

Herd of Pure Bred Cattle Started With One Heifer

J. J. Tucker and his son, J. S. Tucker, of Barnes Creek, Montgomery county, have made an excellent demonstration of how the owners of small farms may build up a herd of pure bred cattle by the purchase of one heifer.

Back in September 1922, ten years ago, Mr. Tucker and his son invested $95 won by hard work in a pure bred Guernsey heifer purchased at Mooresville in Iredell county. When the heifer freshened with her first calf, Mr. Tucker disposed of the old scrub cow which had provided the family milk supply for some years and determined to keep only pure breeds thereafter. Starting with the one pure bred and her calf, they have bred 25 animals, all being descendants of the original heifer. They have sold ten pure bred bulls to other farmers in the county and nearly all of these animals are in service. In addition, the Tuckers sold five females to farmers in other communities to aid them in starting pure bred herds of their own.

Thus, says A. C. Mimrey, dairy extension specialist at State College, has the influence of this one farm become felt over the county and more pure bred cattle are grown there now as a result.

Mr. Kimrey says the Tuckers get a young three-year-old bull from C. L. Neel of Salisbury, use the animal on their herd until he is full grown and then turn him back to Mr. Neel. In this way inbreeding is prevented and good blood is kept in the herd at little expense.

The Tuckers have sold $1,703 in cash from the herd and still have ten cows, including the original one. These ten animals have a cash value nearly equal to the cash receipts.

We also wish to extend many thanks to Dr. Lyle, who rendered such faithful service during his sickness.
