THEATRE

"SOCIAL BRIARS."

Miss Mary Miles Minter, the screen's most appealing ingenue, has been given a fascinating role in her new American-Mutual production, "Social Briars," one of the cleanest-cut little dramas recently released, at the Grand tomorrow.

Miss Minter plays Iris Lee, a dreamy-eyed little beauty of sleepy Dalton, who chafes under irksome restraints of village life and the crude advances of village beaux and trims her pretty wings for flight when the ills of life become insupportable, only to find that life in a village may be rendered quite endurable once that village becomes the abode of love. "Social Briars" was written and scenariorized by Edward Sloman. The picture was directed by Mr. Sloman, who has directed several of Miss Minter's most successful productions. The story involves Iris Lee's determination to seek her fortune in New York, her encounters with theatrical managers who desire to star her at a price, her romance with Jack Colwell, a millionaire, who turns out a regular fellow, her return to Dalton as a successful soloist with the millionaire in hot pursuit, and the general happy ending of a little girl's dreams that looked dangerous in their beginning.

THE GREAT MAZIMOVA. The great Mazimova, one of the most powerful figures the screen has ever known, comes to the Grand Monday and Tuesday in a stupendous seven-act Metro super-production, "Revolution," a worthy vehicle for the great star of the stage and screen. It tells the story of Joline, a model living in the Latin quarter of Paris, who finds a soul through the agency of the sacred rose bush. Through Joline, a miracle is performed, when a pious monk who sees her standing beside the sacred bush sees shining in her eyes the pure spirit of the Madonna. The bush bursts into bloom. But this miracle is nothing compared to the revelation by which Joline's whole nature is transformed and purified. Echoes of the great war are heard in "Revelation," and Joline finds her hap-The Literary Digest, one of the Please You The Literary Digest, one of the highest class publications in America, devoted a whole page in their issue of March 23rd to a commendation of this great photoplay. It says, is part: "It is a beautiful story, beautifull ytold and wonderfully well acted. Practically all the interest centers in the one character, Joline, played by Mme. Nazimova. In the role of Joline, the vivid, picturesque little model of the Latin quarter who, through a miracle. finds her soul, Mme. Nazimova is suited as she seldom has been before."

Wisconsin Has a Birthday. Madison, Wis., May 29.—The state of Wisconsin is 70 years old today, having been admitted to the union by act of congress approved May 29, 1848. The anniversary was recalled by the state historical society, although there was no formal observance of the occasion.
