St. Louis, Mo., July 10.—Two masked bandits who held up the west-bound "Katy Flyer," near Matson, Mo., last night, captured the track walker, who surprised them as they were robbing a train and took him away with them. They boarded the train to stop and the fireman to unward covered the engineer and fireman with revolvers, commanded the train to stop and the fireman to un耦ple the express car and engine. Then they ordered the engineer to start ahead. When quite a distance away they stopped and blew open the express safe, taking its contents. The value is not known.

Being surprised by the track walker they captured him and took him away with them. No trace has since been found of them.

WORKMAN ARE GOING BACK TO THE FACTORY

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 10.—The State Constabularymen continued to guard the streets of East Pittsburgh today. In spite of a vote of the Westinghouse strikers last night to return to work next Monday. The commissary maintained by strikers will be kept open until the first pay day.

Captain Adams, of the State Constabulary, decided, after he had gone over the situation, that his troops were no longer needed and gave orders for the men to break camp and return to Greenburg, their headquarters.

PREPARING TO PRESS THE CHARGE

State Claims It Has New Evidence Against the Accused Mrs. Carman.

DEFENSE FEELS SURE OF VICTORY

Both Sides in Sensational Case Getting Ready for Preliminary Hearing—Mrs. Carman Recovers Her Composure—Letter From Daughter.

Freeport, L. I., June 10.—The attacks upon the testimony of witnesses at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Louise Bailey today led to predictions that Coroner Norton would be forced to reverse his decision and order the release of Mrs. Florence Carman next Monday, when she will appear before him in a preliminary hearing of a charge of having murdered Mrs. Bailey. This prediction is further bolstered up, according to Mrs. Carman's counsel, her husband and friends, by the fact that District Attorney Smith yesterday practically admitted the State's case was weak, when he sought to secure postponement of the preliminary hearing until a week from Monday. The District Attorney, however, regards the case as much stronger than when the arrest was made and it is said the authorities have in reserve evidence which they believe will prove more damaging than that already produced.

Mrs. Carman Recovers. Mineola, July 10.—Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, imprisoned in the county jail here for assassination of Mrs. Louise Bailey, seemed to have recovered today from the nervous collapse she had yesterday and sat quietly in her cell, reading books furnished by the warden's wife. She received a letter from her twelve year old daughter Elizabeth, who testified at the last session of the coroner's inquest in effort to strengthen the alibi for her mother. The letter read:

"Dear Madam: We all think o wyou always. I don't quite know why you can't come home. If I don't see you very soon I'll write and ask Mr. Pettitt (the sheriff) why you do not come home.

"Your loving daughter, Elizabeth."

Both the district attorney and George Levy, counsel for Mrs. Carman, today were preparing evidence to be presented in Freeport Monday when Mrs. Carman will be arraigned for examination.

WARM POLITICS IN GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga., July 10.—Joseph Brown's announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate to succeed Hoke Smith has set the political fireworks in Georgia to snapping and sizzling at a furious rate. For some time past the campaign for the governorship and the short-term senatorship has furnished some more or less interesting skirmishes, but it remained for Joe Brown, twice governor of the State and a past master at the game of politics, to prime and adjust the heavy artillery that will assure a genuine battle. With the announcement of his candidacy the campaign begins in earnest. Flying flags, brass bands, stump speakers, straw votes, and all the other ancient and honored appurtenances will be on the job from now until the polls close on primary day.

With two senatorships and a governorship to fill, the forthcoming summer primaries will constitute the hottest contested election in the history of the State. Interest now centers largely in the fight of Hoke Smith for re-election, though until very recently it appeared that there would be no one of importance to contest his return to the senate. The situation as it then appeared was without a parallel in the history of Georgia politics. In the past Hoke Smith had been obligated to fight for everything he ever gained from Georgia, with more than one defeat chalked up against him, but this time he appeared to be considered so strong that he would be returned virtually without opposition.

A few weeks ago, however, it became apparent to the political wisecrack that Brown was getting ready to run for something. This was evidenced by a renewal of his long standing war on the labor unions. But even then it was supposed that he would come out as a candidate for the short-term senatorship, to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Bacon. But there were several reasons why the former Governor preferred to tackle Hoke Smith for the long-term senatorship rather than enter the free-for-all race for the short term.

The principal of these reasons probably lies in the fact that Brown is the leader of the anti-Smith faction and would rather defeat Smith for re-election than stumble into a gold mine. The presence of Governor Slaton among the entries in the short-term contest also probably influenced Brown in entering the long-term contest. Slaton has always been a close friend and political ally of Brown. In adopting his present course Brown will at least have a chance of killing two birds with one stone—a chance to even up accounts with Hoke Smith and at the same time aid his friend Slaton in his contest for the short-term.

In addition to Governor Slaton there are three active candidates for the unexpired term of Senator Bacon. They are Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, former Attorney General T. B. Felder and John R. Cooper, a prominent attorney of Macon. The winner of the contest will serve from the date of the November election until March 4th, 1919, at which time the six-year term of Senator Bacon would have expired.

For the governorship, there is a genuine contest, with the winner much in doubt. Among the active candidates at present are William J. Harris, late Director of the United States Census; Judge Nat S. Harris, of Macon; J. Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, and Judge L. G. Hardman, of Commerce. Another possible entry, and a formidable figure, is Solicitor General Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta. Mr. Dorsey was the prosecuting attorney in the case of Leo Frank, the young factory superintendent now under conviction and sentence of death for little Mary Phagan. Dorsey's successful work in this case has made him something of a popular idol, particularly among the people of the rural districts.

For many weeks his mail has been flooded with letters from his admirers urging him to get into the gubernatorial race and promising him the support of the writers. So far Mr. Dorsey has not disclosed his intentions in the matter. At the present time his name is familiar to every person in Georgia and should he enter the contest for the governorship he doubtless would finish the race close to the front.

Senator Hamilton Lewis.

Washington, July 10.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis is having trouble with another appointment which he has urged President Wilson to make. Will Move His Army Into the South to Storm Mexico City.

TO MAKE COMBINED MOVE ON HUERTA

Constitutionalists Have Gained Big Ground and Expect to Wage Relentless War on Huerta, With the Capital as Their Goal.

El Paso, Texas, July 10.—Speedy return of General Villa's army southward, from Chihuahua, to resume the campaign against Mexico City was predicted here today, following receipt of advices from Torreon that the internal peace conference was finally ended and report of the transactions soon would be given to the press.

With Guadalajara in Constitutionalists hands and San Luis Potosi besieged, there remain only two or three points of defense for the Federals between the National capital and the Southern edge of the territory controlled by the Constitutionalists. On the east General Pablo Gonzales, with an army of twenty thousand men, holds dominion from the border to San Luis Potosi, twenty-four hours by rail from Mexico City.

In the center, General Villa's division occupies the country from Juarez to Aguascalientes, eighteen hours travel from the Capital.

In the west General Obregon has stretched his lines as far as Guadalajara, the second largest city of the Republic and within six hours' railroad ride from the central goal.

Once San Luis Potosi is captured the three military divisions will converge on Mexico City, according to assertions made in El Paso today by both Garranza and Villa followers. When this combination is made, sixty thousand men will be available for the movement against Huerta's stronghold.

It was predicted here that this concentration would take place at Celaya, eight hours from Mexico City. This is the junction point of the railroads from Guadalajara, Aguascalientes and San Luis Potosi. Before arrival of the armies there two or three strongly fortified towns must be captured from the Federals.

To March On the Next City.

Douglas, July 10.—General Alvaro Obregon, commander of the Constitutionalists forces, who Wednesday captured the important city of Guadalajara and took more than five thousand Federal prisoners, after three days' battle, prepared today to reorganize his forces, with a view of marching to Irapuato. Obregon routed twelve thousand men defending Guadalajara, under General Miel, in a fierce battle extending over a zone of sixty-five miles. He said the Federal loss was heavy, but his own casualties small. The Federals who escaped are being pursued.

Admiral Southerland Retires

Washington, July 10.—The last remaining officer of the United States navy who participated in the civil war ended his service today, when Rear Admiral William H. H. Southerland was placed on the retired list by operation of the age limit. For some time past Rear Admiral Southerland has been a member of the General Board. A native of New York city, at the age of fourteen he entered the service as a naval apprentice for the express purpose of obtaining a commission, being unable to get an appointment at the Naval Academy. In 1858 he obtained his commission by a special order from President Johnson, and four years later he completed his course at the Naval Academy.

Rear Admiral Southerland's first command was the Eagle, which vessel he commanded in the operations along the Cuban coast during the war with Spain. In 1901 he commanded the Dolphin and Yankee. In the memorable cruise of the American battleship fleet around the world he was in command of the battleship New Jersey.

EMIGRATION IS LESS

Gratifying Showing Made in This Way to the Department of Labor—Seeking Locations.

Washington, July 10.—Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Labor, is pleased at reports he is receiving which indicate that the number of American emigrating to Canada is decreasing. For several years the tide of emigration across the Northern border grew to such proportions as to cause anxiety to Government officials and others. Distribution of Labor Department bulletins, to Americans resident in Canada, showing products, resources and physical characteristics of American States, has resulted in numerous inquiries for specific information.

During the last eleven months, 68,396 Americans went over to the Dominion, while 44,127 returned in the same time. The gratifying feature of the movement is that a large number of those coming back are seeking information from the department as to location of land on which they may settle.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS GOING RAPIDLY ON

London, July 8.—With every week of suspense in the settlement of the future government of Ireland the menace of the military preparations by the Ulster and the Home Rule volunteers increases. The present tendency among the volunteers of the south is to accept leadership by the Nationalist party which John Redmond offered them. Thus led, there would be a clear division of Home Rules and anti-Home Rule men into hostile armed camps. The very dangers of a bitter civil war which such a prospect presents, furnishes the best safeguard for peace.

Correspondents of The Associated Press at Dublin and Belfast have written of the situation from the Nationalist and Ulster points of view respectively. The most interesting development is the plan, hitherto unpublished, of the Orangemen under Sir Edward Carson for taking charge of affairs by force if a provisional government is set up, and the fact that the commercial men of Belfast have used their influence in Ulster councils to postpone radical action until a Home Rule parliament has been established in Dublin. The great question which confronts the Nationalist Volunteers is how far their American sympathizers are likely to come forward with funds for their arms and equipment.

National Catholic Congress.

London, July 10.—The annual National Catholic Congress, one of the leading ecclesiastical gatherings of the year, assembled today at Cardiff. This year the congress has been given a definitely Eucharistic character. The sermons and the principal papers will relate almost exclusively to the Blessed Sacrament, and for the first time in the history of the congress there will be a process of the Blessed Sacrament. This procession will be held Sunday in the grounds of Cardiff Castle. Tomorrow there will be a large procession of the Catholic children of Cardiff through the streets of the city.

The question of State and national prohibition will be one of the principal matters of consideration at the convention of the International Union of Brewery Workmen, which is to meet in Baltimore in September.
