We were greatly pleased to have as our guest on Thursday morning Col. Fred Olds of Raleigh. We felt that he is one of our special friends and are always ready to give him a warm welcome to our school. As usual he had a fine Indian story for us.

It was indeed a treat to have the High School orchestra visit us this week. They played the marches for us and one other selection. We all enjoyed the music very much. Mr. Blair came over Thursday morning to present the picture which our school won at the Art Exhibit. He also read the honor roll which is as follows:

The pupils of the Union School wish to congratulate the pupils of the Isaac Bear School in their success in winning the first prize offered at the Art Exhibit.

Colonel F. A. Olds paid his annual visit to our school Thursday morning. He told us the story of John Paul Jones and "Marse James" Johnson and his faithful old body servant, Henry, who is still living at the age of ninety-nine. We hope that Colonel Olds will come again next year. We always enjoy his visit and his stories and he may be sure of a lasting and hearty welcome.

Monday morning Mr. Hinant was with us. He gave us a short talk, saying that their should be more boys than girls on the honor roll. He also told us that the average boy should make an average of 85 or 90 percent, a standard boy 90 to 85 percent and a boy above the average should get from 95 to 100 percent.

TAR HEEL GOVERNOR STANDS WITH HIM

Bickett Declares North Carolina Solidly Behind The President.

(Special to The Dispatch.)
Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 3.—Answering requests from New York papers for expressions on the severing of diplomatic relations with Germany, Governor Bickett tonight said:
"North Carolina is a conservative State. Our people love peace and hate war. It is the curse of the nations. We had hoped that the warring governments of the Old World would respond to the plea of our President and enter into a compact that would insure permanent and universal peace. The reply of Germany to this plea for peace is a deliberate invitation to further strife. When the German government delivered its note of January 31 it knew then as well as it knows now, that diplomatic relations would be severed. The President could not have done less without obliterating every trace of our National honor. We deeply hope that Germany may yet stay her hand, but if American ships or American lives shall be wantonly destroyed, then our people, as one man, without respect to race or politics, will uphold the President in whatever action he may take to preserve the honor and safety of the nation."
"(Signed.) THOS. W. BICKETT.

ANITA STEWART SAYS -

(Copyright 1916 Vitagraph)

THE ART OF BEING A GUEST.
It has been said, "A clever guest has as many duties as a hostess," and I believe this to be true. Of course it is possible for a guest to neglect her duties where it is more difficult for a hostess to slight her obligations. Bashfulness is bad form in a guest. If one is by nature shy and backward it is, of course, hard to appear otherwise; but in order to be a "clever guest" it must be overcome. Why is it that some people are always on the list of invitations? Nine times out of ten it is because they make things run smoothly about them.

One must enthusiastically enter into the different forms of entertainment provided, and do one's little part toward making the evening a success. I do not mean to say that we should be forward and demand unnecessary attentions. As you know, that is ill-breeding. I mean that if a person is gifted with a sweet singing voice and is asked to favor the company with a selection, that person should graciously lend her services without wasting a half hour in being coaxed.

If you want to make yourself extremely valuable to your kind hostess exert your tact to bring into the spirit of the affair the unpopular guest. You will generally find one in the company and be surprised sometimes that the person is not the center of attraction. For it happens occasionally a different and slighted guest has hidden her attractive qualities under a superficial ungracefulness.

When I entertain friends, it always gives me pleasure to watch a certain friend who is a wonderful guest. I always let her have a corner of the room to herself and busy myself with the people on the other side of the room. For I know she will place every one about her at ease. Do you think I would give any sort of party without her? Never!

Help your hostess, friends. Then see how much more you enjoy yourselves at the same time.
