

Stray Hogs

To Be Rounded Up With Dogs in Game Refuge

A number of stockmen have recently applied to forest officers and refuge protectors for permission to use dogs in rounding up their stray hogs which are now ranging on the refuge. This matter has been given consideration by the forest supervisor and officials of the state department of conservation and development and they have decided to grant permission to stockmen to remove their hogs with the use of dogs. The following announcement is made by Paul H. Gerrard, forest supervisor of the Nantahala national forest:

Stockmen who own hogs ranging on Nantahala forest land within the Wayah Bald state game refuge will be allowed to use leashed dogs in rounding up their hogs, under the following restrictions:

1. Applications for permits to use leashed dogs in rounding up hogs within the Wayah Bald state game refuge will be received by state game protector, George Crawford, up to and including February 25, 1938.
2. Applicants will be notified the date they are to hunt after February 25.
3. Permits will be issued by the refuge protector at the Wayah depot entrance of the refuge on the date the permittee is to hunt.
4. Each permittee will be allowed to use one dog which must be kept on a leash until the hogs are sighted.
5. Each hunter or group of hunters will be accompanied by a game protector, or a forest officer.
6. Hogs which are captured must be identified by the owners.

John H. Corbin Dies In Colorado

News has been received by Macon county relatives of the death of John H. (Jack) Corbin, on January 13 at his home in Colorado. He was a son of Leander H. Corbin, formerly of Franklin.

The family moved to Colorado in 1871. On the same train was the family of J. R. Ammons, whose wife, Margaret C., and Mrs. Corbin were sisters. The Corbins settled in Pleasant Park and the Ammons in Denver.

Mr. Corbin married Mary G. White, of the pioneer White family of Arvada, on May 17, 1904. They had two children, John and Alice, both of whom, as well as his wife, survive him. Of the five brothers, only one, Ned Corbin, is living.

Mr. Corbin was engaged in the cattle business, and was always interested in new ways to better his neighborhood.

The funeral services were held at Golden and the burial was under the auspices of Golden Lodge I.O.O.F., at Pleasant Park, Colo., where his father, mother, and two brothers are buried.

Girl Scouts Entertain At Valentine Party

Girl Scout Troop No. 1 delightfully entertained their parents and members of the Boy Scout Troop at a Valentine masquerade party in the basement of the Methodist church on Friday evening.

The room was attractively decorated for the occasion with red and white hearts hung along the walls and red balloons were suspended from the ceiling. The attractive table was covered with a white cloth, decorated with red and white lacy hearts and centered with a bowl of red apples.

Games and stunts were directed by Mrs. Hayes E. Overcash and Mrs. B. W. Woodruff and enjoyed by all present. Prizes were awarded winners of the various contests.

The evening was climaxed with the serving of refreshments including sandwiches, cookies, candy and hot punch served by the Girl Scouts, assisted by Mrs. Overcash and Mrs. Woodruff.
