Mrs. Martha Cobb and J. C. Mell.

Final Exercises

The commencement address Tuesday night was delivered by Blackburn W. Johnson, editor of The Franklin Press and Highlands Maconian. The salutatory was made by Wendell Cleveland, who also made the response for the class to Principal Sumner after the presentation of diplomas. Miss Louise Beale read the class history; Harry Batey recited the class prophecy; Miss Mary E. Potts probated the class will, and Miss Fula May Potts delivered the valedictory address.

All of the exercises were well attended.

51 GRADUATES GET DIPLOMAS

to enter high school next fall. Diplomas were presented 51 graduates by Mr. Houk.

A sound amplifying system installed by the graduating class as a gift to the school enabled the audience to hear the speakers much more clearly than at previous commencement exercises.

The students speaking and their subjects were as follows:

John E. Lancaster—“Education for Citizenship.”

Vance Fouts—“Why Public Education?”

Bernice Seay—“Educating for a Better Tomorrow.”

Musical entertainment was furnished by the Misses Virginia Slagle and Beverly Brown, members of the senior class.

RELIGION AND REVOLUTION

Religion, as history records, is one of the world's most revolutionary forces; and yet, strange to say, it is one of the world's greatest barriers to revolution. Hitler is discovering that in Germany, as others have discovered it in other lands; and it still appears that his effort to bend the churches to his will and purposes is proving the most difficult undertaking to which he has yet set his hand.

The Berlin correspondent of the New York Times thinks that the church situation in Germany is now approaching a “dramatic climax.”

On the one hand there is the bitter resistance on the part of many of the Protestants against the Nazification of their churches. On the other hand there is the growing resentment on the part of German Catholic prelates whose recent outspoken denunciation of the Nazi program is described by the correspondent of The Times as “amazing.”—ASHEVILLE CITIZEN.

Fire Chief Urges Smokers To Be Careful

Derald Ashe, Franklin fire chief, made an appeal this week for smokers to exercise more care in the disposal of matches and cigar and cigarette stubs. He also advised smokers to refrain from smoking in bed. “Smoking,” he pointed out, “is a comfort and pleasure to a great many persons. But, if the smoker is not careful, he may start a fire which would be decidedly uncomfortable and costly.”

Carelessly discarded matches and stubs cause many fires in offices, homes, factories, along highways and in the country every year, according to the chief. One way to be certain that the match you toss away is not burning is to snap it between your fingers before letting it go. “If every American were to make this a habit,” declared Chief Ashe, “our national fire loss would be smaller by thousands of dollars every year.”

No cigarette or cigar stubs (with special emphasis on the former, since they are more dangerous) should be thrown away without being absolutely cold. If you are out of doors, grind the stub carefully under your foot. Nearly every home where there are smokers has its quota of scorched tables and window sills, carpets and furniture. Much publicity has been given at times to the money spent every year in this country for tobacco. If the cost of replacing articles ruined by the careless use of that tobacco were figured in, the annual smoking expense would truly be staggering.

FOOLISH FANCIES

APRIL showers bring May flowers. May flowers bring June brides bring—Dear me! Why should I tell you? I mean, why should I, if I could. You see, I've never been a June bride, and I don't know of a single thing that they are supposed to do, if they should happen to become a June bride.

Which reminds me that my brother's wife was a June bride. She's smart, too. In fact, she's very smart. My brother told her one day that he would like some string beans for dinner. She replied that she would gladly cook him some string beans if he would only tell her how many strings he thought it would take.

My brother told me (confidently, of course) that before he married her that he could just eat her. He now says that he wishes to heck he had.

Oh, well, maybe he will have the opportunity yet, if this depression continues. Such is life!

Apologies to Capt. Lyle Brooks, but I can't keep it any longer. It would have made a stone wall crack to have seen him pushing a one-wheel truck the other morning. A wheel-barrow it was, I meant. Just imagine, folks, seeing the Empire State building bending down to dust off the top of Angel's Drug Store. Well, that was my thought as our dear captain bent down to grasp the handles of the “buggy.” Please pardon me while I take time out for a laugh.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Several have complained about the very nonsensical answers to their questions. Please, folks, don't give up hope. My answer box has had a slight cold, and is not “just right,” yet. After a few more applications of Viik's Vaporub, I think it will be O. K.

Q.—Why do birds fly South in the Fall?

A.—Because it's too far to walk.

Q.—Who made the first rotten gin?

A.—For gosh sakes! Are they making it from rotten now?

Q.—Can you suggest anything better than a cold shower after a horse-back ride?

A.—Sure! An overstuffed chair.

Q.—Where is “Nigger” Young's home?

A.—Anywhere he hangs his hat. On second thought, though, I don't believe he has a hat.

Q.—What do you think these modern times are coming to?

A.—History.

Q.—Do you have a red scarf and tam?

A.—That's personal; but as I have ambitions of being a president, or at least being two vice-presidents, I'll truthfully say that I have.

Q.—Will Jiggs' daughter ever be as ugly as Maggie?

A.—No, because she uses Polly Peachtree face lotions.

Q.—Do you like to go fishing?

A.—My fishing days are over. I went fishing one day, and instead of landing a fish, I was hooked myself.

MUSINGS OF A CANTEEN CLERK—Things I can do without: Wingate Carter's singing of “That Certain Thing”; a certain Franklinitic's profane thoughts of me; Ben Bernie's lazy drawl; L. B. Hargett's piano playing; That stray hen that makes the canteen counter it's home; Women magazine peddlers; Dorothy Dix's advice to the love-lorn; Some girls use dumb-bells to get color on their faces, and some use color on their faces to get dumb-bells.

It makes no difference how dumb a woman is she understands love completely, but however bright a man is, he don't know the half of it.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. REBECCA ANN WEST RAMSEY

Rebecca A. West Ramsey joined her home church, the Snow Hill Methodist church, in her youth. She lived a consecrated Christian until her death. She was strong in spirit, she worked for her church and Sunday school. Her advice was good in all God's works. She could see her time was drawing near. Her hope was great, her work was done. Oh, how brave she was when the end came.

She looked out for her dear children and loved ones to meet her beyond. She was of fine moral character. She looked forward for advancements. She helped to get good schools for her children and neighbor's children. She was an uplift to her community. She was good to the poor and off-cast.

She was an intelligent woman and a fine instructor. I learned to love her when we were young. I went to school three terms to her. She taught us about God as well as our studies. She was a good mother and wife. One by one, we'll all be gathered home.

—Mrs. J. L. West, Sr.
