SEA FOAM.
Upon the sand by zephyrs fanned.
The ocean sleeps at noon,
The star-fish slumbers on the strand
The grass upon the dune.
While near and nearer to the land
Revolves the dark simoon.
A bark is sailing to and fro
Upon the summer sea,
In golden glow the ripples flow
Or flash in sparkles free;
And slowly sinks the shore below
The turquoise tinted sea.

The surges thunder on the sand
Beneath the cloud-veiled moon;
The night winds croon unto the strand
A dirge in doleful tune:
While swiftly to the far-off land
Has sped the dread simoon.

A wreck is floating black and slow
Upon the sombre sea,
A corpse upon the undertow
Is tossed about the lee.
Then all is gone—as all shall go—
Into eternity.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT UNIVERSITY OF N. C.

The legislature of 1885 passed an act providing for the establishment of an Agricultural and Mechanical College, and transferred to that college $7,500 of income then used for Agricultural and Mechanical instruction at the University. This transfer of funds has made necessary the reduction of the Faculty of the University, in certain special departments; and a false impression may be made in regard to the effect of this reduction upon the general work of the University. The authorities deem it proper, therefore, to make a statement of the facts.

It had been demonstrated by experience that there was little demand among our people for instruction in certain departments of the University, notwithstanding their importance, and the efficiency and zeal manifested by the professors in charge; and it was evidently the desire of the legislature that certain other special studies be taught at the Agricultural and Mechanical College instead of at the University. Hence, in the readjustment of the work of the University, the authorities have omitted the following special branches of study: Pædagogics, Ornithology, Metallurgy, Mining Engineering, Feeding and Breeding of Animals, and Practical Horticulture.

No diminution nor change has been made in any of the regular collegiate courses of study. The University still has a large Faculty, and offers full and thorough instruction in all general branches of study. Its Faculty now consists of a Professor of Constitutional and International Law and Political Economy a Professor of Mental and Moral Science, a Professor of Mathematics, with an assistant, a Professor of Latin, a Professor of General and Industrial Chemistry, with an assistant, a Professor of Geology and Natural History, with an assistant, a Professor of Natural Philosophy and Engineering, a Professor of English Language and Literature, with an assistant, a Professor of Modern Languages, a Professor of Greek, a fully equipped Law School, making a total of fifteen professors and assistants.

Although the chair of Pædagogics has been abolished, yet a course of study extending through two years has been arranged for the special benefit of students preparing to teach; and a special course of three months is offered, each spring, to teachers who desire to extend their education. The general studies of especial benefit to farmers, merchants, manufacturers and other business men, have been grouped into a small course of two years, for the benefit of students who are unable to complete a full course. The completion of this course would be of great value to any business man. Students of Medicine will find at the University a short course of two years, comprising such general studies as are essential to the education of a physician, and such special studies in Chemistry, Botany, Zoology, Physiology, etc., as are included in the curriculum of all Medical Colleges. By taking this short course at the University, they will not only receive the benefit of training in general studies at the University of their State, but will also save one year at least, which would have to be spent at a Medical College.

Full particulars concerning these shorter special courses, as well as the regular four-year courses, may be had by address in the President or the Bursar of the University, at Chapel Hill.

The blood must be pure if the body would be in perfect condition. Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier makes pure blood, and imparts the rich bloom of health and vigor to the whole body.

Nature usually makes a gallant fight against disease, and when helped by Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier will eradicate it from the system.

FORAKER ON THE RAMPAGE.

The waving of the red bandanna has already had the effect of stirring up Gov. Foraker, of Ohio. He not only denounces Mr. Thurman as a free trader, but says the Republicans have several other things scored up against the venerable ex-Senator. "It is a matter of common report," says Foraker, "that Judge Thurman and all his family carried delicacies to Confederate prisoners while locked up at Camp Chase, three or four miles from here, during the war. I never heard that any Federal soldiers got any of the delicacies. He was a copperhead, out and out, the Republicans in this State won't forget their sons who are sleeping under the sod." Mr. Thurman laughed outright when his attention was called to Foraker's utterances. In regard to the charge of being a copperhead, he said sufficient answer to this was the fact that when a candidate for Governor in 1867 he was beaten by less than 8,000 votes, whereas the previous year the Republicans carried the State by 43,000 majority. This was when his war record was fresh in the minds of the people of Ohio. In regard to the Confederate soldiers' delicacies business, Mr. Thurman said: "How tenderly do I remember what a good Samaritan my wife was in those days. Gov. Dennison and Gov. Todd often spoke of the goodness of Mrs. Thurman in distributing to the sick, forlorn and captive ones fruit and fresh things. Gov. Foraker does not attack me when he mentions those incidents. He attacks Mary," and the Old Roman spoke with pathetic tenderness of the woman who always speaks of him as "Allen, dear," and he to her as "Mary, my dear." Concluding his reference to this matter, Mr. Thurman said: "But let Foraker howl. He and all his little demagogues can go to the old Harry. They cannot ruffle me. Let them howl, I say." It is very evident Foraker has touched up the wrong man this time. The Old Roman hits with an unglued hand.—Baltimore Sun.

The dangers of a malarial atmosphere may be averted if you will occasionally take a dose of Dr. J. H. McLean's Chills and Fever Cure. 50 cents, warranted.

CAN'T STAND THE NEGRO.

One of the richest things we have seen is the card addressed to the editor of the Lenoir Topic, published in its issue of the 13th, and signed "J. P. Robbins," hailing from Boone, N. C., June 4th, 1888. The writer claims to have been a Republican after the "most straightest sect"—that is, when he left Watanga county to go as a delegate to the late "black-and-white" convention which nominated Col. Dockery for Governor. He says he was out-and-out opposed to the present system of county government, as a matter of course, and really thought that the cry of "nigger" brought against the Republican party was originated by demagogues for political purposes. But, that, after attending the convention and seeing (not necessary to mention item No. 2 as inseparable where the crowd was thick and the weather hot) the officious progressiveness of the colored brothers, not only to the extent of acting as secretaries, but in actually managing the body, a dusky chairman once wielding the Speaker's gavel, he took on a big disgust and resolved ever afterwards to stand with the Democratic party. He no longer questions the justice, not to mention a propriety in taste, of the Eastern counties demanding the present, or some other form, of county government, as a security against negro control and negro domination: He declares himself now in favor, unqualifiedly, of the present system as a means of protection to the white people. He takes occasion in his card to formally withdraw from the Republican party "which is responsible for any danger there may be of foisting negro rule upon North Carolina." He closes with an appeal to the young men of the country, warning them not to be carried away "by the specious and deceptive sophistry of Republican orators." He would have them, one and all white men, to do, as he has done—wash their hands of all connection with such a party.—Rockingham Rocket.

If you find indications of malaria in your system take at once Dr. J. H. McLean's Chills and Fever Cure, it will agreeably and effectually eradicate the poison from your system. 50 cents per bottle, warranted.

Many whose occupations are of a sedentary character, often have the feeling of being literally worn out, and are reminded very forcibly of declining years, when it they knew what ailed them, they would find that all their troubles arose from the inaction of their kidneys or liver. If they would at such times take Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm, would again feel the vigor and strength of maturity.

VERACITY AND HONESTY.

Who dares think one thing, and another tell.
My heart detests him as the gates of hell.

Homer said this, and we agree with him; veracity and honesty are qualities in a man's character which he must have, if worthy to be called a man. If in any case these are wanting, nothing can take their place. A man may be gifted in intellect, a ready writer, eloquent in speech, attractive in manners, liberal in gifts, a boon companion in social circles, he may have a saintly face and garb, his professions may be as saintly, and he may talk very piously—if he is not truthful and honest, if he intentionally and habitually deceives and defrauds, he is not fit to live in any civilized community. We may have some respect for a highwayman and an outlaw. There is no hypocrisy about them, they are what they seem to be, and we can protect ourselves against them. For a sanctimonious liar and defrauder, we instinctively feel contempt, though we must pity him for his baseness, and for the shame and suffering which he brings on those who love him and are dependent on him. In whatever you say and do, be an honest man, not because "honesty is the best policy," but it is in accordance with the standard of eternal life, and has the favor of God. Be honest for the simple reason which binds every immortal and accountable man to be honest.

In my humble opinion, dishonesty in professing Christians is a matter which should be denounced by the pulpit and the press more frequently, more fearlessly, more severely, than it is. St. Paul did not hesitate to warn Christians of his day that they must not lie, nor defraud, nor steal, and that "the Lord is the avenger." Too often we are painfully reminded that there is need of this warning now and here.—E. H. D. in Living Church

Sickness comes uninvited, and strong men and women are forced to employ means to restore their health and strength. The most successful of all known remedies for weakness, the origin of all disease, is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier.

ANECDOTE OF LAFAYETTE.

Shortly after Lafayette's second return from America, he was at Versailles when the king was about to review a division of troops. Lafayette was invited to join in the review. He was dressed in the American uniform, and was standing by the side of the Duc de Coude, when the king, in his tour conversation with the officers, came to him, and, after speaking on several topics, asked him questions about his uniform and the military costume in the United States. The king's attention was attracted by a little medal, which was attached to his coat in the manner in which the insignia of orders are usually worn in Europe, and he asked what it was. Lafayette replied that it was a symbol which it was the custom of the foreign officers in the American service to wear, and that it bore a device. The king asked what was the device; to which Lafayette answered that there was no device common to all, but that each officer chose such as pleased his fancy. "And what has pleased your fancy?" inquired the king. "My device," said the young general, pointing to his medal, "is a liberty pole standing on a broken crown and sceptre." The king smiled, and, with some pleasantness about the republican propensities of a French marquis in American uniform, turned the conversation to another topic. Coude looked grave, but said nothing.—Ex.

Kidney and bladder troubles produce a feeling of utter despondency. A genial stimulant and tonic, and an unfailing remedy for all such troubles, may be found in Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm.

ANECDOTE OF MUNKACZY.

A Vienna gentleman went to see Munkaczy in Paris the other day, and explained that he would like to buy some pictures by him; "only," he added, "I cannot afford to pay the price you now ask. Could you tell me where I could find some of your early work, painted when you were a young man in Hungary—something that I could buy cheap?" "Certainly; there are two or three hundred in my native village of Munkaczy—the houses I painted when I was Michael Leib, painter and glazier."

No need to take those big cathartic pills. Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pellets are more agreeable and effective.

Learning will accumulate wonderfully if you add a little every day. Do not wait for a long period of leisure. Pick up the book and gain one new idea, if no more. Save that one and add another as soon as you can. Says the old Scotch adage, "Many a little makes a mickle."

For sick headache, female troubles, neuralgic pains in the head take Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pellets, 25 cts. a vial.
