CHEECONDAH GARDEN OPEN TO PUBLIC SUNDAY

CheeconDAH Garden, perhaps more widely known as "2800" Garden, will be open to the public on Sunday, August 6, from 2 to 5 o'clock p. m., for the benefit of the Highlands Museum. Tickets are now on sale at Highlands Drug store and Highlands Country club.

This garden is situated on the Henry W. Sloan estate on the side of Satulah mountain. It is approximately 30 years old, and one of the renowned beauty spots of Western North Carolina. Of particular interest are the Ginkgo trees. The Ginkgo is the sacred tree of China and is the oldest known tree in the world. There are also numbers of Sicilian and Spanish vases or jars, filled with choice plants. All of these vases are very old, some of them dating back two thousand years. Everywhere this garden reflects the artistic taste and magic hand of the owner, and a visit there is worth many times Sunday's admission price of 50 cents.

"SATURDAY'S CHILDREN" TO BE GIVEN AUGUST 14

"Saturday's Children," the Barter Theatre presentation to be given Monday afternoon, August 14, at the Highlands School Theatre, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, was written by Maxwell Anderson, that pre-eminent playwright among modern authors. This play is being brought here by the recently organized Highlands Little Theatre, and tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Jack Wilcox, Mrs. William Way, and Miss Winnie Eskridge. Reserved and unreserved seats are now on sale.

"Saturday's Children" is a simple story of the trials and misadventures of modern marriage life, the outcome of marriage between two very young people who are in love but confronted with bills and relatives and all the other less pleasant aspects of modern marriage. In spite of the simplicity of the theme, or perhaps because of it, "Saturday's Children" was an instant success and ran for over a year on Broadway.

"Saturday's Children" has proved the theory that simplicity and humaneness make a delightful play. The play is supremely true in its insight into the situation that confronts many young people.

The Barter cast has for its lead Otis Morse, who is a versatile actor, doing widely different roles, playing the part of Rims O'Neil in "Saturday's Children" with an unusual opportunity for comedy and dramatic acting. Others in the cast are Edith Sumner, who plays the part of Bobby, the young wife; Betty Miller, Bobby's sister, scheming and not too careful of her methods in obtaining her ends; Paul Gengo, Jean Hazelwood, and Larry Gates.

The story of two people who marry, find the business of modern marriage exacting on a small salary, separate and finally find a solution to their problem, makes an absorbing and worthwhile play, and the universal appeal and the brilliance with which "Saturday's Children" is handled, make one of the highest spots of the Barter season.
