Harry DeCover, Jr., left yesterday for Norfolk, where he will spend several days.

Mrs. Tucker Lee and Miss Annie Taylor, of Winter Park, left yesterday for Hampstead to visit friends and relatives.

The regular Saturday night dance will be held this evening at Overlake pavilion, Greenfield park, with dancing from 8:30 until 11:30 and all are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Russell and son, Master Thomas Edward, of New York, who have been here for several days with Mrs. Russell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Besselleu, returned home yesterday.

There will be a called meeting of the board of directors of the associated charities at the office of the association Monday morning at 11 o'clock. This meeting is of an important nature and all directors are urged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sykes and son, Master John, Jr., of Waycross, Ga., who have been visiting friends and relatives here and at Acme, return to their home today. Mrs. Sykes will be pleasantly remembered here as Miss Emma Owen.

Mrs. J. A. Parham has joined her husband in Charlotte and will be there permanently. Mr. Parham left Wilmington last fall to become managing editor of the Charlotte Observer and Mrs. Parham has been here and in Lumberton with relatives since that time.

The Winter Park demonstration and war savings stamp clubs will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. L. D. Latta at Winter Park. Mrs. Annie P. Pretlow will lecture on wheat substitutes. All women of the community are invited to attend.

"The King of Bulgaria," an interesting playlet, was given by five small girls at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Elliott, 207 South Third street, last night, as a Red Cross benefit. Those taking part in the play included Esther Elliott, Mary Allen Skelding, Elizabeth Parsley, Edith Roache and Helen Reilly.

The Epsilon Tau Nu sorority of Converse college, forming a house party at Wrightsville beach as guests of Misses Winnifred and Louise Shepard, leave today for Fort Caswell, where they will attend a house party given in their honor by a number of enlisted men. They will be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shepard.

The Lumina open air picture show starts business tonight, with the formal opening of the season. An experienced operator will conduct the picture show over the waves nightly except Sunday and an exceptionally strong line-up of features has been secured for this attractive feature of amusement at Lumina. Tonight's opening bill will include a two reel feature, "The Yellow Umbrella," with little Mary McAllister, and single reel scenic, "The Glacier National Park," one of the most beautiful scenic productions ever filmed.

The June Bride and Her Finery

There is something romantic about the month of June. Is it because the skies are brighter, the flowers sweeter and the trees greener than any other month of the year? Or, perhaps, we might attribute it to the fact that June is the month of brides, the month when the blushing young girl voluntarily locks the hymeneal altar. Anyway, June days mean Love, Happiness and Youth.

The June bride (and any other bride, in fact, only we happen to be talking about June brides), has most of her excitement before the wedding when the fun consists of choosing all sorts of beautiful and artistic things for her trousseau. Then her indulgent mother and father humor her smallest wish, to the extent of their ability, and "money flows like water." As one mother once expressed herself to me, "Marion only gets married once, so she might as well have everything her little heart desires." Maybe Marion only gets married once in her lifetime—maybe not. But it is only the first trousseau that worries a mother.

Linens are a most important item of a trousseau, and the bride realizes that she will be judged by the kind of tablecloth at the dinner table and the variety of sheets in her bedroom. "Isn't she a careless housekeeper?" has often spoiled the reputation of a "newlywed." So our June bride revels in hand-embroidered linens—ever the most serviceable and most beautiful type tablecloths, napkins and beddings. Hand some embroideries, combining cluny lace, piles of lovely damask towels of every kind—face towels, glass towels, kitchen towels and bath towels of the finest quality—these fancy and decorative linens such as tea cloths, luncheon sets, bureau scarfs and dollies, hand embroidered with cluny and hand-made fust lace—all these things belong to a bride's trousseau as a matter of course.

Then the wonderful, ecstatic time when she buys her dresses, coats and hats—as well as the million and one accessories which make every one know that a bride is a bride when she goes on her honeymoon. She must have a costume for every occasion. Morning dresses would never do for afternoon wear, and in the evening there must again be a complete change.

Walking dresses are different from riding gowns, and of course she must have several suits, coats and capes.

Every article must be in the latest style, with special hats, shoes and parasols to match each particular costume. When it comes to underclothes, Miss June Bride's dreams come true. At last she may have all the filmy, lacy, silken underwear that for years in vain she coveted. How she screams with delight over the darling crepe de chine "Teddy Bears" and adorable hand-embroidered pink satin pajamas. She blushes prettily when selecting her "wedding gown."

She does not forget one of the "can't-do-without" articles of apparel—corsets. Of course she buys several—a sport corset, a soft, pliable one for dancing, an "every-day" corset and a Sunday corset. For she realizes that they will all give better wear and service when she can "change off" from one to the other. And oh! the exquisite wedding corset, a special one to wear on that day of all days. Truly it is a dream—of satiny, pink broche with a handsome top finished off with cluny lace and pink ribbons, or perhaps rosebuds, and laced with pink silk laces.

But after all, a June bride is a June bride. And everybody "loves a lover."

ANCIENTS TERRORIZED BY TOTAL SUN ECLIPSE

The Earliest Record of An Eclipse Was of Sun in B. C. 2158

Washington, D. C., June 8.—Today's solar eclipse, which will be visible in many parts of the United States, is not likely to arouse any such feeling of fear as similar phenomena aroused among the ancients. Before the dawn of astronomical science eclipses of the sun and moon aroused superstitious alarm and inspired all the primal races with awe. Among the ignorant an eclipse excited the same apprehension and dread experienced on the occasion of an earthquake, a volcanic eruption or a thunderstorm or a cyclone.

The earliest record of an eclipse was that of the sun, observed by the Chinese, B. C. 2158. The record is meagre and merely says: "In the last month of the autumn, the first day of the moon, the heavenly bodies were not in agreement in Fang."

The first record of an eclipse approaching any definiteness of account was the Nineveh eclipse B. C. 762. The records of these ancient eclipses are valuable chiefly on account of the data supplied by the dates and for the religious significance of such occurrences.

The most notable eclipse recorded in history and the one most frequently mentioned in literature and among scholars was that of the sun at the time of the battle between the Lydians and Medes, May 28, B. C. 585. The battle was suspended and peace was made through the good offices of Thales. The most important eclipse, however, in the history of mankind occurred February 15, A. D. 538, and is mentioned in "The Saxon Chronicles." Columbus made good use of his knowledge of eclipses among the savages.

In the infancy of the human race the earth was supposed to be the centre of the universe, with the sun, moon and stars revolving around our globe at a certain fixed distance. Not even the seers and philosophers of ancient times understood the mechanism of the celestial world. Little enough is known about celestial subjects at this day, but an eclipse is the simplest phenomenon of all that occurs among the heavenly bodies.

The early races of men worshiped the sun and regarded its extinction by an eclipse as the work of a demon or the wrath of an unknown and superior god, or of a gigantic monster. In India the dragons Bahu and Ketu were held responsible for the suffering endured by the sun and moon at the time of an eclipse. Sun worship was prevalent among the Egyptians, Phoenicians, Assyrians, Persians and Hittites. All of these nations used the winged disk as their emblem of the
