

Furniture of the Roanoke River Basin presented

WINDSOR- The late Elizabeth "Buffie" Stevenson Ives, transplanted Southern Pines resident, and sister of former presidential candidate Gov. Adlai Stevenson II, would be proud.

And she would be pleased beyond measure that a local historic preservation lecture series bearing her name soon will host furniture and antiques expert Robert Leath, chief museum decorative arts curator from Winston-Salem's Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts (MES-DA).

Leath will appear at Windsor's historic

Hope Plantation on Saturday, Feb 11 beginning at 10 a.m. to speak about Furniture of the Roanoke River Basin.

Leath will glean much of his subject matter from a viewing of furniture collected and displayed in the 1803 Hope Mansion and the 1763 King-Bazemore House located on the Hope grounds.

He will enhance his lecture by drawing material from the groundbreaking 1988 book by John Bivins titled The Furniture of Coastal North Carolina, 1700-1820.

Now 30 years following publication of the Bivins book, Leath is excited about sharing new information and discoveries regarding some well-known regional furniture makers.

It is particularly noteworthy that the heretofore mysteriously shrouded "WH" cabinetmaker from Bertie County has been identified as William Seay. Leath also will disclose new information about Edenton cabinetmaker Samuel Black whose career and work actually spanned both sides of the Chowan River.

Attendees will be invited to view a special exhibition of furniture made by local area African-American craftsmen and artisans.

Attendees at Saturday's lecture are invited to assemble in the Roanoke Chowan Heritage Center at 10:00 a.m.

Curator Leath's presentation will begin at 10:30 a.m., and will end at 12 noon.

Lunch will be served from noon until 12:45 p.m.

Curator Leath will lead a walkthrough of the Hope Mansion from 1 p.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Tuition for the entire event, including lunch, will be $40 per person. Attendees may register in advance by phoning Hope at 252-794-3140

Landowners can apply for tree planting funds

BY LESLIE BEACHBOARD

WINDSOR - Landowners in 93 North Carolina counties whose timberlands were damaged by Hurricane Matthew or wildfires last year may apply for state funds to help with the tree planting costs.

The Disaster Recovery Act of 2016 included $1 million for the Timber Restoration Fund administered by the N.C. Forest Service.

"Funding for the program is available now, and landowners are encouraged to apply early.

This is a one-time time-limited fund designed to help landowners who have shovel-ready projects that can be completed by April 30, 2018," said North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

To be eligible for the program, projects must be between five and 100 acres, and the landowner must be ready to implement site preparation and tree planting practices.

All North Carolina counties are eligible for the program except Alamance, Durham, Granville, Orange, Person, Vance and Warren.

Interested landowners should contact their county ranger's office to apply.

To learn more about the Timber Restoration Fund, visit <http://nc-forestservice.gov> and follow the links under "Managing Your Forest."
