Hinnant will be the speaker. The officers are: President, Richard Thigpen; vice president, Charles Jones; secretary, Kenneth Partin; treasurer, George McConnell.

The Crusaders is a small band of older Christian boys who are actively engaged in Christian service. They meet weekly for reports of their work, exchange of ideas and for a short talk by one of the members.

WILSON DAY WAS OBSERVED IN PROPER WAY

Many Wilmingtonians Attended Reading of His Message at Court House.

NORTH CAROLINA LEADS THE STATES

Is Only a Few Dollars Behind Virginia in Contributions and Has Reserve Fund.

"Woodrow Wilson Day" was fittingly observed in Wilmington last night when a large body of the representative voters of the city gathered in the County Court House to hear the message that was flashed from President Wilson read.

The speech that had been prepared by Mr. Wilson for the occasion was delivered by Cyrus D. Hogue, Esq., in a most convincing manner.

In the address Mr. Wilson reviewed the work done under the Democratic administration and made an appeal to the voters to keep the party in power that they might carry out the constructive pieces of legislation that had been started by them. Much stress was laid by the President on the non-efficiency of the Republicans when in power.

Prior to the reading of the principal address of the evening Mr. W. A. McGirt, chairman of the New Hanover Board of Commissioners, and chairman of the Wilson-Marshall Club, who presided over the meeting, made a few short remarks and called on Mr. C. C. Cashwell, secretary of the New Hanover Democratic Executive Committee, to state the object of the meeting.

Mr. Cashwell stated that the work of the Executive Committee had been most gratifying to the members of the committee, as the voters had responded liberally when they were called on for their time, their talents and their hard-earned money. He also stated that during the day over 500 voters who had not previously registered had done so, which was in itself a convincing argument that the cause of Democracy is growing stronger and that Woodrow Wilson is making a strong bid for the support of the people of the United States.

Immediately after the address of Mr. Wilson had been read Mr. McGirt called on Mr. Hugh MacRae, treasurer of the State Democratic Executive Committee, to make a few remarks. Mr. MacRae stated that he did not know that he was to be called upon, but that as he was that he wished to state that he had just received a telegram from the National headquarters stating that North Carolina was the second State in contributions to the Democratic campaign fund. In the telegram were the amounts that each Southern State had contributed. Virginia headed the list with $26,690 subscribed and North Carolina was second with $26,617.

This calculation was made several days ago and Mr. MacRae stated that since that time North Carolina Democrats had contributed enough more to raise the fund to $33,000, and that indications were that much more would be forthcoming within the next

SERVICES TODAY.

Salvation Army Has Number of Meetings Arranged.

The following meetings will be held today, Sunday, by the local corps of the Salvation Army:

11 a. m.—Sunday School service will be held in the hall, Front and Dock streets, to which all and especially those not attending other Sunday Schools are invited.

7:30 p. m.—Open-air service at the corner of Front and Princess streets.

8 p. m.—An old-time revival service will be held in the hall, at which there will be a number of soul-stirring songs and solos, together with a number of short helpful Gospel addresses.

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock there will be a cottage meeting at the home of Mrs. Cooker, 118 Wooster street, to which the public is invited.

Mr. MacRae stated that the Wilson administration had accomplished the fact that over one and one-half million dollars had been or was to be expended in this vicinity. In this connection he mentioned the new custom house that is being built and the work that is being done on the upper and lower Cape Fear river. He stated that if the Republicans had been in power that it would not have been built and that if the Republican party had had their say that the appropriations for work on the river would have been much less.

The next speaker called on was Hon. J. O. Carr, United States district attorney, who made a rousing address in which he stated that according to his mind the main issue of the campaign was whether the Federal Reserve Act would stand or not, and that notwithstanding the fact that none of the Republican candidates for the different offices had made mention of the fact that the main issue of the campaign was centered around this piece of legislation.

Mr. S. A. Matthews was the next speaker on the program and in his talk Mr. Matthews told of the days when it was dangerous for a white woman to walk down the streets of Wilmington unaccompanied and stated that although he did not prophesy that these conditions would again be here if the Republicans defeated the Democrats in the coming election that the old adage that "history repeats itself" could well be quoted in a case of this sort as the Republicans had repeatedly refused to strike out the negro from the platforms.

In an address in which he praised the policies of Wilson, Mr. J. A. McNorton was loudly applauded time after again as he recited the deeds that the present administration had accomplished and made a stirring appeal for the greatest majority that New Hanover county and the City of Wilmington had ever given an administration.

Graham Keenan, Esq., was next called on by the presiding officer, Mr. Keenan took for his subject, "Organization," and dealt at length on the way in which the Democratic party was organized in which it would be the greatest good to the greatest number, and well emphasized his points by telling of the good that the administration had done during the last four years and was doing at present for the laboring people of the country. He appealed to the labor vote and stated that unlike Theodore Roosevelt, who undertook to tear down certain organizations, that President Wilson had given these same organizations the encouragement that was their just due.

Following Mr. Keenan's speech Mr. McGirt called on anyone in the audience who felt like addressing a few remarks and to this Judge G. W. Bornemann responded.

Judge Bornemann dealt with the hyphenation subject and stated that although of German birth that he was as good an American citizen as anyone and that he intended to vote the straight Democratic ticket. The Judge also stated that he intended doing all in his power to get his neighbors to vote.

On the conclusion of Judge Bornemann's talk Mr. McGirt called on anyone in the house who wished to make a contribution to come forward, whereupon Graham Keenan, Esq., in a vigorous but brief talk stated that he did not consider it at all polite to call on people at every meeting to make contributions, as he personally knew of a number of Democrats who would come to the meetings, yet who were not financially able to make a contribution, and who stayed away for fear of being embarrassed by requests for subscriptions.

Mr. Thomas W. Cooper concluded the meeting by stating that on next Saturday night Hon. Ed. Travis, chairman of the corporation commission, would speak in Wilmington.

The following contributions were made to the Wilson campaign fund yesterday:

TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE GO TO SHADOW LAWN TO HEAR WILSON ASSAIL THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

as it was in 1912 in order that they may make it what they then failed to make it by organizing their opposition against it.

"In order to reunite the Republican party by giving dominance to that section of it which has been rejected by that party itself, a time of world crisis is to be used in which it is absolutely necessary that the councils of this nation should be united and unmistakable. What are we to say of the patriotism of men who take advantage of a crisis of the world when the peace of this great nation can be maintained only by the most thoughtful and considerate means and in order to settle a question of a power among themselves? The thing is incredible.

"The thoughtful men of the country see that the Democratic party is under a single leadership, that the Democratic party has definite and avowed purposes, an organized body able to concert action and concert it with enthusiasm. Where is the tramp of the young men of this country to be heard? It is to be heard going towards the recruiting and enlistment offices of this united host of determined Democrats.

"I have never at any time had to ask what the people of the United States were thinking. I did not know and I could not prove it, but I have simply waited for those who were blind to see what was happening. The attitude of the party of opposition has always been this:

"Give a few of us power and the profits and we will see that some of the profits get distributed to the rest."

"The people of the United States do not want anybody to give them anything. They want men who are standing between them and their rights to get out of the way and realize for themselves.

"The Democratic party has uniformly taken the position that it is not going to put the distribution of justice in the hands of any small circle of men, but that it is going to listen to and heed the demand of the average man in the United States that he be given the chance and the voice in the government to which he is entitled.

"The tides of the nation do not wait upon those who are closeted in private conference, the great surge comes in when no man listens, when no man guides, no man restrains, the body of humanity is moving with never so painful progress, but with irresistible glacial force every obstacle and presently the mountains of difficulty will be eroded and the great plains will bloom with the happiness of mankind.

"There is in the heart of every true Democrat this enthusiasm, this admiration of privilege, this contempt for intrigue, this desire to be in the van and to serve the common mass of the fellowmen.

"My fellow citizens, reacting to the United States at this juncture of the world's affairs would be one of the most serious things that ever happened in the world. When the world is expecting to know what he is about and lead straight forward to have her stop to settle the business of one party would be an absolute calamity.

"While apart from who is leading the hosts of Democracy, just as the hosts of Democracy are faced towards the light and towards the progress upon which the future depends and at this time when the world is some weight in the balance, some quiet compelling weight to keep the scales from tipping the beam, it is important that the United States should hold steady and it is particularly important that the United States should say 'We will cast out every foreign influence will control the influence of our election. We are our own masters, we are the conductors of our own fate, and the policy of other government, the policy and interest of no other nation is to be projected into the determination of our own destiny and action.'

"Everything commands this great people to stand steady, to stand to resist the invitation of a chance."
