A calm hour with God is worth a whole lifetime with man,

Men slip on water when it is frozen and on whiskey when it ain't. No man need look for success in life, who wilfally flies in the face of Providence. The best counselers of human hearts may bear broken hearts in their own bosoms. To believe that aught can be needful which God denies, is a most stupid error. In the London Times appears an advertisement for a "Christian woman" as a servant.

It is no crime to yield to tempation, after we have exhausted the power of resistance. Human nature, as it prevails to-day, has undergone no change since the creation of

The Baptists are making strong effort for a Freedmen's Missionary Fund of $75,000. They want to put 1,000 educated missionaries into the field, and do their full part in gathering the coming harvest.

A young lady examining her class at poor Cox only forgot that Ben had moved Sabbath school, asked, "What is the pomp out long ago." and vanity of this world?" A little gir plied, "The flowers in your bonnet."

College studets have a legend of a mechanical and perhaps sleepy parson at morn-ing prayers, who prayed that "the inefficient may be made efficient, and the intemperate, temperate and the industrious, dustrious."

At Liverpool, recently, during the services at St. Joseph's Chapel, a false alarm of fire was raised and in the confusion and panic which ensued fifteen persons were ing to the little man's ears he vowed ventrampled to death, and a number of others badly injured.

A parson surprised a farmer, whom he seldom saw at his ministrations, by asking found them together in their accustomed him directly, after a little reproof of his sins of omission, "Shall we see you at church next Sabbath?" "Yes," he replied, slowly, turber of his peace, and the wind-up of the "I'll go-or send a hand !" "Say, stranger, do I smell of liquor?"

Captain, "take them down, melt them, and coin them into money, and let them go about doing good as their Master did."

"Pap," observed a young urchin of tender years, to his fond parent, "does the Lord know everything?" "Yes. my son."

Lord know everything?" "Yes, my son, replied the hopeful parent. "but why do you ask?" "Because our preacher when he prays is so long telling him of everything, I thought he was not posted !" The parent reflected.

A traveler who has circumnavigated the earth, says that everywhere he found the houses of worship free, all over the world. among all religions except the Christian. The very people whose work is to disciple all nations, have adopted a system which shuts out from the house of God a large part of the common people.

A little boy of Previncetown, Mass. four years old, very anxious for a drum, the evening preceeding Christmas Eve, on going to bed, made the following prayer: "Now I lay me down to sleep,' I want a drum,
'I pray the Lord,' I want a drum, 'my soul to keep. And if I should die before I wake,' I want a drum." His prayer was answered.

Gen, Butler's Last and Best. The Enquirer's special correspondent.

"Junius," telegraghs the following last good thing from General Butler:

"Butler, replying to another attack from Dawes, said he disclaimed all intention of lecturing the House, and desired, once for all, to put a bar against the analogy of Saul of Tarsus and himself. He had heard it nineteen times and a half in this House, and there were three things which he thought might be omitted hereafter, because the country understood them: First, that he had voted for Jefferson Davis; second, that he had got a sudden conversion, and third, that he had not been in the Republican par-ty as long as some other people. All this was true. He had no doubt that in the olden times there were men who stood by Judas against Paul because Judas was an elder apostle."

boken for Barclay-street, in this City, at 9:15 last evening, was the scene of a melancholy suicide. When the boat had reached the middle of the river, a woman of more than extraordinary beauty, elegantly attired leaped from the bow of the boat into the river. She was caught in the wheel, and must have been horribly mangled. Her body descended forever beneath the waves body descended forever beneath the waves in the presence of a number of herror-stricken passengers, who had been apprised of the occurence before it could be prevented. She had been observed by the pilot upon its bow, but he did not divine her intentions until after she had taken the fatal leap. As soon as she had done so, the boat was stopped and preparations made to rescue her, but before these could be effected her fate had been decided. She sat in the ladies' cabin for some while before going to the place from which she leaped, and during that time her conduct was so eccentric and betrayed so much agitation as to elicit remark. She divided her attention between a ring which she had upon the fourth finger of her left hand and a letter which she had drawn from her pocket. Her going out of the cabin before the boat reached the pier was remarked as singular, but unfortunately none of her tellow-passengers followed her.

Butler, Cox and "Shoo Fly." "Pickles" gives us the last about Cox. as

WASHINGTON, February 11.—Butler's "Shoo Fly" jig with Cox was all the talk at the hotels last evening. I met Dawes and Pomeroy at the Arlington, and the former said he thought the retort was better than Webster's famous "git cout." Pomeroy was unusually moderate, and didn't think it exactly fair to pursue the little man in his humiliation. It seems that when Morrissey carried him out in the fresh air he revived without the use of the usual restoratives, though Brooks stood by, bottle in hand, and had already drawn the cork, as he evidently considered the case a critical one. Cox's first words on recovering were ad-The immense sum of $600,000 has been dressed to Morrissey, "Jack, old boy, does sent by the London Bible Society, towards lightning scorch?" "Well, Sam; I've known the construction of a Protestant church in it to burn," responded the anxious Morrissey, taking the bottle from Brooks and pressing the mouth of it to the lips of the lishers wanderer after "Winter Sunbeams." "I feel better now, Jack. Guess you better call a hack." The hack was procured, and the whole party drove straight to the Nation-Several excuses were volunteered, but an Ohioan, who had known Cox when he was a member from the Buckeye State, "poohpoohed" them atl. This comgeance, and with wrath in his eye, and hickory stick in his hand, he watched the treacherous couple, and a few evenings since haunt, the lager beer saloon aforesaid. The affair is told by Gotlieb as follows: "I tells Christina to valk straight home, and Shinkins, he picks up der beer mug, und lets te beer spill over mine face, und he hits me in der back mit his boot, und I goes out; und Christina she no come, und I go home und goes to ped, between two fedder peds, I vas so mad; und Christina, she comes und laughs at me because Shinkins hit mine back before mine face mit his two boots.'
