JOHNSTON BIBLE CLASS ENTERTAINS WITH TEA

Members of the F. S. Johnston Bible Class of the Franklin Methodist church entertained with a large tea Friday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage, the home of the Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Herbert, Jr. The affair was given for the teachers in the Franklin high school and for visitors and new residents who have recently moved to Franklin. Miss Margaret Cozad then directed those calling to the registrar, which was presided over by Miss Amy Harrison. The guests were shown into the dining room by Mrs. Reba Tessier.

The tea table, which was covered with a lace cloth, was centered with a bowl of yellow marigolds, and flanked on either side with silver candelabra holding burning green tapers. The Herbert's home was effectively decorated with quantities of marigolds and greenery, which was further carried out in the color scheme of green and yellow in the refreshments. ### PROGRESS IN 4-H CLUB WORK

A year of 4-H club work for the girls of Macon county is drawing to a close. It is with a great deal of pleasure that the girls welcome the boys to 4-H clubs. The best work can be done only when boys and girls cooperate. Girls' clubs were conducted in 10 communities last year. One new club has been organized at Otto this year. Aside from the project work conducted by all club members, practise is given in conducting club meetings and talking before club members. The theme for the general meetings has been "Checking up on Myself or Improving My Personality." Doctors have long treated physical ailments but are just beginning to realize the importance of understanding the mind and mental reactions. Children in progressive schools are studying mental health. They are learning to understand the mind as they previously have been taught through physiology and biology to understand the body. At the present time mental clinics are being conducted throughout the country in order to assist people to adjust themselves mentally and overcome fears and inhibitions which affect them and render them unfit physically to take their places in the work of the world. How much better to train our children to understand themselves and correct these serious mental maladjustments early rather than allow them to become handicapped by them later in life. Girls in 4-H clubs during the past year have overcome tempers, done away with bashfulness, set stubbornness aside because they checked on themselves and found these qualities among their liabilities and not their assets. Stories have been told of successful people, bringing out the qualities which made them successful. Important plays have been given to show the value of proper adjustment. These stories and plays have been written by boys and girls in the grammar grades. They train the mind to think, the hand to write, the heart to feel, and bring out points along the line of physical and mental health. They aid children to overcome bashfulness which is a form of fear, to express themselves and give self-mastery and self-confidence.

An original story and plays follows. Let us encourage our boys and girls to take part in 4-H club work.

A THOUGHTFUL GIRL

SCENE: In the School Yard
Jane: Patricia, who are you going to invite to your Halloween party?

Pat: Oh, here I have my list all made out, Pearl, John, Dorothy, Helen, Paul, Dick, Margaret, Billy, Louise, and Mary.

Jane: Aren't you going to invite Susie?

Pat: No! I'm not going to invite Susie; she isn't of our class. She doesn't have a nice party dress to wear. I'm going to wear my pink chiffon with my pink slippers to match. We are going to have the nicest things to eat, cake and ice cream.

Jane: Susie is one of the nicest girls in our class. Don't you remember when she worked an arithmetic problem for you? You shouldn't be that way.

Bob: Yes, I think we should invite Susie too. She is a nice girl. I saw her taking a basket of fruits to a widow down the street. She tries to help in every way she can.

Richard: No! we are not going to invite Susie. She lives in the poorest house in town, a little log house down by the railroad. We don't associate with that class of folks.

Pat: Jane, what are you so quiet about?

Jane: I was just thinking about poor Susie, how bad she would feel if all the rest of the class were there and she is left out. Patricia, do you remember what the subject of our B. Y. P. U. lesson was Sunday night? It was "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Are you going to follow your own advice?

Pat: Well, maybe I'm wrong, I'm going and tell her how much I want her to come. I want her to spend the night after the party.

Richard: Yes, I'll accompany her to the party if she will allow me.

Pat: Come, let's go now and invite her.

THE QUESTION IS:

DO SMOKERS APPRECIATE CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS?

THE BEST ANSWER IS:
CAMELS ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA!

Is it good business to spend millions more for costlier tobaccos? Well, the fact that Camels are the largest-selling cigarette shows that men and women do find something choice—something different—in Camels. Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.
