

HISTORIC TREE IN HOTEL YARD

Hemlock Brought From Manassas During Civil War

At a meeting of the Macon county chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, held at the home of Miss Nora Leach on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Sam L. Rogers read a very interesting paper concerning the old hemlock tree which stands in the yard at the Munday hotel on Main street.

The roots of the old tree are soaked in blood, for as a tiny hemlock switch it quivered beneath the roar of artillery at Manassas, was uprooted from the Virginia field on which the north and south twice battled and was brought to Franklin by a country doctor, tied to his saddle, was planted and has grown to be more than 65 feet in height.

Dr. J. B. Lyle, father of the late Dr. S. H. Lyle, in whose yard the hemlock was planted, was chosen as Macon county's representative in the general assembly during the civil war and made the trip to Raleigh on horseback, as there were no railroads in this end of the state.

The second battle of Manassas was fought while the assembly was in session, and Dr. Lyle decided on his return to ride by the Virginia battlefield, pay a visit to the Macon county company and bring home news of the boys. While visiting the army Dr. Lyle asked Captain W. M. Addington, the father of Mrs. Sam L. Rogers, for a guide to show him around, and William Stalcup, also of Macon county, was given the task. At Dr. Lyle's request he pulled up from the battlefield two switches, a hemlock and a holly, hardly more than a foot high, which Dr. Lyle brought to Franklin.

The holly tree was killed several years ago by fire but the 75-year-old hemlock lives and flourishes.

Mrs. J. L. Ray also read a very interesting paper at this meeting on "The Unwilling Pallbearer of John Brown." The pallbearer was Thomas Warren, who was then a young slave. He drove the two white horses which pulled the wagon carrying John Brown to the place of execution in Charlestown, Va., on December 2, 1859. Warren is still living and resides in De Soto parish, Louisiana.

Noted Opera Soprano To Sing at Junaluska

LAKE JUNALUSKA, July 14.—Rosa Tentoni, noted Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be heard in a concert here on the night of July 23 under the auspices of the Methodist Assembly. Her concert is the first in a series of three outstanding musical events scheduled for the summer.

The second concert in the series will present Oscar Shumsky, violinist, and Florence Franz, pianist, on August 2. Paul Allhouse, American Metropolitan Opera tenor, will close the series with a concert on August 21.

The series is thought by many to be the most outstanding of its kind ever presented at this religious, recreational and musical center. Junaluskans are anticipating with a great deal of pleasure the concerts which they feel could not be duplicated outside of metropolitan centers.

Miss Tentoni, born in Buhl, Minn., of Italian parentage, became famous overnight when, in February, 1934, Toscanini chose her to sing under him in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. During the next two years the young soprano rose quickly, being starred in opera at the New York stadium summer seasons, featured in the Cleveland orchestra's production of Verdi's "Otello," and chosen for the title role in the first American performance of Gluck's "Iphigenie as Aulide" with the Philadelphia orchestra.

Outstanding in such roles as Santuzza, Nadda and Aida at the Metropolitan, Miss Tentoni will bring to the Junaluska concert stage a well balanced program of semi-classical, classical and operatic selections. The noted soprano will bring her accompanist, Alice Taylor, for the performance.

All are invited to attend the lecture which is entirely free of cost.

PLANS FOR FESTIVAL DAY SUCCESSFULLY UNDER WAY

Plans for the Highlands festival day to be held on Friday, July 23, are successfully under way. Those wishing to take part in any of the various contests will please register with chamber of commerce, through Miss Sarah Thompson in the Bank building. A registration fee of 10 cents will be charged for each entry, and entries should be made as soon as possible. Valuable prizes will be received by winners in the following contests: baby parade, pet parade, log hewing contest, exhibit of handwork and cooking, music and dancing contests.

Other attractions will also be enjoyed during the day.

SATULAH CLUB REPORTS GOOD SEASON

The annual meeting of the Satulah club was held on Wednesday of last week. Reports showed that six new members had been added during the year. The club had held 10 regular, and three called meetings. Last October the club rented four rooms over G. W. Marret's store as club rooms. These were decorated and fitted up for activities and the club purchased silver and china to serve 48 people and equipped a kitchen for use. During the fall and winter the county health nurse held classes in home hygiene and care of the sick. Four members of these classes received official Red Cross certificates for completing the course and passing the standard examination. The county home demonstrator held her classes in the club rooms.

When the school lunch room was opened the Satulah club fed two children for the school term.

In April it was voted to build a club house. Henry I. Gaines, of Asheville, was commissioned to draw the plans and specifications. A building committee was appointed and an advisory committee of four men was asked to serve with this committee. In January a WPA recreation project was launched with the Satulah club as the sponsoring organization. Groups were organized for knitting, hiking, dramatics, astronomy and games. The games group turned out to be the most popular. Numbers increased from 14 to 125 in a month's time. Very meagre equipment was supplied and the children made and brought their own games. The dramatics group has presented an Amateur night and two one-act plays and is now planning a Play Day for Highlands for July 23. The club rooms were open two or three evenings a week for these groups to meet until April 11, when the groups became too large for so small a space and since it was felt that the program could not be abandoned it was voted to vacate the rooms and meet at the school until the club house is built. This record of a year's activity is one of which any organization may be proud and it is hoped that the coming year will find even a greater activity going on.

S. E. Beck, Dr. Gillespie and his father, Mr. Gillespie, of Asheville, spent Sunday, July 4 visiting in Highlands with H. E. Wheeler, of the Highlands museum.

Recent visitors of the museum include Burnham S. Colburn, Burnham S. Colburn, Jr., and Charles J. Parsons, of Asheville.

Governor and Mrs. Clyde R. Hoey and their daughter were visitors in Highlands on Thursday of last week. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McKee, of Sylva, and spent some time at the Highlands Country club and in the stores in town. Towards evening they left to spend the night at High Hampton.

Thursday afternoon the Children's Nature club went up the Kelsey trail. Several mothers accompanied the children as guests. Refreshments awaited them at their destination, including souvenirs of an animal hunt.

The boys' and girls' Nature club made a short outdoor collection expedition to Sunset Rocks. Refreshments were especially enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Edwards and family and Miss Marguerite Richards, who is visiting the Edwards' enjoyed a motor trip through the Smokies last week-end.

Mrs. Dan Ravenel and son, Dan, of Charleston, S. C., are now occupying their summer home.
