any part of these fees and other expenses.

Tells of Work

"When I went out of Congress in March, 1929, the North Carolina park commission voluntarily offered me employment as attorney in connection with the acquisition of park lands. The salary was fixed entirely by the park commission, and during one period of my service was raised, without any request by me, on account of the efficiency of my work. I had supervision of all the titles of lands lying between the Pigeon River and the Tennessee, a distance of fifty miles. There were more than four hundred tracts to be acquired. Some of them aggregated as much as 50,000 acres. It was difficult, detailed work. For two years I worked day and night in order to expedite the acquisition of these lands and I certainly am in no mood to apologize to any one for this work. I had the right to accept this appointment and the North Carolina Park Commission had a right to give it to me if they so desired. Just how any sane person can question the propriety of my right to perform this service is beyond my comprehension. The question the people should be interested in is as to the efficiency and value of the service rendered. x x x x

"I feel that it is but a fair request to the public to get its information from those who were responsible for this work, including Mr. Verne Rhodes, the executive secretary of the park commission, as well as Mr. Cammerer, who had supervision of the Rockefeller fund. The intimation that Mr. Cammerer was dissatisfied and sought to have the old park commission changed, because of expenses including attorneys' fees, is pure, unadulterated fabrication. The facts to the contrary are too well known. The new park commission came in and has discharged its duties fully and well. Practically all of the lands, except the Suncress and Ravensford property, had been acquired before I left the active service of the park commission in 1931. The inability of the commission to agree with the owners resulted in long, and to my mind, unfortunate litigation, against which I advised. I regretted the inability to agree with the Ravensford people. It is certainly not due to any fault of mine, and the only way to settle the matter was through litigation, which has consumed much time and labor.

"I rendered legal service of all kinds to the park commission, conscientiously and I believe efficiently. "Much agony seems to be expressed over the opening of the park. The formal opening intended was a mere celebration. The park is now open to the public. I have been instrumental, as a member of congress, in securing, through allotment by the president, an additional $1,550,000 for the purchase of the necessary lands. I have secured two and one-half million dollars to be set aside for building roads, and this work is now not in prospect, but in actual operation. Any one visiting New Found Gap can see the great development under way. In addition, a large sum of money was secured for the construction of other roads and trails and this work is now under way.

"There has been a superintendent rangers on both sides of the mountains on both sides of the mountain, and with fire equipment and thorough patrol of all the park area. Recently it has been opened for fishing, under federal supervision.

"I merely point to these things to show just what has been accomplished. There is still some work to do. I have work on the park to do here. I shall try to do it without regard to these nagging, malicious attacks, and leave the matter to the common sense and honesty of the people."

In The Here and Now

By Rev. Norvin C. Duncan

THE writer of Psalms 79-80 recounts the disasters that have befallen Israel, attributing them to the punishment of Jehovah, because Israel had forsaken His laws. He prays for the return of favor and the help of God. He wonders how long the wrath of God shall endure and calls upon Him to witness that their enemies mock them because their God hath forsaken them.

That is the generally accepted idea in the Old Testament. God becomes angry and punishes His people. The New Testament gives us a different picture. There, in the face of Jesus, we see that God is love and manifests His power in saving and helping a world broken by its wrong-doing.

The world has been a long time in coming to the realization that the laws of life carry within themselves the penalty for violating them. Those Old Testament writers saw the inevitable consequences of violated law and attributed the consequences to the fact that God was angry and punished His people. They failed to see that they were simply reaping what they had sown—the results of having acted in a certain way. Only in the fact that effects always follow causes, something inherent in creation, can we say that God visits His people with chastisement. Man is his own executioner.

Nor does ignorance of law prevent the effects of violating it. Epidemics such as typhus, typhoid, smallpox, once were thought to be divine visitations, are now known to be the result of violation of the laws of living. God does not send sickness. It is a terrible thing to attribute such things as smallpox, diphtheria, or cancer to a kind, loving, God. On occasions Jesus attributed sickness to the devil, and He healed all manner of sickness and disease as a part of His work of saving from the power of the evil one.

The growth of a nation in wealth, selfishness and power has always excited the envy, jealousy and dislike of other nations, leading to war or internal strife. The rich people of the world today cannot enjoy their riches because there are in concentration of wealth and its consequent lack of distribution the elements of destruction. They invite unfriendly forces. These friendly forces appear today in racketeers, kidnapers and other pernicious influences.

Jesus warned of the danger of riches. Wealth does something to its possessor, and it does something to other people. The rich men of the world are not any worse than other men. Often they are good men, but the system which permits them to accumulate so much wealth is bad for them, and bad for society.

If the preachers had not misinterpreted Jesus and gave to His words the meaning that a rich man would go to hell when he died we should be much better off in the world today. Jesus was talking about what riches would do to men here and now. He declared it was of no profit to gain the world and lose the soul—and we are aware today that our troubles are due to having a world of things and no soul. We have neglected the spirit, and the spirit is in revolt.

The way out is the way of obedience to law. We must get a new sense of values; we must get character. There can be no effective material recovery until material prosperity springs out of a new mind and a new heart.

FOOLISH FANCIES

BY ROY L. GRIFFIN
Of N. C. Camp F-9
Civilian Conservation Corps

I WAS talking with a certain gentleman in Franklin last week, when his little girl came running up to him.

"Daddy," she says, "I want a nickel for candy, and I want to spend the night with so-and-so." "Here's a nickel for candy," replied the aforesaid gentleman, "but you'll have to see your mother about spending the night with your little girl friend."

After the youngster had left he turned to me and said, "You know, that kid of mine thinks more of that 'Foolish Fancies' column of yours than anything else at all."

Well, I'm telling you, folks, if President Roosevelt had said that I wouldn't have felt any better. Maybe I'll end up by telling bed-time stories to kids. (I love 'em) That's as good an occupation as anyone could have now-a-days. Huh?

When I was home a couple of months ago my father (a grand old gent) asked me how old I was. When I replied that I was almost twenty-one he turned to my kid brother and said, "Good gosh, son, I'll have to start taking every cent you make."

I WAS walking down the street the other day when I met an old actor. He must have been reciting from some play, because I heard him say several times, "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse."

"Wouldn't a mule do?" I innocently asked.
