Mica Industry In Macon Grows To Meet War Needs

Many Uses For Mineral In Various Forms Described

(By THAD D. BRYSON, Jr.)

Macon county has long enjoyed a reputation for its mineral deposits and is now coming into its rightful heritage as a result of the tremendous demand for mica. Heretofore this resource has been developed on a small and dubious scale due to the competition from foreign sources, especially India. There the famed "Bengal Ruby" mica contributed a large per cent of that utilized in this country, and only the recent invasion of the Japanese forces in Singapore and other points in the Pacific stopped this source of supply. Now the domestic sources are being called upon to supply the tremendous demand the present war has brought about. Probably the reason foreign imports heretofore far exceeded the domestic supply was because of cheap labor, and further, it was commonly supposed that the "India" mica was of a superior grade. It has been proven, however, that the "Rum" or "Ruby" mica produced in this country is equal in quality to that produced in other parts of the world.

Types Of Mica

The types of mica produced here are classified white, ruby and black; the first two types are used in the production of practically all important military equipment, such as tanks, trucks, airplanes; as a matter of fact, each bomber that is sent to harass and ultimately destroy Hitler and Company contains approximately $500 worth of mica. Its uses in the electrical industry are almost countless. It is used in highly important items such as radio transmitters, condensers, high-tension magneto condensers, which are indispensable to the functioning of squadrons of airplanes, tanks, ships and other mobile mechanical instruments of modern warfare. Thus under present conditions it is readily observable the great importance of the development of mica mines, and the recovery of this important product. Foreseeing this fact, the United States Government has set up the Colonial Mica Corporation, with offices in Asheville, for the purpose of assisting mica miners to increase their field of operation by supplying necessary machinery at nominal lease rentals, and also, stabilizing the market so that a reasonable price may be obtained from the sale of their product. This is an important step forward and will exert a tremendous influence upon the development of this industry in Macon county. The prices now being paid for mica are practically double that paid in the latter part of 1940. Punch then selling at an average of eight to ten cents per pound, now brings twenty-two cents; one and one-half by two then bringing forty-five cents to sixty cents per pound, now is quoted at one dollar and ten cents, and all sizes have increased proportionately. Six by eight formerly quoted at four dollars and twenty-five cents, now is eight dollars. Thus the facilities for mining are available and the market a guarantee of a reasonable return for labor expended.

Corporal Shuler's Death First Fatality Reported

Soldier From West's Mill Died In Auto Accident In Puerto Rico

The death by automobile accident of Corporal Carl Shuler in the Puerto Rico area in August is the first death of a Macon county man in the armed forces that has been reported since the war began.

Sam D. Shuler of the West's Mill community has received full details of his son's death from his commanding officer, and copies of the Caribbean Sentinel of San Juan, P. R., official publication of the Armed Forces in the Caribbean Area, with tribute to his service.

Mr. Shuler first received a wire from the office of the War Department, Washington, announcing the death of his son on August 7, at 7:15 p. m. Later he received a letter from the Adjutant General stating that the accident occurred on the Ponce Guayama Highway, near Postillo, one mile east of Losey Field, when the automobile in which he was a passenger overturned after striking a truck. One other soldier was killed and four injured in the accident.

The letter related that military funeral services were held on August 9 in the Post chapel, and the body interred with full military honors in the National cemetery at Borinquen Field, Puerto Rico. The letter expressed sympathy and regret concerning Corporal Shuler's death, adding "We would like for you to know that we at the headquarters and of the headquarters squadron, 36th Fighter Group, will long remember the hard working and good natured Corporal Shuler that attached himself so closely to all of us in the short time he spent with us." Signed, Major Arthur R. DeBolt.

To Last 45 Minutes; All Asked To Stay Off Streets

Final arrangements are complete for the test blackout ordered to be held on Tuesday night throughout North Carolina by the Army through the state organization of Civilian Defense. Guy L. Houk, county chairman, attended the meeting of Civilian Defense officials in Raleigh last week, called to receive final and detailed instructions for the blackout and for civilian protection.

Mr. Houk states that the blackout will be observed on Tuesday night, September 29, the town siren sounding the alarm and the all-clear sometime between the hours of seven and twelve, midnight. He took a trip to Highlands Tuesday afternoon to arrange with the town authorities for the blackout there.

Air Raid Wardens On Duty

Auxiliary policemen and the fire department will be on duty to assist the regular law enforcement officers in traffic control and any other duties; also 24 air raid wardens will have special patrol duties throughout the municipal area. All automobiles within sound of the siren are requested to turn off their lights and pull in on the side of the highways and streets. State highway patrolmen will also be on duty, receiving their orders and warning directly by short wave radio in their cars from police stations.

Mr. Houk states that the blackout will last 45 minutes after the alert has sounded. He stated also that it is probable that there will be blackouts from time to time. These alarms will be given by the Army and will be unannounced from now on.

"Stay Off Streets"

All persons are urgently requested to stay off streets except air raid wardens and those employed in civilian protection. During the last blackout, considerable confusion was caused in some places by the presence of people on the sidewalks out of curiosity. It can readily be seen that this is dangerous and has in the past been the cause of casualties and accidents. The full cooperation of all citizens is requested by the committee of civilian defense and the town authorities.

All cars coming into town will be stopped on the outskirts of the town area.
