

Political Announcements

For Congress

To the Democratic Voters of the 11th District—

Having qualified with the Election Board, I offer myself as a candidate for the nomination for Congress from this District, subject to the action of the Democratic primary June 4th. I have been a life-long Democrat, never held or wanted any public office, and seek this one for no personal reason. I have been in business in this District for forty years, during which time I have seen the country change from a land of promise and opportunity to a land of bankruptcy and drab despair. The people are just as energetic as they ever were. Our fields and factories produce more abundantly than ever before, yet notwithstanding this, want and privation are increasing in the country all the time.

There must be some basic reason for this drastic change and we have not far to go to find it. Our ills are economic and not political. Politicians will never solve the problem. The principal reason for the condition we find ourselves in is found in one word, "monopoly." In 1866 the first mercantile corporation was chartered in this country. Since then they have covered the land like a pall of darkness from one end to the other and in the last five years they have forced such a liquidation of all values as the world has never seen since the flood. There can be no prosperity in this country until recovery of this blighting cause is removed. Nothing done or contemplated so far in Washington touches the seat of the trouble, but on the contrary adds to its intensity as witness the course of the stock market.

No nation can tax itself into prosperity. On the contrary, it is the sure road to perdition. If I am elected, I will introduce a bill drawn by a Constitutional lawyer prohibiting any individual, firm or corporation engaged in the distribution of commodities from having a place of business in more than one locality anywhere in the United States. Let them grow as large as they can in their home town, but keep the business of other places sacred to the use of its own inhabitants and for its own upbuilding. This proposition is too fundamentally sound to need any explanation. The time has come when we must have a redistribution in this country not of wealth, but of opportunity. Pass such a law and the billion dollars which we are accused of hoarding as if it were a crime would spring to life in local activity, taking millions of men out of the breadlines and putting them back to work. We should have a strict limitation upon the size of personal fortunes as well as other aggregations of capital.

We should have a national corporation law taking that function away from the States which have abused it and nothing should have the privilege of incorporation except those agencies which perform some useful service to the community at large. No private or personal enterprise should have the privilege as each generation should liquidate itself as far as possible and leave the stage clear for the next succeeding one, which will have the same necessity for supporting existence.

Governmental debts should be scaled down commensurate with the decline in all other values as a bond is no more sacred than the home of the humblest citizen. My candidacy should interest every voter who is having difficulty in making a living because the measures which I stand for, if enacted into law, would make living easy for a hundred million American citizens. When you go to the primary, "remember the name."

We Hope It Was the Front Half

A SHAKESPEREAN actor was left stranded in a small town in Michigan. This was in the days when there still were Shakespearian actors.

He obtained board at the local hotel until a remittance arrived to take him back to Chicago. As he had no funds for tipping purposes he got scant attention from the servants.

One day he pushed and pushed the push-button in his room without getting an answer. Then he got out of bed, put on his trousers and overcoat, turned the coat-collar up about his bare throat and ventured through the hallway until he came to the rotunda opening down upon the office floor. "Bellboy! Bellboy!" he called in his best speaking voice. "Watcher want?" answered back a youthful mental impertinently. "Bellboy," said the Thespian with much dignity, "I desire my laundry to be brought to me forthwith!" "G'wan!" said the boy. "You didn't have but half a shirt when you hit this town."

"That," said the actor, "is the laundry to which I refer." (American News Features, Inc.)

The Glendale gooseberry is recommended for trial in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and those parts of Western North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, and Kentucky, where the Downing and Poorman varieties do not succeed. The department also recommends it for the lighter soils in regions where other sorts ordinarily succeed. It is not equal to the Poorman, Oregon, or Downing where those varieties thrive.

The Glendale grows more vigorously than other varieties, growing as high as 6 or 8 feet. It is more resistant to leaf spot and mildew, grows readily from cuttings, and yields heavily. The fruit is as large or a little larger than the Downing, has a smooth thin skin
