within the year, but the call now is beyond anything heretofore. It is different from all other needs and it not only possesses strength in that humanity and the good of your country require the money, but it possesses one thing that must appeal to every man, and make him realize he should make sacrifices in order to contribute to the cause. It is this: You will not the storm of adversity, surmounted go to the battlefront; not that you wouldn't gladly do so, but there is something that prevents your goingyour physical condition, your age or, may be, your vital work at home or dependent ones. In that case, do you not think you should give something to the funds being created for war relief, so that the suffering of your brothers who do go to the front-many never to return-may be less: so that they may have some relaxation from the mental strain of the battlefield; so that men and women in foreign lands, hundreds of thousands who are subjected to torture because they are Christians, may be aided? The work is not for government, as a govern ment, but for individuals, who are th government. There is a difference that has to be observed, and it is easily recognizable. Your part, your duty is to give financial help. It is needof the fight, and it is needed by youas a patriotic citizen. So when the call is made upon you, do not stop because you have given freely to other causes, do not hesitate because you remember that you have been called upon many times within the year to make donations, but bear in mind that this is the paramount call of all; that it is different from all others, and that surely it behooves you to give a little. even by sacrificing, when you are not going to the front.
