GOV. WILSON IN RALEIGH

ADDRESS IN AFTERNOON ON RIGHT OF PEOPLE TO GOVERN--AT NIGHT TALKS

OF STONEWALL JACKSON

Governor Wilson was given a splendid reception at the State capital yesterday.

In the afternoon he addressed the people on the Capitol Square, using as a subject "The right of the People to Govern."

At the Capital Club last night he was accorded a reception, and presented a portrait of Stonewall Jackson.

The unveiling of the portrait of Gen. Stonewall Jackson took place in the ball room. Governor Wilson was presented by Dr. Hubert A. Royster, who declared that for the fifteenth time since coming to North Carolina, Governor Wilson had been introduced until his prayers would probably be "from my traducers and introducers, good Lord deliver us." He was presented as a college professor, a real statesman and "the next president of the United States." This brought long and continued applause.

Governor Wilson said he certainly would be unfeeling if he did not appreciate the remarks of his introducer. He declared he could not have better chosen if he himself had chosen his traducers. "I have just the enemies I prefer to have," he said. "I've made all the speeches I know." (Applause.) "I will just in a few words put what we know of Stonewall Jackson.

Two years ago, he said, he resorted to a book which in giving a list of world characters said of General R. E. Lee: "A distinguished American general in the Confederate service." This was well put, he said. One of the marvels of the age is that after a heated contest two men have emerged to have the admiration of mankind. There is no parallel in the history of the world of the estimate in which Lee and Jackson are held by those who know them. He thought General Jackson possessed more singular characteristics than General Lee. There was a generality about Lee which inspired confidence at once, while Jackson was of a Puritanic disposition, possessed rigid regularity, was not what the world calls a "good fellow"; he was not companionable, was a little withdrawn from the world, with a touch of sternness. General Lee had a touch of sternness only in battle, and this is illustrated by an incident which Governor Wilson told to fine effect. Lee had given a boy an order to carry, and the boy, after going some distance and finding conditions different from what General Lee had thought, returned to tell him of the circumstances. Lee rebuked the boy for returning, sent him to the background and called for some one to carry the message. This, said Governor Wilson, shows that it's nobody's business who carries order to bring back information before carrying out the command.

It is the character of Jackson which men admire most; the fidelity to the Christian religion. He said he didn't see how any one can do anything who does not depend upon the Lord Jesus Christ. This man was a militant soldier of the cross; nowhere this side of the crusaders can we get a complete counterpart. He was a man of a most resourceful mind. When Col. Henderson, who was a soldier under Jackson, was chosen by the English government to go to South Africa, a high tribute was paid to Jackson, for the government felt that the strategy practiced by Jackson was exactly suited to the situation in Africa. So the genius of the man goes on translating into new actions

DIAZ. BIDS FAREWELL

Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 1.—Gen. Diaz said his farewell to Mexico today. With his wife and other members of the Diaz family, he boarded the steamer Ypiraga, bound for Spain.

To his country Gen. Diaz delivered a warning. Speaking to the little group of soldiers, who had served as a guard on his trip from the capital, the old man who governed Mexico for more than thirty years by military strength, declared that the present government must yet resort to his methods if peace is to be re-established in Mexico.

"I am grateful to the army," said the ex-President, "that I could count on it to the last moment of leaving Mexican territory. It is the only real defense the country has, and to re-establish peace in this republic, its services will have to be called upon in this crisis."

Tears were slowly rolling down the old man's face now, and his voice was broken.

But he continued, assuring his hearers that should his country at any time become involved in trouble he would be willing to return.

Pointing to the colors of Mexico, the General added: "I would then place myself at the head of the country's loyal forces and, under the shadow of that flag, I would know how to conquer as in times past."

Gen. Huerta grasped his hand and then the two old fighters embraced. One by one the minor officers moved forward and each was embraced by Gen. Diaz and told good-bye.

It was over. The troops had stood at attention for an hour in the broiling heat, but none appeared weary. Gen. Diaz turned to enter the house and the officers gave the command to march. The troops went directly to the cars of a special train on which they began their journey to the capital.

Durham and Winston Secure Lower Rates.

The North Carolina Corporation Commission has won its suit for lower freight rates from Cincinnati to Winston-Salem and Durham, and from Roanoke and Lynchburg to Winston-Salem and Durham.

The Commission has received a letter from Hon. Martin A. Knapp, Chief Justice of the Commerce Court, advising them that his court has denied the petition of the several railroads for a temporary injunction against the Interstate Commerce Commission restraining that Commission from making the roads obey an order giving the North Carolina towns lower rates on all classes of goods. The order will become effective June 15th and from that time on Winston-Salem and Durham will enjoy a reduction of from 10 to 15 per cent on goods shipped.

"What is of more interest to the general public than this decision, however, is the probability of the lower rates applying to other points in the State. Congress has passed an act prohibiting a railroad from charging more for a short haul than for a long haul, and all points in North Carolina between Winston-Salem and Durham and the Virginia cities will enjoy the same rate as these cities unless the Interstate Corporation Commission rules otherwise. Eventually all other points in the State will get the same rates, it is believed, the railroads opposing these reductions with all their power.

Attorney-General T. W. Bickett represented the North Carolina Corporation Commission and members of the Commission made trips to Washington in the interest of the State.

The roads affected are the Norfolk & Western, Southern, Seaboard, and Louisville & Nashville.

The case has been pending since last June and has been pushed by the Corporation Commission and Attorney-General Bickett.

Goldsboro Wins Railway Suit.

Raleigh, N. C., June 1.—The Supreme Court of North Carolina adjourned yesterday for its summer vacation. It will convene again on the last Monday in August. The important case of Westfelt vs. Adams, involving nearly a million dollars, was not decided, but an advisari was taken.

The town of Goldsboro wins its suit against the Atlantic Coast Line Railway. The Board of Aldermen of Goldsboro had Center street paved at the expense of the town and also enacted ordinances that the railroad should move its tracks on that street so as to be level with the street and not interfere by reason of their height above the street with public traffic. The railroad refused to comply with the ordinances and sued out an injunction. A permanent injunction was refused and the railroad appealed. The case is very important as it decides to some extent the relation the railroads occupy towards the people and their responsibility to the people.

The opinion for the Supreme Court is written by Chief Justice Walter Clark. He states: "The plaintiff took its charter expecting that towns and cities would grow up along the line of its road, and knowing that with the development of the country, new roads, and in the cities and towns that new streets would be laid out across its right of way. And it took its charter knowing too that the State would have the right to lay out such roads and new streets and to require the railroad to make such alterations as would prevent the passage over its tracks by the public being impeded."

THE RAINS LAST NIGHT

A GOOD RAIN IN WILSON AND NORTHERN SECTIONS--LIGHT IN EAST AND SOUTH

POOR TOBACCO PROSPECTS

Wilson enjoyed a fine season last night and so did the country north and west of here, but in the eastern and southern sections only slight showers fell, in some sections scarcely enough to lay the dust. Phone messages from the following sections in the county convey the following information.

Elm City—Had a good rain here. Cotton in good shape. Chopped out to stand. Increase in acreage over last year 10 per cent. Corn in good shape. Increase in acreage 10 per cent. Tobacco in poor shape, not half a stand and few plants with which to replant. Decrease in acreage over last year, 50 per cent. Many farmers unable to get tobacco to live have plowed up and planted cotton.

Saratoga—Only slight rain here and less in Gardens. Tobacco in very poor shape. Less than 10 per cent of last year because many farmers, on account of poor seasons and scarcity of plants, have planted cotton land originally intended for tobacco. Corn crop increased over last year and doing well. Cotton acreage increased. Most of it chopped to a stand. This rain not sufficient to set out tobacco and make it live. We are plowing up dry dirt this morning.

Black Creek—Nice shower here but not enough to make tobacco plants live. Tobacco acreage cut this year one-third of last, and that planted not over half a stand. Corn and cotton good and fair stand except in stiff places.

Lucama—Very light rain; not sufficient to set tobacco. Acreage decreased one-third from last year and stand very poor. Cotton fair stand except on stiff land. Corn good.

Stantonsburg—Had a nice shower and will help tobacco growing though not enough to set out plants which are scarce. Acreage short here. Corn and cotton in fair shape.

Bailey—We had a good rain here; corn and cotton in good shape; tobacco very poor.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

COTTON.

New York, June 1.—The cotton market opened as follows: July 15.78; August, 15.20; October, 13.25; December, 13.17. The opening was steady.

At noon the market stood: July, 15.75; August, 15.10; October, 13.25; December, 13.18.

The market closed at 3 p. m.: July, 15.75; August, 15.16; October, 13.20; December, 13.12.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York, June 1.—There was strength at the opening because of the report of the absorption of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. Pennsylvania declined a fraction. The gains in the initial trading of Canadian Pacific were 1-4, Amalgamated Copper 3-8, Reading 5-8, American Tobacco opened 430, off 70 points from yesterday's opening. The curb is active. Americans in London are firm.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, June 1.—The market opened steady. Prices advanced 1-4 to 3-8 cents. Corn opened lower with provisions slightly higher.

The market closed: July Wheat, 90 7-8; July Corn, 54 1-8; July Pork, 14.80 (bid).
