THE EUROPEAN WAR.

The end of the last week's events is September. Few men have ever re- that the Russians are penned up in tained their intellectual and physical Bulgaria after many reverses, and are vigor to so late an age or have played embarrassed in Asia. It is said, howso large a part in the affairs of Europe, ever, that the Russians are making M. Thiers was born in Marseilles, great preparations for offensive operapracticed from 1818 to 1821, after and improving the discipline. As our writer for the press and literature. It about the war, and as the accounts are hardly possible to make up a correct from the New York Trans upon the

It was the maxim of a great modern strategist always to strike an enemy on the recoil after an unsucce-ful attack and the Russians would seem to have done so if any faith is to be placed in the telegram sent from Gorny-Studeni that Lovatz has been taken by Gens. Meretinski and Skobeleef. This, if true, implies a complete severing of tion of the Plevna troops, and the probability of an immediate attack upon them by superior numbers; but such an unexpectedly brilliant success requires to be authenticated by a confirmation which it has not yet received.

Even should it prove false, however, it cannot be disputed that the blow just struck by the Turkish leaders, although given with rare vigor and desperate courage, has missed its mark. The Russian dash across the Baikan failed because its authors would not wait long enough. The Turkish attempt to reconquer Bulgaria, on the other hand, has failed because the assailants have waited too long. Now that they have had time to intrench themselves in a strong central position, keeping the three Turkish commanders wide apart, the invaders can well remain satisfied with allowing their enemy to spend his rage upon well-manned earth-works and bristling batteries. To mass 60,000 men on either flank of the Russian army and 30,000 more in the front, and then, by a sudden stroke with all three forces combined, to break it to piaces, was undoubtedly an able conception; but above allthings if required that perfect a distance from one another seldom if ever attain, and Turkish General's least of all. The three attacks have been made in detail instead of together, and two out of three have failed, Mehemet Ali, indeed, has gained six miles of ground, although with the disadvantage of finding himself before another position on Thursday, But Osman Pasha, after one of the most gallant struggles f the war, has been beaten off with ass along the whole line, not retaining and Sulcimar, the malucky, is still hoving disconsolately, like Moore's Peri. at the gate of Paradisc, around the schipka Pass watching it with his lgyptian infantry, while the shattered army recovers itself as it may. These two repulses and this one success have rost Turkey 12,000 or her finest soldiers. Well might the Eussian Com mander in Chief repeat the words of Marshal Villars to Louis VIV after the defeat of Malpiaguet "Let Heaven such 'defeat,' and your Majory's onemies will be appihilated. Still wars are brough t to a success ful close, not by repelling assaults, but by making them; and, sooner or later, he Russians must become the assulants in their turn. When they do so, they will have no casy task. The men who thrice charged up to the very muz zles of the Russian guris, last Friday, through a cross fire of cannon and ed, especially under the guidance of a leader like Meheme! Ali, to whom all the vigor of Omar l'asha appears to little of the great Hungarian's military genius. Hitherto every battle has been a storming of intrenched positions on one side or the other. The question of Turkish and Russian lighting power on when the day of trial comes describing may be hard put to it to hold its own against the frantic valor of fanaticism.
