Foundation awards grant

The board of directors of the North Carolina Community Foundation recently awarded a $25,000 Disaster Relief Fund grant to the UNC-Chapel Hill Coastal Resilience Center to support the Hurricane Matthew Recovery and Resilience Initiative, according to Laura Beasley, statewide grants committee chair and a member of the board of directors.

The grant funding will support the Center's planning and mitigation work in six communities impacted by Hurricane Matthew through a collaborative program between the University of North Carolina, North Carolina State University and Duke University. Students who are in the Natural Hazards Resilience Certificate program will work with the Recovery and Resilience Initiative in the following communities: Fair Bluff, Kinston, Lumberton, Princeville, Seven Springs and Windsor.

NCCF CEO Jennifer Tolle Whiteside said that the Foundation's support continues to focus on helping to meet long-term recovery needs in eastern North Carolina.

"We are confident that the NCCF Disaster Relief Fund is having an impact, thanks to the generosity of donors who gave to support eastern North Carolina in the aftermath of Hurricane Matthew," she said.

scene investigation, which included gathering evidence and interviewing witnesses.

Following the investigation, warrants were obtained charging Mitchell, Bazemore and Higgs in the incident.

Warrants were drawn charging all three men with discharging a weapon into an occupied dwelling/moving vehicle, felony conspiracy and injury to real property.

Two of the men - Mitchell and Higgs - were arrested in Pitt County on March 28, and are currently being held in the Pitt County Detention Center under a $370,000 secured bond. Bazemore was arrested in Martin County the same day, and placed in the Bertie-Martin Regional Jail under a $50,000 secured bond.

Bazemore is slated to make his first appearance in Bertie County District Court today (Wednesday) while Mitchell and Higgs will each have their first appearance on April 18.
