1. The Edinburgh Review, THIS IS THE OLDEST OF THE SERIES

In its main features it still follows in the path marked out by Brougham, Jeffrey, Sydney, Smith and Lord Holland, its original founders and first contributors.

2. The London Quarterly Review. which commences its 128th volume with the January number, was set on foot as a rival to the EDINBURGE. It resolutely maintains its opposition in politics, and shows equal vigor in its literary department.

3. The Westminster Review. has just closed its 92d volums. In point of literary ability this Review is fast rising to a level with its competitors. It is the advocate of po-iliteal and religious liberalism.

4. The North British Review, now in its 51st volume. occupies a very igh position in periodical literature. Passing beyond the narrow formalism of schools and parties, it appeals to a wider range of sympathies and a higher integrity of conviction.

5. Blackwood's Edinburg Magazine. was commenced 53 years ago. Equating the Quartilies in its literary and scientific depart-ments, it has won a wide reputation for the nar-ratives and sketches which enliven its pages.

"THE BEST LITERARY AND SOCIETY PAPER IN AMERICA." () ai indra New Writers! New Attractions! New Type! THE OBJECT OF THE HOME JOURNAL, it is well-known, is to furnish a pure, hightoned, entertaining paper of Literature, Art, and Society for American homes, that shall promote a right culture and refinement, and foster at the fireside those pleasures, sentiments and sanctities which make home the true Eden of the heart, and it now, more than ever, deserves the can Society. The conduct and character of the Home Journal, will continue the same in the future as in the past. Among the fresh attractions for the New Year may be mentioned: A story of great beau-ty and intense interest, by "an eminent English novelist." A beautiful romance by "Alphonse De Lamar-tine" translated expressly for the Home Journal. Translations from the German of "Edmund Hoefer and Meissner." A series of original stories from the pen of the charming poet and novelist, "Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper. Occasional contributions from the well-kuown poets, "R.H. Stoddard and Edmund C.Stedman. Sketches by the Home Journal's favorite humorist, "Barry Gray." A series of papers on literature, society and morals, by "Elizabeth B. Stoddard."

Contributions in prose and verse, from the graceful Southern poet, "Paul H. Hayne." A continuation of "Sophie Sparkle's Letters," and the admirable "Gipsy and I" sketches, by "Marietta Holley.". Regular correspondence from all the great European centres of Society, Literature, and Art, and occasional letters from the poetess. 'Estelle Anna Lewis."

Besides these, there will be editorials on topics of current interest, editorial reviews and criticisms of Literature, Art, Music, and Drama, and copious extracts from new books. The depart-ir its various aspects at home and abroad, thus making the Home Journal really "The Court Journal of America."

These several departments, kept fully up to the high standard hitherto maintained, will thus conspire, with the new features, to make the Home Journal a complete and brilliant mirror of the wit and wisdom, the humor and pathos, the news and sparkling gossip of the times-a Journal commending itself especially to every cultivated household in the land. In fact, no one can afford to be without it.

The Petroleum Trade of 1869.

The Titusville 'Herald, in reviewing the petroleum trade of 1869, says there has been a substantial and gratifying increase in the production, with a corresponding enlargement in the consumption, so that the supply and demand have been nearer equal than during any preceding year. The means by which petroleum is produced have undergone, many alterations for the petter, which have rendered the business more certain and the profits on the outlay of capital larger.

But it has been in the methods of refining and deodorizing that the most marked improvements have been made. Principal among these was the discovery of a deodorizing and refining process for Canadian oil. which for years previous had been an almost worthless product on 'account of the excessively offensive odor emitted. About 400.000 barrels of accumulated stock, and 200,000 barrels produced in 1869 were brought into the market by means of the new process.

In the United States the treatment processes and the size and shape of the stills have greatly improved, and the quantity of burning oil obtained from crude oil has been materially enlarged. The price of pe-troleum has ruled higher during 1869 than rels daily, and of those there were but four. At the close of the year there was but one ome I'll wallop you like 6ty, for we must well that yielded 200 barrels daily. The have peese as grant ses.

Stiles was a simple-hearted, transparent young fellow; and, when we sailed, had been paying his attention for some time to a young lady, who, he had reason to think. did not fully reciprocate his ardent feelings. At all events, the parting, on her side, was not so affectionate as he could wish, and he was impressed with the belief that she only kept him as a stand-by, in default of a better offer."

"I don't believe," Stiles would say, with a desponding shake of the head, "I don't believe Ann Jones 'll have me, anyhow." When he had been out a few months, and had met with fair success, Stiles' tone was modified. The burden of his monologue changed to, "Well, I dun'no but Ann Jones 'll have me, after all."

With a thousand barrels of oil under hatches, he became still more hopeful. "Chance is pretty good for Ann Jones," he would say, "pretty good now." At fifteen hundred barrels he had assumed a self-satisfied manner, and soliloquized -"I guess there's no danger but what Ann Jones "Il have me now." At two thousand barrels-"Ann Jones 'll be glad enough to get me now, I know." When we cut the last whate that was to fill the vessel's hold and squared away for home. Stiles threw his hat in the air with a wild Indian yell of triumph-"I'll be d-d if Pll have Ann Jones anyhow !" #約 つだけ
