referred to the Chairman with power to act.

The resignation of James Highsmith, as constable for Harnett Township, was accepted, and Jas. A. Hewlett was elected to fill the vacancy.

The Treasurer submitted his report for the months of September and October, which was read and ordered on file.

County claim of Dr. D. M. Bute, referred to Finance Committee.

Bill of James Heaton, Clerk of the Superior Court referred to the Auditing Committee.

It was ordered that the Chairman be empowered to examine and ascertain what amount was due this County by James Heaton, Clerk of the Superior Court, and if necessary to employ such assistance as he may deem proper in the premises.

Ordered that the matter of the retrenching of the expenses of the county be left to the Chairman with power to act.

Applications for license to retail spirituous liquors received and granted to the following persons, viz: D. Otten, A. C. H. Fiencken, J. G. Oldenbuttle, J. M. Bremer, H. W. Wootse, H. Tietgen, Chas. F. Van Kaupum, M. O. Hopkins, R. H. J. Ahrens, A. D. Wessell.

Communication from John London, A. J. DeRosset and others was referred to the Finance committee.

The Board went into an election for a Board of County Examiners for the public schools with the following result: A. R. Black, J. H. Smyth and Mrs. Flora A. Wise.

The Board then adjourned, subject to a call of the Chairman.

WHAT THEY SAY.—The Washington Chronicle in commenting upon the late elections gives the following bit of good advice to the southern people:

A few more words. Not only are the tenets of the Republican party self-commended to good men all over the land, but because they are sure to prevail, they are self-commended to politic men. No sagacious person can look back over the history of the country, and believe that there are to be any footsteps backward. Let friends at the south ponder these things. Do they believe that an over-ruling Providence ever directs the affairs of men? Then, how can they longer cling to the hope that the Democratic party as now constituted, may ever return to power and undo the noble work of these later years? We would have the south to come and be our warm friends and cheerful co-laborers—to help us build up and perpetuate our national greatness, and advance the cause of a common humanity. Also, to learn that the north can put far behind, if not out of sight, that the two sections ever were at strife.

Hartranft's official majority for Governor in Pennsylvania is 14,350.

THE FAIR.

The Fair of the Cape Fear Agricultural Association commenced on Tuesday and will have continued until Saturday night. We give below a resume of the proceedings up to the time of our going to press. It seems that while the bad weather has kept people away so that the attendance is not very large, yet the exhibition of products both mechanical and agricultural are better than they have been at any previous Fair of this Association.

FIRST DAY—TUESDAY.

At about 10 o'clock a. m. the initiatory procession was formed on Princess street, and headed by Chief Marshal, Roger Moore, and the Rose Bud Band marched to the Fair ground. The opening ceremonies consisted of a prayer by Rev. Dr. Wilson, which was followed by the opening address by Col. S. L. Fremont, the President of the Association. The address was a very sensible production.

There were no further ceremonies on that day, and the articles for exhibition had not yet all reached the grounds. There was in Floral Hall a portrait of Gen. Lee, painted by a young lady of South Carolina, a good show of needle work, some of the products of our Wilmington Cotton Mill, equal to any thing of its kind produced in the United States, and various articles from merchants in the city.

There was a race at 3 o'clock, only two horses being entered, and a sort of impromptu scrub race afterwards, wherein a fellow was pitched off his horse to the great amusement of the crowd.

In the evening train the Norfolk Light Infantry and the Raleigh Light Infantry arrived—two finely disciplined companies, composed of young men of fine soldierly bearing.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

It rained in torrents. There was no racing; and only the boldest ventured to the Fair ground. They had a bear fight on the grounds, which produced great amusement. The exhibition of articles in all the departments increased, and the show was good. We cannot stop to particularize.

Towards noon the weather having faired, the military appeared on the streets, and had a parade at the Cape Fear Club.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY.

"To arms the martial trumpet sung." The military turned out early and appeared splendidly. The Confederate survivors of Fort Fisher were received by the military in front of the Purcell House whence they proceeded to the Opera House where Col. D. J. Devane delivered an address on the part of the citizens to which Col. Lamb, the commander of Fisher when it surrendered, responded on the part of the survivors.

At 10 o'clock A. M. was a parade of live stock on the track, which was a good show.

Dr. S. S. Satchwell of Pender then delivered the annual address which had the merit of not being a political one, and was said by those who heard it to have been an intelligent discussion of matters with which this Association proposes to deal.

We go to press before the Fair closes, but next week will give the further proceedings.

The Carleton News says of the proposed Fort Moultrie monument:—The monument will be erected in White Point Garden, at the foot of Meeting street. The base and pedestal will be of South Carolina granite, highly polished, and will be nine feet in height and eight feet square at the base. The die block will be three feet six inches square and the pedestal will be surmounted by a bronze soldier facing Fort Moultrie and clad in the uniform of the 2d South Carolina regiment, which garrisoned the fort at that time. The figure is supposed to represent Jasper on the rampart holding the sponge-staff in his right hand, while his left is extended in the act of cheering his comrades to victory. The position is well portrayed, and though the plan represents a flag as attached to the sponge-staff, this will of course not appear on the monument except when it is unveiled. On the east face of the die block is the inscription: "To the defenders of Fort Moultrie, June 28, 1776," surrounded by twin wreaths of oak and laurel. On the western face is a vignette of White's painting of the famous battle. The northern side bears the state coat of arms and those of the city appear on the southern face. All of these are to be worked on bronze shields which will be let into the granite, and will add materially to the finished and ornamental appearance of the monument. It is expected that the entire cost will be about $12,000, and the Palmetto Guard, with the assistance of the sister clubs, anticipate raising this amount by a grand Centennial fair, to be given in March next.

Elkton Witness says: It is said of old Sister Sapphira of Biblical notoriety that, when writhing in the last agonies of death, she looked over the assembly of mourning friends and exclaimed, while a contented smile passed over her countenance, "I may be a liar and unfit to live, but there is one consolation—I never wore a pinback and striped stockings.

PERSONAL.—Colonel I. J. Young of Raleigh was among the visitors to our Fair. He is looking as "young" and fresh as if he had not done the hard service in the last canvass, and as if he might carry the fourth district next year overwhelmingly. The Colonel is one of the most active and sagacious Republican politicians in the State.

We were gratified to welcome to our city, among the trans-mountain delegation to the Fair, Col W. S. Pearson of Asheville. He is one of the Commissioners of the Western N. C. Railroad, and visits Wilmington with others from the mountain region to observe in the interest of that great line, and to aid an exchange of trade which would be mutually beneficial. He is one of the most promising young men of North Carolina, and is a bold and fearless Republican.

We notice that W. P. Avery of the Charlotte Observer has retired. We have no personal acquaintance with Mr. Avery, but we conclude that he has been the writer of the bold and incisive editorials which have for a year appeared in the Observer. He had none of the hackneyed, hide-bound style common to the Democratic editors in this State, but always struck out boldly and dealt with a subject somewhat on the basis of truth. He did not dwell in a region of intellectual stupidity, meanness, blindness and poverty, as do most of our Democratic editors, but was a refreshingly bold and independent thinker.

Gen. Babcock and Orville, Grant, brother of the President, did not have anything to do with the St. Louis whiskey fraud. This is not pleasing to the scavenger press.

"Henry Churton," author of "Toinette," is preparing another book for the press. "Betty Certain" in "Toinette" was worthy of Dickens. She was made entirely out of North Carolina stuff too.

Judge Settle had a fox drive up at his estate on the Dan river, but has now gone to Washington.

Gen. Rufus Barringer and Major Englehard are carrying on a discussion as to equal suffrage. We know as much about the subject as we want too, and dont care a continental what they thought about it in France a hundred years ago. Everybody of the male sex, can vote in this country, unless those high-toned chevaliers of Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana, drive them from the polls.

It is reported that Plato Durham, of Shelby, died suddenly on Tuesday.

The presence of Col. Wm. L. Lamb, of Norfolk, in our city gives gratification to many to whom he endeared himself during the war. He was in a large part the builder of Fort Fisher as he was its defender.

Mr. Furman of the Asheville Citizen is one of our trans-montane guests who is visiting the Fair.

Mrs. Miggs' Tied-Back

Miggs went out on the front porch and gazed after his wife then he sat down on the front steps, rocked to and fro, scrambled his hair, and laughed as though Mrs. M. had gone down and left him in charge of her hysterics.

"What's the matter old boy?"

"It's the best style out. I hope it'll last a hundred years?"

"What style is that?"

"Didn't you meet her? Look at her yonder with that 'ere tied-back on, tipping along like sixty. I guess she won't knock me down now, and reach for these grizzled locks to mop the floor with! It can't be did in that rig, you bet. High diddle dee!"

And we really felt like rejoicing with the martyr Miggs in his new found deliverance.—Atlanta Courier.

A worthy couple on Calumet avenue are afflicted with seven surviving daughters named Emmie, Mamie, Jennie, Nellie, Florie, Lottie and Bessie. The eighth committed suicide in a fit of mental depression, caused by the fact that her name was Ketura. And a kind schoolmate of great sympathy and singular inventive faculty wrote her a letter, beginning "Dearest Kettie," but before it could reach her the unfortunate girl had died by her own hands. Her remains were borne to the tomb by six of her classmates, named Clemmie, Jessie, Suse, Nettie, Maudie and Lillie, and the kind clergyman preached so affecting a sermon that at its conclusion there was not a dry "-ie" in the house.—Chicago Tribune.

A retired schoolmaster excuses his passion for angling by saying that, from constant habit he never feels quite himself unless he's handling the rod.

"What is that dog barking at," asked a fop, whose boots were more polished than his ideas. "Why," said a bystander, "he sees another puppy in your boots."

A London dispatch says letters have just been received from Stanley, dated at Ulagalla, in Uganda, giving an account of the continuing and conclusion of his examination of the Victoria Nyanza. They confirm Speke's view that the lake is one large body of water and not a series of small lakes as held by Livingston.

Henry L. Jelly, a survivor from the steamship Pacific floated, on the pilot house from 8:30 Thursday night to 10 o'clock Saturday morning. His companion died from exposure and was cut loose by Jelly. Several boats were launched, but all foundered. The passengers, some seventy-five, were from Fuget's Sound and Victoria. Jelly is too low to give farther particulars.

A Port Townsend, dispatch dated November 9th, says that Jelly, supposed sole survivor from the Pacific, brought here by the ship Messenger, is in a wretched condition. He says the Pacific collided with some vessel, whose lights he saw. Experienced navigators here think she struck a sunken rock. Jelly's statement is as follows: "Took passage in the Pacific from Victoria, leaving at quarter past nine o'clock Thursday. There were about two hundred persons aboard; steamed all day against eastern gale, the crew constantly pumping water into the boats to trim ship; boats abaft the paddle boxes had no oars in them; other boats had oars. between nine and ten o'clock, while in bed, I heard a crash and felt a shock as if she had struck a rock. The bells struck 'stop,' 'back,' 'go-ahead.' I went on deck, heard voices say all right, we have struck a vessel; saw several lights at a distance; they were colored; went to pilot house and heard, 'she is making water fast;' Captain came from his room and burned five blue lights; engines still working but no one at the wheel. I aided a number of men to launch the long boat; heard that boats abaft paddles had been got off; but did not see them. The steamer listed so much about an hour after she struck that part of a boat was in the water. I was in that boat, cut it loose from the davits, and the boat filled and turned over. I got on the bottom and helped several up, and immediately after the ship broke fore and aft, the smoke stack, our boat and the steamer sunk. I think about all the women were in our boat and all were drowned when the boat upset. This was about ten o'clock, the night not dark nor the sea very rough. I left the bottom of the boat with another man, climbed to top of pilot house and next morning got some life preservers floating by with ropes; I lashed myself and companion to pilot house; saw three rafts; the first had three men and the second two men and a woman; could not make out the third. My companion died Friday afternoon, when I saw a vessel, called, heard people on the other raft call. The vessel did not come near us. I saw two other vessels before I was picked up.
