Let Us Have Peace To-Day. We hope that all citizens, of whatsoever party, will endeavor to day to keep the peace. A circumstance we heard of yesterday, and which we regret buildidg and marched slowly up to the that we are obliged, as a faithful altar where the Bishop and his priests chronicler and critic of events to record, shows that this warning is greatly needed. A very little boy on yesterday morning flung out from his mother's holy water. When this part of the had been given to him as a compliment | tion was invited to enter, the choir ento his oratorical skill displayed at one of the recent juvenile meetings. The petty streamer attracted but slight attention from any save certain followers of Wheeze and Haler, who became and the sacristy being occupied by as obstreperous and demanded of his mother, a widow, living alone with her small children, the removal of the offensive banner, threatening if it was not instantly removed they would shoot it down, tear down the house, brick by brick, etc. She bravely told them she would shoot the person who shot at the flag, but some time afterward, in consideration of the public interests, feeling that she would not be even the in-

DEDICATION OF A CATHOLIC CHURCH IN DUPLIN.

A Large Congregation-Eloquent and Impressive Sermon by Bishop Gibbons Excursion Train from Wilmington.

Reported for the Capt Fear. * Last Sunday in Duplin county a Catholic church was formally dedicated to the worship of God. This is the first house of worship ever erected in in sufficient doses to have killed him. Duplin by the Catholics, and the occasion drew together a large crowd to Church of Rome, some having been drawn out by motives of idle euriosity. whilst others assembled through the impulses of piety or to learn something of the tenets of the church of which | she is consigned, speak of him as an ef. they had heard and read from childhood, but of which they knew nothing personally.

The church is located in the upper part of Duplin, six miles from Mt. Olive, a small village on the line of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad. The edifice is a plain wooden structure, erected through the zeal and energy of the Rev. Father Mark S. Gross, under many difficulties, for the accommodation of a small Catholic community in that section of Duplin, consisting of between thirty and forty souls.

At an early hour the people began to gather at the new church. Many Sampson, some of whom traveled a distance of twenty-five miles in their country conveyances. Quite a large delegation from Wilmington went up to the city at half-past 7 o'clock in the evening. On this train there were about eighty persons. Bishop Gibbons and the Rev. Fathers Gross and Moore had gone up on the day previous. The Wilmington excursionists were taken from the depot to the Church in a long train of vehicles of all manner of description, from the common farm wagon, drawn by a mule team, up to the glit tering carriage, drawn by a pair of proud Andalusians. At 11 o'clock the Bishop, dressed in his pontifical robes, wearing the mitre upon his head and carrying the crosiers in his hand. approached the door of the church, attended by the Rev. Fathers Gross' and and Moore, who also wore the robes of their sacred office, and followed by a procession that was composed of the acolytes and the choir. Here the ceremonies of the dedication commenced. Prayers were recited and responses chanted, after which the procession in the order indicated, with the exception of the choir which remained outside with the congregation, entered the recited the prayers and responses, and went through with the ritual of the church for such occasions-the Bishop sprinkling the floor of the church with window a small campaign banner which | ceremony was completed the congregatering first, the ladies next and the gentlemen last, The church building was quickly filled to overflowing, the aisle being crowded, the steps to the altar many as could find room.

The services of solemn high mass were then begun by Father Moore and when they proceeded so far as the reading of the epistle, the Bishop ascended the altar and delivered one of those impressive sermons which have won for him the distinguished repution which he so justly and so widely enjoys as a pulpitorator. The text was chosen from the 16th chap. of Matthew, and embraced that passage commencing at the 13th and ending at the 19th verses, inclusive. The sermon was indeed remarkable for its breadth of thought, its scope of argument and the clear, forcible manner in which he compelled the dullest understanding to comprehend his meaning. It, in part, gave an epitome of the history of the Church, from its foundation down to the time of the thirteenth centurry.

After the sermon and after High Mass was concluded, the rite of Confirmation was administered to 15 persons, most of them having been converts. The rite was explained to the congregation, and a most impressive exhorta-tion was delivered to the candidates the whole services having been of two hours and a half duration.

The other house, owned by Mr. Ward, was insured for $300 with Messrs. Northrop & Cumming.

Immediately after this fire was under control the alarm was sounded. It was found to have originated in the shop on Front, between Church and Castle streets, owned by Mrs. Brickhouse, and used as a store by Mr. W. G. Fowler, Jr.

The house on the corner, owned also by Mrs. Brickhouse and used by her as a residence, caught next and but for the timely arrival of the engines would also have been consumed. The roof was badly burned. Mr. Fowler's store was evidently also set fire to by some incendiary for the purpose of plundering, as when the fire was first discovered a cigar box was found out in the street, with other articles.
