An epic story of heroism, human endurance and the perils of polar exploration will be told in the only adequate way in which it can be conveyed—in moving pictures of perfect photography—by Lyman H. Howe at the Academy, matinee and night, on next Wednesday. It is the official film record of Sir Douglas Mawson's Expedition into Antarctica when he discovered the world's seventh continent 2,000 miles from the nearest habitation of man. It reveals the perils of the raging seas en route to low over ice deserts, the struggles against blizzards when the wind was blowing at a velocity of 216 miles an hour, the dangerous climbs up mountains of jagged ice and across plateaus of ice filled with treacherous, unattachable crevasses, in one of which the brave Lieut. Ninnie lost his life. It opens up great, new vistas and strange sights of a still stranger world glistening with great floating ice—packs and ice-barriers, and enormous icebergs. And it all glows with humor—the kindest and most delightful type—for it comes from the spontaneous joy of men but of the queer birds and animals that find their abodes here. The penguins, seals, sea lions, sea elephants, petrels, cormorants and other polar animals frolicking about in the snow and ice form a scene not unlike Atlantic City on a summer afternoon. That they harbor no fear of man, nor even the camera, as do birds and animals in every other portion of the globe, is shown by their absolute tameness and docility no matter how closely they are approached.

The matinee prices will be 35c for lower floor seats, 25c for balcony seats and 15c for school children and any seat.

Night prices will be 25c, 35c and 50c. Tickets at Elvington's Front St. store Monday.

MRS. R. W. GRIMES TESTIFIES.

Robersonville, N. C., January 2nd, 1917. Person Remedy Company, Charlotte, N. C. Gentlemen:— Some time ago I was attacked with a serious spell of Typhoid Fever, which left me in a very weak condition and effected in white swelling. Every remedy we could think of was used, but to no effect. My suffering was great and I had to go on crutches. At last we were induced to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, after suffering for two years, and the result was marvelous. After taking eight bottles I was entirely cured, and have never had a symptom of trouble since. My faith in Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy is great and I would advise all sufferers to give it a trial and be convinced as I have. (Signed) Mrs. R. W. Grimes. HENRY B. WALTHALL In One of the Greatest Dramas He Ever Appeared In "The Birth of A Man" A Five-Reel Drama of Intense Power, Pathos and Brilliance.

VICTORIA Monday & Tuesday February 12 - 13

Aircraft Pictures Present MARY PICKFORD In Her Second Great Triumph Under Her Own Artistic Guidance "THE PRIDE OF THE CLAN" Supported by Matt Moore Greater Than "Less Than the Dust," Everyone Says.

R. E. L. COOK IS ANXIOUS TO HELP OTHER SUFFERERS

Wilmington Printer Knows the Herald Power of the Press and Offers Story of What Tanlac Has Done for Him, So Others May Also Gair.

R. E. L. Cooke, of 1409 South Fourth street, printer with the Wilmington Printing Company, realizes the heralding power of the press, and, as he says, "that it might reach other suffering people," offers the following story of his experience with Tanlac: "I suffered from indigestion and a run down system. My appetite and sleep were not good,—way, I suffered for 15 years from indigestion. And, I tried all sorts of medicines, but without gaining relief. "I learned what Tanlac was doing for others and got it. I have finished my first bottle and am glad to say that my indigestion has been greatly relieved. My appetite is just fine, and I can eat any food now without suffering afterward. My sleep is good and I also have gained three pounds in weight. "I recommend Tanlac to those in need of a good tonic and I give my statement that it might reach other suffering people," he repeated in conclusion.

Genuine Tanlac is sold in Wilmington at the Bellamy drug store exclusively. Each town has its Tanlac dealer.

twenty big musical comedy plays which this all-star aggregation carries in their repertoire. "King for a Day" an excruciatingly funny farce comedy, with Bob "Peggy" Davis in his usual laughable blackface role. Baby Norine, the most wonderful child singer on the American stage, will present her very greatest act today and tomorrow, one that will undoubtedly cause a sensation. Baby Norine is possessed of a marvelously strong voice, and the expert manner in which she puts over really difficult song numbers would do credit to a seasoned actress of triple her age. She has been the cue for repeated encores at her every appearance during the week, and will doubtless even eclipse this record for today and tomorrow.

Rita Mares, vaudeville's best rag-time fiddler, will have the greatest act today, also, and something that should appeal especially to the ladies is the fact that Miss Mares exhibits some of the latest spring creations in gowns, which will dazzle the eyes of the feminine part of the audience. And tomorrow afternoon the kiddies of Wilmington are going to have the rare opportunity of meeting and shaking hands with wonderful little Baby Norine, for she is going to give a reception to them on the stage right, after the matinee, to which every kiddie will be welcome, on the stage. Furthermore, Baby Norine is going to present each one with a nice bag of candy so that they will remember her long after she has left Wilmington.

Charlie Chaplin Tomorrow. Charlie Chaplin, world's most famous comedian, wishes to announce to his Wilmington friends that his Wilmington headquarters are now at the Bijou, where he is better prepared to welcome the throngs who worship at the shrine of his funny feet, and where he will be enabled to meet a larger proportion of the population than elsewhere.

He wishes to announce further that he makes his first visit to the Bijou tomorrow, appearing in his latest and absolutely his greatest Chaplin comedy screen, "The Rink," the title of which alone calls visions of those funny feet on roller skates and the laughable situations that can be imagined under these circumstances. In this play the inimitable Charlie is a waiter at a high-class restaurant and what he doesn't succeed in finding in the way of trouble isn't worth finding. He doesn't like the way the head waiter wears his whiskers, has no idea of the deference due from a newly graduated bus boy to "boss head," makes eyes at the girls, and generally speaking, plays the deuce without precedent. Various flirtations, gay parties at the rink and at the restaurant, all sorts of excitement follow to fill the entire piece with Charlie, a waiter, trying to pass off to Edna as the scion of a wealthy family. It ends with a chase, with every one but Edna—including the flirtatious father—the eight-foot Eric Campbell after Charlie.

Walthall in "The Birth of a Man." Tomorrow the Grand announces for presentation at regular admission prices, what is heralded as one of the greatest productions in which the peerless Henry Walthall has ever appeared. "The Birth of a Man," in which he shows in the various scenes, brilliance as to almost stun you with his enormous amount of strength which he shows in the various scenes. "The Birth of a Man" in five reels, filmed by the Celebrated Players Film Company, is unquestionably one of the most powerful photoplay dramas ever filmed in five reels. From the first clash on the screen until the end, the story is convincing and appealing. Henry Walthall plays the leading role and his artistic effort is another testimonial to his wizardry. The story deals with a young and idle millionaire who receives a cablegram advising him to leave for Paris at once in order to seize the opportunity of purchasing a greatly coveted rare canvas. Before he leaves he calls to see the girl he loves, but his appeal for an immediate marriage is rejected because the girl realizes that money is the only god he worships. By a matter of seconds he misses the train and he is held by a band of crooks. He is in a terrific fire which disfigures him and turns his hair gray. No one recognizes him when he gets back home and through a series of singular circumstances come "The Birth of a Man"—a real man.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once. If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, anti-septic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief. Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight. adv.

Popular Mary Pickford. The incomparable Mary, whose first production by her own company, "Less Than the Dust," created such a sensation, appearing in her second great Arctcraft production, an elaborate feature entitled, "The Pride of the Clan." It will be presented at the Victoria next Monday and Tuesday.

In her long and brilliant career on the screen Miss Pickford has portrayed characters of a number of different nationalities. In "Less Than the Dust," which throughout the United States has created exceptional attention, little Mary appears as a child of India. It's a long way from the banks of the Ganges to the wind blown fields of Scotch heather, but it is a trip that Miss Pickford has taken in the interval between "Less Than the Dust" and "The Pride of the Clan."

"The Pride of the Clan" gives Miss Pickford another national role in the several she already has created. In "Hulda From Holland" she was a most captivating Dutch girl who came to America and successfully won a place for herself in the new country. "Madame Butterfly" showed Miss Pickford as a Geisha girl of Japan, a child of love. "Tess of the Storm Country" and a number of her earlier pictures presented Miss Pickford in various phases of national life in America. Mr. Walter E. Greene, president of Arctcraft Pictures Corporation, distributors of Mary Pickford productions, in commenting on "The Pride of the Clan" said: "Since Miss Pickford in 'Less Than the Dust' created a distinctly national characterization, she has received hundreds of letters requesting her to give characterizations of young women of other lands. Here's a field unlimited in scope and possibilities and particularly favors, we believe, Miss Pickford's extraordinary abilities and powers, as she more than any other American star of the screen, represents a universal type.

Anita Stewart SAYS— WHAT A RAINY DAY SHOULD MEAN TO US. Why it had to rain that day I didn't know. It was my first holiday in weeks and I was going to spend it rambling through the wild sections of the park. But raining it was, and there was no help for it. The sheets of water had splattered my window panes and as I slipped on a kimono and drew aside the cretonne curtains to see if there was any sign of it clearing up I looked upon a grey, dismal world to be sure. After dressing, I went into the library and wrote my daily chat. Then I tried to embroider for a while, but as long as I sat and looked out on the stubborn rain which seemed to come down harder every minute I found my spirits sinking deeper and deeper. "For pity's sake, Anita, dear," said mother who was answering some correspondence, "why don't you sit down at the piano and sing for a while? You have been roaming about the rooms like a puma and your expression is anything but flattering. I know you wanted to spend the day with Nature, but we have to expect disappointments in this old world, of ours, you know, else we wouldn't appreciate our blessings." "Oh, really I don't feel like singing, Mother 'o' Mine. How can I be happy when I look at that gloomy sight from the window?" I answered. "Why my dear little girl," returned mother. "It's on just this kind of day that you need your own sunshine. Remember the little verse that says 'It's easy enough to be pleasant when the world goes along like a song, but the man that's worth while is the man with a smile when everything goes wrong.'" I did remember the verse, and mother's reminder that it was just in such weather that we needed our own sunshine shamed me; so I sat down at my loved piano, and before long I had forgotten all about the weather and was enjoying myself to the utmost with the happy little melodies which mean so much in my life. Before long luncheon time had come and once more happy, having conquered my depression by manufacturing my own sunshine, I was ready to chat over the tea-cups with dear mother who has helped me all these years to get the most from my life. After all, friends, it is nothing to our credit to have a song on our lips on a bright sunny day when the whole world seems to be happy with the joy of living. But it is hard to smile and sing when the skies are overcast and the rain seems to sing a mournful song, not the happy tune which is sometimes sung. Hereafter will we manufacture our own sunshine when the skies are dark and drear. I, for one, intend to.
