AMENDMENT.

By Captain Julian H. Picet Hertford County.

The amendment now being so hotly discussed is at once plain, practical and sensible. It is couched in ambiguous terms to tempt the cred ulous or deceive the ignorant. The language used to convey its meaning is manly, and capable of no double twisting. The object proposed is not put in the back-ground covered with clauses capable of two constructions.

It is not, nor does it pretend hide its meaning and intent. intended to rouse no bitterness, draw tightly no party lines. It an honest appeal from white men white men, to assert the dignity our race, it makes no appeal to the negro, but honestly avows, that the intention of the bill is to disfranchise DR. W. L. DAVIS him, as far as it lays in our power to do so in a legal way. The better informed from reading, from history teaching, know that it will tend to better the negro in every way. No rational man fears negro dom ination in a national sense. The idea is simply preposterous. Simoon that withers the foliage certain seasons of many a fair isle in the inland sea, is not dreaded in other localities, but still it is deadly in its effect where it prevails. Marshes must be drained to make productive, and their malaria aborted to make them heathful.

The bill is covered or veiled with no false or delusive covering; it does not lay in ambush, but goes straight to attain its end.

It is not revolutionary in tendency, but proposes to affect its object by legal means and in a legal way.

The Black Belts of the South are terribly scourged. It is mere prattle, mere finesse to say that the negro not to blame, that left to himself, he is harmless and obedient. That natural condition of affairs does not meet the argument. It is an appeal for a false humanity, none to reason and to the logic of events. The hooded snake of India is a terrible and an implacable warfare is waged for their exterpation. It would be folly to desist in its destruction, be cause he is confined to the jungle and does not infest the mountain brow.

All this discussion as to the meaning and intended effect of the Amend ment seemto me but a waste of breath

Unless a man is an idiot, he can not fail to see that it intended to disfranchise no white man learned unlearned from sea to mountain now or hereafter; that it is to disfranchise every negro it possible can.

W. R. SMITH'S COLLEGE, LEXINGTON, KY.,

NOW or until 1908,is forever put up- stay. The White man has lavished OUR WHITE on the roll of honor, citizens endowed money to educate him, spent millions with no saving clause of the right of ballot forever. After 1908 the educational test comes in, and that is where the demagoge and fool comes in with their pretended alarm at there ever being a time in North Carolina, when a negro can vote and a white man cannot. Well, that is just what the bill means, nothing more and nothing less. But that application is for ALL, white or black, who at tain majority after the lapse of that

The veriest tyro in politics knows and knows well, that any other framng of the bill would have wrought its destruction, and simply because it would have brought a clash between Federal and State laws. And with it how poor a grace does this argument come from those that employ it, from the very men, who for thirty years have used the negro to affect political results. And these results waving politics, have been disastrous to society.

A determination is fixed to push aside the negro from the ballot, and the object will be accomplished in no other than by an honest and

Sifted down then the question to answer is this:

Is it good policy to UNBALLOT the negro? Has he in a political sense done any good to the state or to the country at large, or rather has he no done harm? Every one will concede the fact that his vote has done the Republican party no good-effected no results in the nation and for the nation. He has and is still confined to the South and that is and ever will be solidly democratic just as long as the negro votes. Then whatever good has been done in State or Na tion has been achieved in spite of him. He is endowed with no power to do good, but a vast deal to harm: he is an annoyance and nuisance to be gotten rid of. His political presence excites anger, hate,

The bill proposes to make him, ust what the antagonists of the bill claim him to be, harmless, inoffensive and obedient.

History teaches that no two races can live together in peace and harmony. The Superior will dominate the inferior must submit. In no other land save in this has the inferior been treated with justice much less kindness. England practices such magnanimity among her Hindos-

The intention of this bill is to put the negro in position wherein he can be treated more kindly still, and that is into his normal position. It does not attack, nor does it dare to attack any personal or religious rite. It only desires to make him harmless, to de him no harm. The negro is incap able of self government; this is no dogma, but an established fact. reply in denial comes, saying he has never had a chance. Is this so? He come into close touch with the Roman and Phoenician absorbing neither their militiary spirit nor intellectural glory.

to enlighten, and will cheerfully spend more in the same righteous cause. Every white man feels the nameless something that seperates him from the negro, a barrier, and let that barrier of race and blood be made impregnable by the fortress of disfranchisement.

There has been no honest politics in our state in many years, nor there be, until this great, incubus removed. White men dare not vide on political issues. The line is the only burning issue, arefrightened that theirchildren(white) may not be able to vote in 1908. Why one suppose that a white man is voluntarily ignorant? Does not every one know that it is the result of circumstances, isolation and poverty. Give him free schools, and his little ones will mock your fears. Fools talk, wise men think.

In 1850, five decades a 20, I heard the immortal Clay, and the great Baptist preacher Fuller, speak to a large and intelligent audience. Their theme was Liberia, the negro republic on the West shores of Africa, it had been a Republic many years before that date. Theymade a burning appeal for material help for the young adventure. Theirappeal was successful. Captain Canot writes in his twenty years slave, that Liberia is a fine fertile and healthy land.

Has Liberia retograded or advanced under the fostering care of benevolence individual and national? The whites (Boers) established a republic but a few years ago in Africa, assisted by no out side help, and by indom itable energy, converted a wilderness cultivated farms, has become so formidable as to meas not and are not ours. The negro disfranchised for as least eight years will bring peace to our distracted councils, will restore order and harmony in State and local government. In those eight years new conditions will arise. In the meantime let us confront present conditions. The future will adjust itself. Eliminiate this element from politics-this bone of contention, and all friction between the races will vanish. The negro if in those years exceedingly hopeful. becomes qualified to vote, will vote, if he votes at all, intelligentlyalong party not color lines.
