Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain.

A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, itching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone or afterwards.

Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness. Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.—Advt.

THEATRE

Tense with human interest that strikes deep to the heart, brilliant with big scenes, spectacular acting, startling with its realistic portrayal of a certain strata of life. "A Million Bid," the Vitagraph de luxe production starring America's daintiest and sweetest screen star, Anita Stewart, with all star supporting cast including the brilliant E. K. Lincoln, made a direct hit at the Royal yesterday and will be repeated today for the final times in Wilmington.

For his wife's heart he bid a million. In name only she married him. It was the will of her scheming mother, who saw the lure of wealth and position, and forced her daughter into this distasteful union. But the supreme dictates of her heart guided the girl's actions. She loved a struggling young physician in whom she placed implicit faith and confidence. Then when the showreck occurred and her husband lost his memory and her lover cured him—she is placed in a most unhappy predicament. The meeting of the two men with her and her child lead up to and build a most unusual climax. Dramatic action that has the pull of a dynamo—strong heart interest and direction that holds all the way, are the keynote motives of this splendid drama, about which you will talk for months after you see it.

EXTRA FINE SHOW AT ROYAL.

Detective methods of the most scientific and modern sort play such an important part in "The Argyle Case," in which Robert Warwick will make his first appearance as a Selznick-Pictures star, that it was considered advisable to obtain the best technical advice necessary, so that the picture might be perfect in every detail. William J. Burns, the internationally famous detective, was consulted by Harvey J. O'Higgins, and Harriet Ford, when they wrote the original play, and he consented to act in a similar capacity of adviser to Robert Warwick. He made several visits to the Selznick Studio when the important scenes were being photographed, and as a consequence, "The Argyle Case" is the first detective film which will stand the closest scrutiny.

Burns was the first to use the dictagraph to obtain evidence from the criminals themselves direct. He invented the "Prepared Blotter" by means of which finger prints could be obtained without arousing the suspicions of the subject. With a trick pen, the fingers of the subject are smeared with ink, and in a moment the evidence of identity is recorded. Both of these important devices of the modern detective are employed in "The Argyle Case" exactly as Detective Burns has used them in many of his big cases.

"The Argyle Case" based upon the most sensational stage detective drama ever staged, is the attraction at the Royal for Friday and Saturday.

"BE PRETTY" IS HIS ADVICE TO WOMEN

Peplac Expert Explains Common Sense Way to Get and Keep Beauty.

"Many women paint and powder and use cold cream and lotions when their complexion begins to fade. They think a sallow, wan looking face can be made to bloom like a healthy one by such treatment, but that is all wrong," is the opinion of the Peplac Expert, as expressed at the Bellamy Drug store.

"The skin must be treated from the inside out, and not from the outside in. True beauty comes from a healthy body, not from an unhealthy one. That's the secret of beauty—beautiful because it's natural. Every woman with a good digestion has a good complexion."

"It is every woman's divine right to be beautiful and if she is lacking in beauty, is half-sick all the time, is droopy, exhausted and not jolly as a girl all her life it's her own fault. The trouble with most women is they are sick and don't know it. Let nervous, pale, tired women tone up the system with Peplac. Give it a chance and they should rapidly regain health, beauty and joy in life. I feel that Peplac will do just this thing—as numbers have told me."

NEW YORK—DAY-BY-DAY.

(O. C. McIntyre.)
(Special Correspondent of The Dispatch)

New York, Aug. 23.—There is a woman—the mother of three married daughters who also have children—who is seen constantly around the smart dancing places. She is the gadding grandmamma, and with her always is her poor tired husband and two sleek dancing men.

The woman was bitten by the tango bug several years ago. She became proficient after taking from the best instructors in town and she dances every afternoon and evening. She hires the dancing men for $5 an evening, so she will not be besmirched. Those who know say she has aged greatly since she has become such an enthusiastic devotee of Terpsichore.

She is one of the unsung martyrs of the City of Five Million. There may be many more cases like this. In fact, there is another unmarried woman (slang for old maid) who has seen 73 summers. She, too, is a tango fiend. She has money and in the old days when people danced until daylight she could be seen at the Domino Room and Healy's every morning at sunrise. She, too, has her hired dancing partners and they have given up their honest toil to escort her about at night and dance with her.

A dozen newspaper reporters gathered the other day at the Pennsylvania Station to wait for a Chilean official who was to be questioned regarding a current feature of news.

It had been announced that the official to be seen had left Atlantic City, and when the train arrived, none of the reporters having seen the man, the quest was a difficult one.

He was not found. One of the newspaper men summed it up briefly. "Of all the difficult tasks I know," he said, "I can think of none more complex than to meet a South American official, unknown to you, as he leaves a train from Atlantic City. Every one on the train is sunburned, and you have nothing at all to work on."

Earl Carroll, the song writer, never wears a hat. Sometime ago he found that his locks were thinning out a bit on top. Then he went out to Los Angeles, where hatless men are the rule instead of the exception, and he found that his hair did not drop out so rapidly.

When he returned to New York he continued the custom. Nobody pays any attention to those things in New York. In fact the most prominent man in the city could walk down Broadway during the busiest hour clothed in nothing but a barrel and he would fall to excite comment. So Carroll has never felt that he was conspicuous.

However, there has been a fly in the ointment. Carroll had a birthday party at his bungalow atop a skyscraper—forty seconds from Broadway—the other night. Among the other presents he received 12 hats. And now he is wondering if they were sent by accident or design.

Subway nerves! It is an affliction of rapid metropolitan life. There are many men and women who cannot ride in the tubes. Fredrico Schang, now an impressario, used to be known as Freddy Schang, journalist. He gave up journalism because he disliked going to the office via the subway. Alexandre Woolcott, who used to be the Times' critic, declares that he would rather work for $50 a week less on an uptown paper than work on Park Row and ride on the subway. The only solution seems to be for each journalist to have a limousine and lead the limousine life. The subway has a peculiar affect on those who are neuroasthenic. They realize they are locked in and they become panicky. Guards recognize it instantly and always try to soothe the sufferer.

GENERAL PERSHING BACK IN PARIS

Paris, Aug. 23.—Major General Pershing returned to his Paris headquarters, after witnessing the French offensive on the Verdun front with General Petain, the French commander-in-chief.

General Pershing, who saw much of the Verdun battle, was greatly impressed with the spirit and vigor of the French troops.

Miss Josephine T. Berry, professor of home economics at the University of Minnesota, has been appointed assistant director of the Federal Vocational Education Board.

LAST STAGES OF RIGGS DISEASE

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The following distinctive features are observable in the treatment of riggs disease, by patients using pyorigg: The disease is promptly arrested. The color of the gums is restored to a healthy pink condition in the course of a few days. Undue redness of gums disappears. Inflammation, soreness and sensitiveness disappear. Gums build up and fill out, receding stops. Teeth lose their yellow color. Separated teeth come together. Loose teeth tighten up and bleeding of gums ceases. Shrunken gums are invigorated and healthified. These are the results in most cases of using pyorigg, a new prescription specially for riggs disease, which comes in the form of a medicated message ointment and is dispensed in original packages, price one dollar, at best drug stores, including Jarman & Futrelle, in Wilmington.—Advt.
