Where are you going for the summer?
I don't know, said the weary citizen.
Well, I can't tell you of a place where you'll find no mosquitoes, no noise, no inferior food, no fatiguing requirements as to dress; where the fishing is always good and the temperature ideal?
I know, replied the weary citizen. There is such a place, but I don't feel like starting for heaven yet—Washington Star.

Now, my boy you'll have to start at the bottom and work up.
The best I can do is to make you fourth vice-president of our corporation—Kansas City Journal.

THE CITY LEAGUE.

Through the winning of the Y. M. C. A. over the W. L. I. and the defeat of the Giants by the Boys' Brigade, the Brigade, Association and Infantry are now tying for first place in the City League baseball series.

The Brigade stacked up against the Giants in the first session coming through with a win, but with nothing to spare. One of the closest and hardest fought games of the season.

The Y. M. C. A. in a loosely played game brought home the bacon by a 10-7 score.

Did you get his number? murmured the man who had been run over by the auto, to the policeman.
No.
Well, what kind of a looking car was it?
I don't know. I was trying to get his number—Life.

HOT RACES IN THE BIG LEAGUES

New York, July 20—With the close of the professional baseball season less than two months away the pennant races in both major and minor leagues are tightening up in a remarkable manner when the scores of associates are considered as a whole. With a few exceptions here and there the strugglers for first places are far closer than has been the rule for several years. If the claim that this is a poor financial season in baseball is correct it is certain that the change cannot be laid to one-sided flag races. In the major leagues at least six clubs have pennant chances. Philadelphia, Detroit and Washington are all in the American League race and the first four clubs in the National organization all figure as possible winners. The same situation exists in the Federal and International leagues.

The race in the Class A organizations is also close. The Southern Association pennant struggle is one of the most interesting in years, less than one hundred points separating the first six clubs. In the Western League, Denver, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Sioux City are all bunched and as the season does not close until September 27th any one of these clubs may prove the flag winner. Among the Class B leagues the average is not so close. New London has a good lead in the Eastern Association; Dayton in the Central League; Wilkes-Barre in the New York State League, and Davenport in the Three I League. In the Texas League Beaumont, Houston and Waco are all in the race while Worcester, Portland, Lawrence and Lynn have a pennant chance in the New England League.

The Class C races are also proving of much interest to the baseball fans of the respective league territories. Charleston leads the South-Atlantic race with Albany having a fair chance if the leaders slow up for any reason. The Virginia contest is far closer for Norfolk, Newport News and Richmond are closely grouped. Further north in the Wisconsin-Illinois League five clubs are in the flag race, three being hardly a hundred points between the first and fifth teams. Bay City appears to have a safe lead in the South Michigan league, while Winnipeg, Grand Forks and Virginia all have a chance to win out before the season closes on Labor Day. The same can be said of Fall River, New Bedford and Pawtucket in the Colonial League while London and Ottawa are leaders in the Canadian League.

The showing made by the American athletes in the English track and field championships again demonstrates the fact that in this particular department of sport the United States performers can hold their own against the world. In an entry list of close to 240 there were seven American competitors, three of whom participated in two events giving this country a total entry of ten. This little band competed in nine of the nineteen events composing the program winning two first, two second, and two third places. Five of the seven entrants being placed in the finals against a field which included athletes from all parts of the British Isles, South Africa, Sweden, Australasia and Canada.

These entries were either personal or club entries and were in no way official United States or Amateur Athletic Union entries. The expenses of the athletes were paid by themselves or by their respective clubs and the conditions under which the athletes trained and travelled abroad were far different from those governing a representative American team competing in either Olympic or international track and field games.

"Hobby" Baker, the former Princeton university football and hockey captain, who went abroad with several of the athletes who competed at the English games, in writing of the trip states:

"It was amusing to talk with trainer Jack Kelly in charge of Homer Baker of the New York Athletic Club and Harry Smith of the Bronxville Church House, the well known distance men, while on their way to compete in the English championships. The steamer on which we made the voyage was poorly adapted to training purposes. The passengers little realized the importance of practice and hampered the runners in their practice by crowding the decks so that Kelly was forced to get his charges up
