

TODAY and TOMORROW

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

WASHINGTON . . . distance
 Many years ago someone called Washington "the city of magnificent distances," and the appellation has stuck. I was again reminded of it last week, when on a trip to the Nation's capital I had to call at a dozen or more Federal offices.

Washington is more like the great European cities than any other American municipality. Its growth has been horizontal instead of vertical. About the tallest building in the city is the National Press Club, and that is only 13 stories. Most of the Government buildings are under six stories high.

It is not at all uncommon to have to travel three or four miles, or farther, to get from one Government building to another, and in the course of a day around Federal offices the visitor has to walk along literally miles of corridors.

It occurred to me that one of the reasons why Government business takes so long to transact may be the time and energy wasted in getting from one office to another. Washington is not geared up to speed and efficiency.

BEAUTY . . . in marble
 Major L'Enfant, the brilliant Frenchman who planned the Federal city, conceived it as the most beautiful city in the world. It seems more beautiful every time I visit it—and I've known Washington since 1881. In another fifty years there will be nothing to compare with it for beauty.

The Supreme Court moved into the most beautiful of all Washington buildings, last week. It is built all of white marble. Outside, Vermont marble, corridors of Alabama marble, interior courts of Georgia marble, floors of Italian, Spanish and African marble.

Everything about the building is freshly new and gleaming, except the Justices' chairs. They sit in the old, comfortable chairs they are accustomed to. When it was proposed to buy a new chair for Justice Cardozo, he replied that the old chair that was good enough for Justice Holmes for 20 years was good enough for him.

TENANTS . . . everywhere
 In spite of the multitude of Government buildings, there isn't room for all the new Federal offices. Uncle Sam is the biggest tenant in Washington. After taking all the available office space in town, public offices are spreading out into hotels, apartments and private houses.

Some of the "temporary" buildings put up during the World War are still in use by Federal offices. Uncle Sam is Washington's largest taxpayer. He pays half the cost of running the District of Columbia. In return for the Federal Government's assumption of the tax burden, the people of the District, 60 years ago, gave up their right to vote on local affairs. If they want to vote on state or national questions, they can do so in their old home towns.

HOUSING . . . problem
 I hear a lot about the "housing shortage," but I don't know of any place where it is as acute as in Washington. More than 100,000 new Federal employees have been trying to crowd into the city in the past two years. There just isn't room for them.

I heard of one landlord who had 145 applications on file for his next vacancy. Another built a 50-family apartment house and rented every apartment from the plans before the foundations were in! Rents are down most everywhere else, but not in Washington.

One result has been the spilling of population away out into the Maryland suburbs and across the Potomac into the beautiful Virginia hills. I met one Federal official who "commutes" to Washington every day from his home in Baltimore, forty miles distant.

FLAG . . . salute
 I read in the papers the other day that a Boston schoolboy had been disciplined for failing to salute the flag. Somehow, I don't feel that compulsion is the best way to instill patriotism. Saluting the flag is no evidence of how anybody really feels. It is a meaningless gesture unless it comes from the heart out. In Germany under Hitler everybody is forced to salute the Nazi emblem, but you can't make me believe they all mean it.

NEW YORK . . . The flame-pagodas of Cambodian Temples are interpreted into the above colorful fall hat, a new creation which takes designers' breath away. . . . It is of black velvet trimmed with cut-out leaves and graced with multi-colored sinias.

If I could teach every child what our flag really means, the first thing I would try to make them understand is that it does not stand and never has stood for compulsion, even compulsion to salute it. If Old Glory means anything, it means—to me at least—the completest liberty of every individual under it to believe and behave as he pleases, so long as he doesn't try to interfere with other people's beliefs and behavior.
