The First Peal For Liberty

On Thursday, July 4th, 1776, the Continental Congress adopted The Declaration of Independence. On the following Monday, July 8th, the manifesto was read by Col. John Nixon to a great crowd gathered in the State House Yard, Philadelphia. When he had finished the Liberty Bell began ringing out the glad tidings.

The great bell cracked a half century later but through the years it has continued to echo the ideals of Humanity. Today, it is sounding clear around the world where liberty-loving people pray and fight for the return of their vanquished freedom.

Regardless of its religion or resources, every family calling us is served as we would be served.
