Arrangements have been made for regular morning services to be held each week at the Church of the Incarnation at 11 a. m. Visiting preachers will serve the church and work under the direction of the Rev. Frank Bloxham, who will retain the rectorship and oversight of all matters relating to the church. These special services will continue through June, July and August and the co-operation of the membership is asked to make the venture a success. Next Sunday, June 4 the preacher will be Dr. Collin Hughes, from Hendersonville, and on June 11, the Bishop of the diocese will pay us a visit. Watch this column where announcement will be made from week to week as to the appointments made for preachers at this church.

"WORKING" TUESDAY REPORTED BEST EVER

The "working" at Highlands cemetery on Tuesday was reported by those in charge to be the best in the history of Highlands. Forty-four men and a number of boys appeared at 8 o'clock armed with working tools, and under the supervision of J. R. Phillips a great amount of work was accomplished, even to building up the road with crushed rock, and topping it with white sand.

Mrs. Martha Gottwals, Mrs. Betty Reese, and Mrs. J. R. Phillips supervised the spreading of the bountiful and delicious lunch. About 25 ladies were present to help with the lunch and to decorate the graves after the work was done. Highlands and Shortoff were both well represented in this clean-up campaign.

"STRIBLING" TEA ROOM AND COFFEE SHOP OPENED

"The Stribling", a most attractive tea room and coffee shop was opened last Saturday by Miss Myra Stribling on Fourth street in the building formerly occupied by the S. T. Marett Real Estate Agency. This place has been renovated and re-decorated, and the Mexican idea is effectively carried out in tables, china, draperies, etc. Miss Stribling plans to specialize in fried chicken dinners. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stribling, have the Douglas place in Shortoff and are operating a chicken farm there.

Assisting Miss Stribling in the new tea room is Miss Wilma Crawford, of Marietta, Ga.

CARD CLUB ENTERTAINED AT HOME OF MRS. ROOT

Mrs. J. E. Root and Mrs. E. R. Gilbert were joint hostesses to the Wednesday Afternoon Card club on May 24 at the home of Mrs. Root. The setting for this card party was singularly beautiful, since Mrs. Root's home is the home of the Oriental Arts and Mountain Crafts Gift Shop, which has for a number of years been one of Highlands' chief attractions, and to any one who has been fortunate enough to visit it, an attempt to describe this enchanting shop would be superfluous. Especially artistic is the North Carolina room, with its glazed pottery in soft greens, blues, grays, rusts, and old rose.

The flower decorations for the rooms where the three tables of players assembled were lilies of the valley and lady slippers. Miss Bernice Durgin won the high score prize, a small old English print, and Mrs. Eliot Caziarc was awarded the traveling prize, a blue pottery pitcher. Following the game a delightful tea hour was enjoyed.
