BASEBALL CHATTER

Collins, Murphy, Baker and McInnis, of the Athletics, are among the first seven run-getters in the American League.

Manager Bill Hinchman, of the Columbus club, who was recently purchased by the Pirates, is the high man in American Association batting.

Bill James, of the Braves, and Doak, the Cardinals' crack pitcher, are running neck and neck for the National League pitching honors.

Benny Kauff, of the Indianapolis team, continues to lead the Federal League in batting by a good margin over Steve Evans, of Brooklyn.

Outfielder Tutwiler, who goes to the Red Sox from the Providence team, has had two previous trials in first company as a member of the Detroit Tigers.

According to unsworn averages the Giants have it on the Braves in batting, but the Stallings clan has a shade on the McGrawites in fielding.

It looks as though Fritz Maisel will succeed Clyde Milan as king of the base stealers, as the Yankee infielder is now leading both the American and National Leagues in sack pilfering.

Charley Clancy is making quite a record as a minor league pilot. In the four years he has managed the Winston-Salem North Carolina League team Clancy has won three pennants.

The Brooklyn Superbas have won 12 out of the 18 games played with the Boston Braves. As but three games remain to be played between the two teams the season's series goes to the Superbas.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Minnesota has a promising line-man in Meyers, who played on the freshman team last year.

W. Earl Sprackling, the former All-American quarter, will assist Coach Robinson with the Brown squad this year.

It is said that the full quota of 62,000 seats in the Yale Bowl will be ready for the Harvard-Yale game this year.

"Ike" Eichenlaub, the All-Western fullback of last season, is back at Notre Dame, weighing 200 pounds. He carries his weight easily and is one of the fastest of the big men on the gridiron.

The Cossacks.

Baltimore Evening Sun. Our idea of a Cossack is generally a rather soiled, fierce-appearing individual in a flowing costume, who rides about in a Wild West show leaning from his saddle to pick up handkerchiefs off the ground.

With the Russian army so much to the fore in front page headlines, further particulars concerning them may be of interest.

Cossack is derived from a Turkish word meaning "adventurer," and the Cossack population of Russia is something over two and a half millions of men and women. Furthermore, this population owns 146,500,000 acres of land. The basic unit of their organization is the village, the inhabitants of which hold the land, not as individuals, but as a community.

Every ten households elect one of their number to represent them in the Village Assembly and the assembly raises taxes, elects judges, manages the communal cultivation and has charge of the schools.

In these communities there is a larger proportion of schools than throughout the rest of Russia and popular education stands higher.

Agriculture supplies their needs and leaves a surplus, while more money is made by cattle and horse breeding and the renting of their mineral lands to strangers.

The Cossacks enjoy certain special privileges granted them by the Russian government, in return for which they give military service. This service is made obligatory among them. They spend the years of from 18 to 21 in training, then twelve years in active service and, lastly, five years in the reserve, every Cossack supplying his own uniform and horse.

In wartime they furnish the Russian government with infantry to the number of 13,500; cavalry, 111,250 horses and men, and artillery, 236 guns, 170,695 horses and 181,367 men.

Asheville Gazette-News.

Just ten years ago today, September 18th, 1904, William Jennings Bryan, now visiting in Asheville, delivered the opening address in the Democratic National campaign.

He spoke to thousands upon thousands in the coliseum at Denver and his great speech was reported in full all over the United States.

Judge Alton D. Parker, of New York, was then the candidate of the Democratic party for President. It is also interesting to note that a decade ago today an announcement was made to the effect that Senator Arthur Pue Gorman, of Maryland, now deceased, would be assistant campaign manager for Judge Parker.

These political relics were brought out this morning by a group of visitors at Grove Park Inn where Mr. Bryan is a guest for a few days.

During his stay in Asheville the Secretary of State has already met a number of visitors who are here attending the annual meeting of the National Association of Fire Commissioners at the Inn and others.

President Gilmore, of the Federal League, who has announced that unless the challenge to play a three-cornered world's series he has sent to the major leagues be taken up, the team winning the pennant in his league will claim the world's championship.

The National Commission accepts Gilmore's challenge as merely completing the record of Gilmore's campaign to receive official recognition of his organization as being of major league calibre.

It is recalled that when the challenge was received President Johnson, of the American League, and President Comiskey, of the White Sox, vigorously asserted that they would have no relations with the outlaw except on a distinctly unfriendly basis.
