City of Magnificent Distances

The appellation "City of Magnificent Distances" as applied to Washington, D. C., is said to have come from John Randolph. In the early days when the department buildings, capitol and White House, widely separated, constituted even more than later the chief points of attraction and business, Randolph remarked that it was "a city of splendid poverty and magnificent distances."

CORBIN FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

'Uncle Johnny' Corbin's Descendants Number Over 1,400

By VILLA M. CORBIN

The annual reunion of the Corbin family was held Sunday, September 27, at the home of Dewey Corbin with a large crowd of relatives and friends present.

The reunion opened with a prayer by the Rev. A. S. Solesbee, followed by an address of welcome by Dewey Corbin and talks by the Rev. A. A. Angel, the Rev. J. F. Burrell and Mr. Solesbee.

The clan reorganized and elected the following officers: Dewey Corbin, president; O. C. Corbin, vice president; Miss Villa Corbin, secretary and treasurer; W. L. Corbin, C. B. Kinsland, Naamon Elliott and Theodore Elliott, members of finance committee.

A collection was taken to complete a fund for a memorial stone over the graves of John and Nancy Corbin. The afternoon was devoted to singing and string music.

The reunion was held in memory of John Corbin, known as "Uncle Johnny," who with his wife and their small children came from Haywood county in 1837 and settled three-quarters of a mile above what is now known as the old Corbin home. They arrived late in the spring and the land upon which they settled had to be cleared before a crop could be planted. The family lived in a shelter while this work was being done, as no time was had for building a home. After the crop was laid by Mr. Corbin erected a log hut, in which the family spent the next three or four years. He then moved to the site of the old Corbin home and here built a log house of two rooms, using the ground for a floor. The family lived in this house until 1870, when it moved into a better home with a wooden floor.

"Uncle Johnny" was Irish, his ancestors having come to this country in 1637. He was born in Kentucky, October 8, 1807, and died July 25, 1891, at his home in this county. He married Nancy McClure and to this union were born 14 children. Three died in infancy, one in her early teens. His blood descendants have now reached the sixth generation and now number more than 1,400.

Fire Prevention Week Starts Next Monday

Announcing that next week will be observed throughout the nation as "Fire Prevention Week," Derald Ashe, chief of Franklin's volunteer fire department, called upon the people of Franklin to help make the observance a success seeking out and eliminating the hazards which frequently cause fires. "Records show," he said, "that about 85 per cent of the fires caused by carelessness of the individual impress on our citizens the fact that if we should feel the responsibility of a real service to the community. We are always ready, of course, to fight the fires that break out. But we feel that it is our duty to prevent fires from starting. The best time to prevent fires is before it starts. "Some common causes of fires are faulty electric wiring, smoking and use of inefficient heating appliances, use of inflammable liquids for cleaning, and failure to remove papers and rubbish from rooms and premises. These causes can be removed with little trouble and expense."

ANNOUNCING Change of Management

HALLIE'S BEAUTY SHOP has been sold by Mrs. Hallie Russell to Mrs. Mabel M. Ray, in the future will be in entire charge of the establishment.

Mrs. Ray, who has had broad experience as a trained beautician, will be assisted by Mrs. Esther Clouse, who for some time has been connected with the shop.

The shop, under the new management, will offer a complete beauty service, specializing in the very latest methods of beauty culture. With this end in view, it has installed a new Curlright machine for permanent-waving. And it also will be in position to give permanent waves by a new machineless method.

FREE Demonstration Wednesday, October 7, 10:30 A. M.

The shop has obtained the services of A. B. Wood, widely known beauty authority, for a free demonstration on Wednesday, October 7.

Mr. Wood, for some years a lecturer in beauty colleges of Atlanta, will demonstrate the use of the Curlright machine, the latest device for permanent-waving. He also will illustrate the use of machineless waving, by which permanent waves are created with the use of harmless chemicals and the hair given a new lustrous beauty.

We cordially invite all of our friends to attend the demonstration.
