FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

KING . . . human nature
Edward VIII became King of England on the death of his father, George V, without even a mild protest from those of his subjects who still believe that the throne belongs by right to the family of Stuart. Less than 200 years ago, in 1746, the last battle fought on British soil resulted in the defeat of the army led by Charles Edward Stuart the "Young Pretender," grandson of King James II, who had been deposed and banished in 1688.

Until 1901, when the present King's grandfather succeeded his mother Queen Victoria, there was a constant fear in England of another "Jacobite Rising" to put the House of Stuart back on the throne. Fingerbowl were long banned at important public banquets, lest some secret adherent to the Stuart cause, in drinking the toast "To the King" should hold his wine glass over the fingerbowl and so drink to "The King over the water."

In later years the Jacobites have contented themselves with gathering at the statue of Charles I in Trafalgar Square on January 20 each year denouncing the reigning monarch as a usurper. This year however, they postponed the denunciation to March 27, so as not to annoy the mourners for King George V.

Some of my Canadian friends tell me that their Jacobite "Society of the White Rose," has a jolly time at their annual dinners, denying the claim to the British throne of the monarch at whose call they would all go out and fight for the Empire. Human nature is funny in most of its manifestations.

WOMEN . . . bonus

Nobody knows exactly how many American women took an actual part in the World War but there were more than 14,500 of them regularly enlisted in the military and naval service of the United States, who are entitled to a bonus on the same basis as the men who served. They are mostly members of the Army Nurse Corps, enlisted nurses who served in the Navy hospitals, and survivors of that interesting corps of young women who were given the rating of "Yeoman" in the Navy, and went through the war in uniforms, doing clerical work in the Navy Department in Washington and at the various naval bases.

Probably fully as many women did war service overseas in the volunteer organizations such as the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army and the rest, and several times as many were engaged in war work on this side; but only the ones who were on Uncle Sam's payroll are due for the bonus.

Folks who have the idea that all women are pacifists, don't remember the enthusiasm of the women of America the last time we went to war.

WEALTH . . . needs watching

When young John Jacob Astor III quit his $25 a week job with the steamship line of which his half-brother, Vincent Astor, is vice-president, a lot of people spoke sneeringly of the "idle rich," jumping to the conclusion that the young man was nothing but a "playboy" after all. But to me his explanation that the 48 hours of work every week took up so much of his time

Florida's Citrus Queen

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. . . Miss Beatrice Hyuck (above), of Lake Alfred, is now ruling Queen of the Florida Orange Festival for 1936. She was choice of the judges over many entries from the Florida citrus belt.

12-Year-Old Mother

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. . . Mrs. Daniel Gonzales, 12-year-old, claims the record of being America's youngest mother. On January 21st, she gave birth to a husky 7 pound boy. The father of the boy is 20 years old. Photo above is of Mrs. Gonzales and her infant son.

that he couldn't attend to his personal business affairs properly sounds quite reasonable.

"In times like these," he said, "you have to watch things pretty closely." He has had to learn young that it is easier to make money than to keep it. Heir to one of the largest fortunes in America, he has discovered that everybody is trying to take it away from him, and that he has to do his own watching, instead of leaving the guardianship of his property to hired men.

I know a number of very wealthy men. Most of them work harder at the job of keeping their wealth from slipping away from them than the rest of us do in trying to make a little more.

HOUSING . . . for poor

I've been hearing a lot of talk about low-cost housing for the poor, but I haven't seen anything tangible, so far, that convinces me that new houses can be built with high-priced labor, at a cost that will enable the lowest-paid workers to pay the necessary rent. They've done it in England by buying cheap farm land a long way from town, and paying building trade workers about one-third the wages they get in America.

I've seen some of the European low-cost housing developments. They are all based on land values far below ours, lower labor costs, and remission of all taxes on lands and buildings for twenty years or more. Even then, the very poor can't afford to live in them.

It seems more reasonable to me to encourage the modernizing of old houses for the use of the lowest-income groups, and the building of new homes for the ones who can afford to live in them.

GLARE . . . Killed

Every motorist knows that the chief danger in night driving is the dazzling glare from the headlights of cars one meets on the road.

A young Boston scientist, Edwin Land, has developed a new transparent material for headlights and windshields which is said to eliminate this dangerous glare entirely. The principle of "polarizing" light has long been known, but up to now it has required expensive apparatus to reduce light beams to a single plane, and so as it were, take out the dazzle.

I hope young Mr. Land's invention will do all that is claimed for it. I like to drive at night, but I dread it more and more, as cars multiply, speed increases and headlights get brighter.

SPECTRUM YOLKS

Concord, N. H.—Milady may now have egg yolks to match her breakfast gown.

Experts attending the convention of New Hampshire poultry growers say they can provide blue yolked eggs for the woman who eats her morning meal in blue dimity.

Other colors specified are green and brown.

Peculiarities of Camels

The fact that the camel can't be sheared or pulled, isn't the only peculiar thing about him. There's also the curious fact that the extremes of the desert temperature—intense heat by day and chill coolness at night—require that a camel must be kept cool by day and warm by night. And for reasons that the scientists can't explain, camel's hair retains that paradox of properties.

Careful With Decoration

Japanese lacquer objects, which are ranked with the most perfect works of art ever made, are produced with infinite care, writes Daniel Simon, Virginia, Minnesota, in Collier's Weekly. Often as many as 20 coats are applied, each being put on at sea to avoid dust, and months apart to allow for drying and polishing. Incidentally lacquer will not dry in dry air. It only attains its maximum hardness in the presence of moisture.

"Vermilion" Derivation

The color "vermillion" is derived from the Latin "vermilicus"—translated "shining worm—or thirty-fold color." Because of its brilliance, vermillion has always been used to signify power. The ancient Romans used the hue to color the faces of their statues of deities.

Watch Your Kidneys

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the stream. But kidneys sometimes get tired—their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities from the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, pain under the eyes; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.
Don't delay? Use Doan's. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the world over. Get them from any drug store.
