CHICAGO WHITE SOX WON FIRST GAME OF BASEBALL CLASSIC

Dave Robertson laid him low at the corner sack. John Collins, however, reached second and scored when McMullen ripped a double to centerfield. It was here that Kauff's play figured. The former Federal league star came dashing in for the ball, plunged for it and missed. The ball bounded by him. By the time Burns had recovered it, Collins had crossed the plate and McMullen was on second. Eddie Cicotte ended the inning with a pop fly to Fletcher.

Then it was Felsch's turn. The big centerfielder cracked out one of the longest home runs ever seen on Comiskey's field when he met one of Sallee's curves and sent it into the left field bleachers far down toward centerfield. One ball had been called for him when he met the next pitched. Lew McCarty was responsible for the Giant run. First up in the fifth the Giant catcher laid against one for a three base hit drive to centerfield. A faster man would have made a home run of the hit, but McCarty's lame leg impeded him. Slim Sallee himself provided the hit that drove McCarty across the plate.

Then came the seventh inning. One was gone when Holke got hold of one and put it in right field for a single. McCarty swung hard and slammed a line drive into centerfield. Jackson, running hard, plunged for the ball, but unlike Kauff, got it. He turned a complete somersault, but came up with the ball. The game was saved. If the ball had passed Jackson, Holke would have scored the tying run and McCarty would have been in a position to score. McGraw already had sent Fred Anderson to warm up, planning to send in a pinch hitter for Sallee if McCarty reached first.

Benny Kauff and Holke were shown up at first by the clever Cicotte. He picked off Holke in the second and did the same thing for Kauff in the eighth, after Benny had reached there on Weaver's error. Kauff fanned once. A short fly to the outfield, a pop-up and a soft grounder on which Weaver erred were his other efforts. Heinie Zimmerman failed to get a baseball out of the infield. Speculation turned tonight to the probable pitching selection for Sunday. It was believed McGraw would send Phil Perritt to the firing line, alternating from his string of left-handers. It was considered just as probable that Rowland would choose Red Faber, banking on a repetition of the success of a right-hander.

First Inning: New York: Burns up. Strike; strike two; ball one; ball two; ball three. Burns singled sharply over second after the count was three and two. Herzog up. Herzog flied to Joe Jackson on the first ball pitched. Kauff up. Strike one. Kauff sent up a high fly to Jackson, who almost dropped the ball. Zimmerman up. The crowd bood

Burns up. Foul, strike one; ball one. Burns hit into a double play. Weaver to E. Collins to Gandil.

Herzog up. Foul, strike one; foul, strike two; Herzog struck out. He was the first strike-out victim of the game.

One run, two hits, no errors. Chicago: Schalk up. Foul, strike one. Schalk grounded out to Holke.

Cicotte up. Foul, strike one; ball one; ball two; foul, strike two; ball three. Sallee threw out Cicotte at first.

John Collins up. Foul, strike one; strike two; foul; ball one. John Collins also goes out to Holke, unassisted.

No runs, no hits, no errors. Sixth Inning: New York: Kauff up. Strike one; strike two; Kauff fanned on three pitched balls.

Zimmerman up. Foul, strike one; foul, strike two. Zimmerman flied out to Gandil.

Strike one; strike two. Fletcher flied out to Jackson. No runs, no hits, no errors.

It was the first inning that the New Yorkers had made no hits.

Chicago: McMullen up. Strike one. Herzog threw out McMullen at first, after cutting down what seemed a sure hit.

Zimmerman's legs. Weaver up. Strike one foul, strike two; Weaver singled and Gandil stole second, and went to third.

Schalke up. Fletcher threw out Schalke. No runs, one hit, one error.

Eighth Inning: New York: Burns up. Ball one; foul, strike one. Burns flied out to Felsch.

Herzog up. Ball one; ball two; strike one. Herzog sent a low fly to Jackson.

Kauff up. Weaver took Kauff's grounder, but his wide throw drew Gandil off the bag.

Zimmerman up. Ball one; ball two; strike one. Kauff was caught off first and was run down, Cicotte to Gandil to Eddie Collins.

No runs, no hits, no errors. Chicago: Cicotte up. Foul, strike one; ball one; strike two; ball two; ball three. Fletcher tossed out Cicotte.

John Collins up. Ball one; strike one. John Collins got a two-base hit alone the left field foul line.

McMullen up. Ball one; Sallee took McMullen's grounder and John Collins was run down, Sallee to Zimmerman to Herzog.

NEW YORK—DAY-BY-DAY

(O. O. McIntyre.) (Special Correspondent of The Dispatch.)

New York, Oct. 6.—It was on the Far Rockway express. The smoker was filled with commuters—men weary from toil at their desks and the business of buying and selling.

They read their evening papers or lay back, eyes half-closed, their thoughts on the dinners awaiting them.

Smoke filled the air, curling in wreaths and streamer—the blue-grey smoke of pipe and cigar and cigarette. Outside the car, beating up on its windows, a sunset flamed.

It was a sunset of rose and yellow and the faintest, softest green and these magic tints were placed in a sombre setting of blue-grey—the cigarette smoke caught solid in heavy, tumbling masses. The sunset glow painted the fields and the waters so that they shone metallic, reflecting the sunset's splendor.

But not a man within the car noticed not one turned to look at the glorious color. That is, no one except a little plodding book-keeper. He seemed hypnotized by the beauty of it all.

And turning to a man with his face buried in a newspaper filled with tragedy, he remarked, just a bit shyly: "I wonder, sir, if crime and poverty and war and all those hideous things which are afflicting the world—if all of these are not caused in some deeply subtle way by man's own indifference to light and color and beauty."

"Say" was the curt reply "what's eatin' you? You better quit jabbin' yourself in the arm. You're getting dotty already."

And the shy little man turned away and sighed.

Seen around the town: A cub lion hauled through the streets in an express wagon. A toupee removed from the head of a well dressed man by a gust of wind. Mrs. Richard wrote to her husband. An undertaker in a checked suit and white spats. A nearsighted man asking a clothes shop dummy for a street direction. Rube Goldberg crawling under his big automobile in the middle of Times Square while a crowd collected. A window demonstrator showing how scientifically to chew gum. A dramatic critic refusing to shake hands with a well known producer. A professional Southerner being escorted out of a big hotel lobby. A woman carrying a little white puppy in a handbag on her arm.

Two Straights for Reds. Cincinnati, Oct. 6.—The Cincinnati Reds made it two straight over the third place Cleveland Americans today by winning the post season bill, 2 to 1, in 13 innings. Stanley Coveleskie and Schneider fought on even terms until the thirteenth, when singles by Griffith and Shean, and Neal's sacrifice gave the Reds victory. The score: Cleveland 100 000 000 0-1 10 2

Cincinnati. 000 010 000 000 0-2 7 0

Batteries: Coveleskie and O'Neil; Schneider and Wingo. Umpires, Hildebrand and Harrison.

No Such Peace Terms

(By United Press.) Paris, Oct. 6.—French Socialists tonight received from Russia a telegram sent by the executive committee of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Congress declaring regarding the rumor that the Allies were contemplating a separate peace at Russia's expense, that "such a peace would defeat the Russian international democracy."

"Russia," the telegram declared, "scornfully repudiates peace with any such result."

Men and women eager to learn to speak the language of the polls and that of the Parisian now have their chance in New York hotels. The Vanderbilt, Majestic and Waldorf have established classes for an hour's instruction each day. Guests are given instruction free—and some way on a newspaper has intimated that it is to help the guests order what they want from the New York hotel menu.

SERIOUS FIRE IN MAXTON SATURDAY

Maxton Gin Company's Plant Destroyed, and Other Buildings Threatened

(Special to The Dispatch.) Maxton, N. C., Oct. 6.—The plant of the Maxton Gin Company burned down this afternoon. Fire, which was discovered in the gin house shortly after 1 o'clock, rapidly grew into the most spectacular blaze ever seen in Maxton. Catching the inflammable material the flames shot through the enveloping smoke high into the air and threatened to lap up the adjoining buildings. These, too, were of the most inflammable character. A large seed house and the storage tanks of the Standard Oil Company were on one side and those of the Texas Oil Company on the other. Exceptional work by the fire department prevented a disastrous conflagration, in which the loss of the gin (five thousand dollars) partially covered by insurance, shrinks into insignificance.

Want LaFollette Interned. (By United Press.) Lovhart, Texas, Oct. 6.—The Lovhart home guard in a telegram to Senator Sheppard tonight urged that the Senators from Texas use their best efforts to have Robert M. La Follette, Senator from Wisconsin, expelled from the Senate and interned for the period of the war.

There isn't a wiser cat anywhere than Red Mike, pride of the men of a fire engine company on East Twenty-fifth street. The reporters were called in the other day to see Mike at his best. He slides down the pole from the second story as well as any red-shirted fireman. He knows how to fetch boots, shoes and other articles belonging to firemen, and he can actually distinguish the difference between alarm bells. When the men start out to answer an alarm Red Mike is always on his seat beside the ladder truck driver. As a result of his cleverness Red Mike got his pictures in all of the New York newspapers.

A little lisping chorus girl with the regulation Broadway make-up was talking in a Lobster Palace about Paris. "The pathififfth," she said, "are the cruth of a Nation." And it made her angry when everyone chortled.
