

TO VOTE ON RECIPROCITY BILL

July 22nd Set as the Time for Decision

Important Action Taken by the Senate at Today's Session—Other Dates Were Fixed as Well for Voting on Important Matters—Senate Trying to Get Back to Old Customs of Debate.

Washington, July 14.—The agreement to vote on the Canadian reciprocity bill July 22nd was reached by leaders of the various factions of the Senate this afternoon. The agreement fixes the vote on the House wool revision bill for July 27th, the free list bill August 1st, and the re-apportionment bill August 3rd, the Statehood and legislative day, August 7th. It is expected that Congress will adjourn immediately following the Statehood vote.

The Senate discussed for an hour how it could get back to the old custom of debate. Senator Bacon's proposed rule, which he said was designed to restore Congressional debate which now "reads like a page of a sensational novel" to former decorum, provoked wide comment. The new Senators were inclined to think charges of mixing too freely in debate aimed at them. Senator Root said the present method of indiscriminate debate is "destructive of deliberate consideration of legislation." Senator Lodge declared the Senate must reform its methods or become the laughing stock of deliberative assemblies. No action was taken.

The agreement was formally offered in the Senate by Republican leader Penrose. Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, said the Democrats favored the agreement because of the desire throughout the country to see the present session terminated.

MUCH SUPPORT FOR WILEY

Hundreds of Messages Sent to White House

Asking That the President Have Considered Most Carefully the Charges Which Have Been Preferred Against the Pure Food Expert—Neither the Officials, Nor Wiley, Have Anything Further to Say About the Case at Present.

Washington, July 14.—Letters and telegrams expressing confidence in Harvey W. Wiley, the pure food expert of the Department of Agriculture, urging the President to consider carefully the charges made against him by the personnel of the board of the department, and endorsed by Attorney General Wickersham, continue to pour into the White House from all parts of the country. Many messages are from commercial organizations and from the President's personal friends and organizations especially interested in Wiley's work. Neither the White House officials nor Wiley had anything further to say about the case, although it was up for discussion by the Cabinet. Secretary Wilson said before the Cabinet meeting he did not know how soon Wiley's answer to the charges is expected. Wilson said he, personally, had little to do with the Wiley case. He said the personnel of the board which recommended his resignation was a permanent board such as exists in most government departments, that it had not acted hurriedly, and its conclusions were reached after hearings.

It is the Federal express that President Taft's car is almost always attached when the President visits Beverly or New Haven, where he is a member of the Yale corporation, or other points down east. CHILD OF TODAY

"Father of the Man of Tomorrow," Was the Tenor of Interesting Address Delivered Today by Miss Virginia C. Hicks, Special Psychologist, in an Address Before Department of Special Education, of National Education Association.

San Francisco, July 14.—"The child of today is of greatest economic interest when considered as father to the man of tomorrow," said Miss Virginia C. Hicks, special psychologist, in an address before the Department of Special Education of the National Education Association. "It follows then that the definition of any type of child such as the 'subnormal' must depend on the probable conditions in adult life. We expect the normal child to become an adult who will be a producing factor in the community. We know that the idiot will always be financially dependent. Between these two, lies an undefined group which we dub 'subnormal,' secretly wondering just what we mean.

"We may group them according to school retardation. We may give them a psycho-physical examination and decide that those who fall a certain distance below the established normal are subnormal. These, and other methods of grouping, are helpful because they necessitate study of the case. But none of them are based on adult possibilities, though that is the phase of the subject in which we are most vitally interested, and one which must be the practical basis for the 'subnormal's' training.

"My own working definition is this: A subnormal child is one who, without special expert training will probably always be dependent, but who, with that training, may possibly become an independent producer.

"The definition suggests the scope of the training. Certain things, the man must know to be self-supporting: He must be able to labor reasonably (this includes both mental and moral attitude toward his work and fellow workers).

"He must know how to reckon his wages and expenditures. To help him cope with these necessities we must give him all manner of co-ordinating games and exercises for his physical and social benefit; we must teach him to calculate weights and measures, time and money.

"The position of conservative kindergarten of the future was declared to be unwise and untenable by Frank E. Parlin, superintendent of schools, Cambridge, Mass., in an address on "The Kindergarten of the Future," at the Association today.

"The kindergarten of the future," the speaker said, "will be true to its name, a garden of children will be generally out doors, in the sunlight and the open air among the trees and flowers, and associated with birds and animals providing healthful conditions for the body, appropriate food for the senses, abundant exercise for the muscles, ample scope for the imagination, and unfailing topics for conversation. The healthy growth of the child will be the prime consideration, large lungs, good digestion, a strong heart, and steady nerves outranking pegging and an eager shyness, cylinder and cube.

"Although a friend of the kindergarten, I believe the orthodox type is neither sacred nor perfect, that the position of the conservative kindergarten is unwise and untenable, that they emphasize the most defective parts of Froebel's system and neglect his most valuable principles.

"The brain of the child at the kindergarten age is ready for sensory, motor, and language training only.
