HEALTH CENTER TO OPEN TUESDAY

The Highlands health center, a branch of the Macon county health department, will open Tuesday, February 15, and every Tuesday thereafter from 9 to 12 a. m. The program activities for this branch office will be the same as for the main office in Franklin. Activities will be confined to the field of preventive medicine and no curative medicine will be practiced.

The department will include in its services, maternal and child hygiene, (infant and pre-natal), communicable disease control, including venereal disease and tuberculosis.

Prospective mothers and infants are invited to visit the office as early as possible. There will be a prenatal and infant (well baby) clinic held at regular intervals when a sufficient number has been contacted. At these clinics general advice will be given on maternal hygiene and infant care. Instructions will be given to the expectant mothers on the preparation for a safer delivery in the homes.

The aim of the pre-school (children from 2 to 6 years) is to teach the mother the physical growth and development, the progress of the child, and deviation from normal and how many of these defects may be avoided by proper habit training through childhood. The general school program will be included in this set-up and attention given to defects found during school examinations.

When there is a suspicion of a communicable disease and the office is not open, the department requests that this be reported to Mr. Summer, who in turn will report to the health office, so that the general methods of control can be taken immediately. There will be vaccine for typhoid fever, smallpox and diphtheria kept in the office each Tuesday, giving everyone the opportunity to receive these services free.

Interested persons, food handlers and domestic servants, will be able to have blood tests taken and health certificates issued. Blood pressure and urinalysis will be done on all expectant mothers who are not under a private physician's care. Other specimens for the laboratory will be taken on request and sent to the district health department for examination.

The department wishes to thank Mr. Summer, Mr. Anderson and the P.-T. A. for sponsoring this much needed service and feel sure the people will take advantage of these public health facilities.

Workstock Breeding Increased In State

North Carolina farmers are now keeping thousands of dollars at home each year by raising their own horses and mules, according to Earl H. Hostetler, professor of animal husbandry at State college. There has been a marked increase in the number of horse and mule colts bred and raised in this state within the past three years as farmers have become to depend less on Western states for their workstock supply.

At the present time, North Carolina growers buy annually almost 30,000 mules and 4,000 horses at a cost of $6,500,000 from outside the state.

States east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio river raise but a very small proportion of their work animals. North Carolina is typical of most of these states.

The demand for mules is increasing, Hostetler said, especially the medium-sized cotton mule standing from 15 to 15½ hands high, and weighing from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds.

There is also some demand for a slightly larger mule from the tobacco-producing areas. In these counties, growers will pay more for mules standing around 15.3 hands high and weighing 1,200 pounds.
