Saving children from around the world

When Azalea's family learned she had cancer, they were referred to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital® from their home in Jamaica. They were familiar with St. Jude and knew it was the right place for their tenacious little girl. Treatments invented at St. Jude have helped push the overall childhood cancer survival rate from 20% when we opened to more than 80% today, and we won't stop until no child dies from cancer.

*"We knew St. Jude was the best possible place for a child with cancer, and that's what we wanted for her."
