BIBLE THOUGHT

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—St. John 14:27.

Maligned, persecuted, deserted, flogged, crucified, and yet, in the midst of it and facing the worst, He could sit calmly in the upper room with His disciples and have so much peace that He could give it away.
Even so we must win our peace.—Selected.

Good Friday and Easter

AS we approach the Easter season this fateful year, the joy of Easter is overshadowed by the blackness of the picture that comes to us from battlefields. The 'darkness that was over the face of the earth' at the time of Christ's crucifixion symbolizes the awful tragedy that is being enacted in the world today.

The Gethsemane that One met through the forces of hate and violence is today literally being faced by millions. Like the multitudes that stood afar off and gazed at the victims of the three crosses on Golgotha, so, on this Good Friday, we gaze with horror on a world writhing in agony.

Something of the hopelessness that possessed the disciples of Jesus is overwhelming some of his followers today. The acid-test is applied to the reality of our religion.

The Spirit of Easter is one of hope and reawakening even to the thoughtless. Many celebrate Easter with gladness who are willing to forget that there was a Good Friday. But this year there is a dread compulsion upon all to remember. Christians can carry the message of the Risen Christ only if they are willing to suffer, with Him, for the sins of the world that make the present happenings possible. For it is only the truth of the Resurrection that will bring back sanity and hope to a war-torn world. Today, as truly as two thousand years ago, it is only the crucified and Risen Christ that can save the world.

A Good Citizen Passes

EVERYONE who knew Emory S. Hunnicutt counted him a friend. For he possessed that kindness and gentleness that marks a man who loves his neighbor as himself. Of him a long-time friend said yesterday, "Mr. Hunnicutt never spoke ill of anybody, and always his thoughts were for the welfare of everybody in those things that ministered to the benefit of all the people."

Mr. Hunnicutt never lost his vision. In fact, he was regarded by many practical people as a visionary. But he lived to see many of his dreams come true. He was among the first to be interested in the development of the Franklin electric power plant. His work of promoting this progressive enterprise was recognized by his associates by naming Lake Emory for him. In those early days he expressed the hope that the day would come when every farm could have electric lights. He was always deeply interested in the development of his town from the standpoint of the welfare of all. The social service to the underprivileged, the aged and to children that is now a reality was another of his dreams.

Many will carry gratefully the remembrance of this kindly man.

Spring Cleaning

THE mayor's proclamation reminds all good citizens that it is time to clean up and fix up. The improvements to the streets and the many new buildings in progress have added much to the appearance of our town during the past year. Many homes have been improved inside and out.

The same spirit of cooperation that has been expressed to the town authorities by the Chamber of Commerce and the Garden Club will no doubt be extended by all service clubs, organizations and individuals.

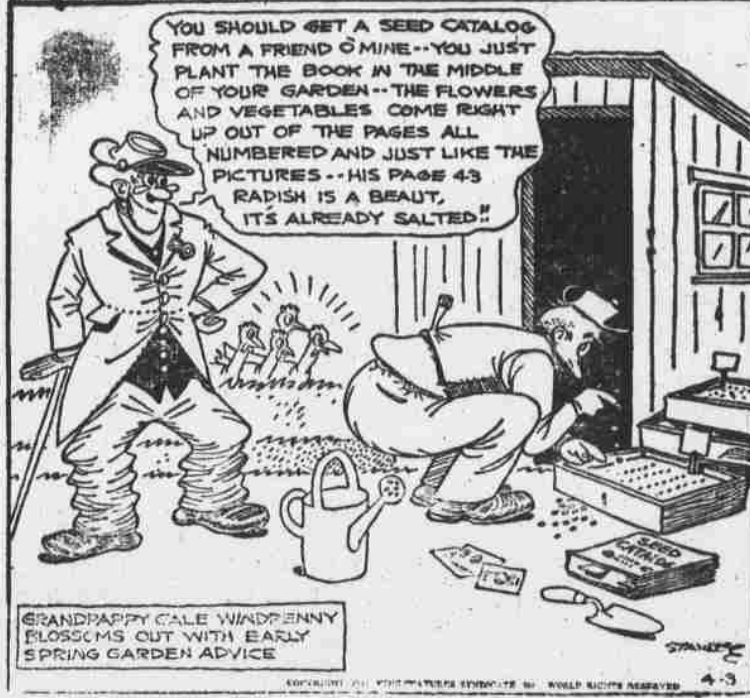

Franklin expects a good tourist season this year. Visitors who come to enjoy the beautiful scenery will be tempted to tarry in a clean, attractive town.

Fishin' Time

THE fishing schedule announced in this issue is another reminder that Spring and fishin' time are here. We hope that many fathers will take this opportunity to get better acquainted with their children. Fishing is a wonderful occupation, too, to help the fisherman get better acquainted with himself. We are passing on to the followers of Izaak Walton this skit from the Kentucky Sportsman:

"Hain't got no pip an' hain't got no flu! All I need is a day er two far away from the haunts of men, where I kin be a boy again. Winter is an awful drain on a feller's fishin' brain. Makes a feller sorter pine for th' wettin' of a line; drefful weary here erbout, when he thinks of jumpin' trout; seems as tho' this very thing came ter me erlong last spring; felt right mean for a day er two, awful solumn, sad an' blue, 'twan't the pip and twan't the flu; just that restlesslike an' mean, longin' fer a laffin stream. Gosh! I guess I'll turn erbout an' go an' git my tackle out! Glad I know jes what ter do. Tain't the pip an' tain't the flu".

EASTER DAWN
I have heard Great Silent Music—felt

It lifting me on High:
Sensed the sweep of angel wings
Ascending up the sky...

I have heard Celestial Song,
And seen at Break of Day,
Just beyond the clouds, a Host
In silvery array...

And I have heard the Song they sang:
Exalted, Grand, Sublime—
Felt the Deathlessness of Life
And the Timelessness of Time:

I have felt a flood of tears
Of Splendor, in my heart—
Upon a Pinnacle have cried,
My Father, God—THOU ART!
