Franklin Future Farmers Practise Patriotism On The Farm

By E. J. WHITMIRE

If we were to single out one class of people in our land as being the most patriotic, there is no doubt in my mind but what our farmers would be the choice. Sons of farmers are the first to take up arms to defend our land. Many a farmer is working from daylight until dark producing vital food products without the help of his best source of labor, his sons. The farm labor situation is acute and it will not get any better; therefore we are going to have to make changes in our farming plans before another year rolls around. Let's plan to cut down on crops that require a large amount of labor and increase our production of livestock and poultry.

Patriotic Food Supper

Here is the deal. Soldiers can't fight without food. Talk about sixty thousand airplanes — how about one hundred and twenty-five billion pounds of milk—four billion and two hundred million dozen eggs—60,000,000 pounds of poultry or eighty-three million pigs. That's a production job, too.

When one cargo ship is sunk it is the equivalent of losing 874,000 pounds of cured pork. We not only must feed our own people, but our allies must have food. The feeling of our allies will continue long after the war is over. It has been said that every move that a man makes is for his own personal benefit. The Joe Lewis-Billy Conn fight was cancelled by war officials on the grounds that it was not right for two soldiers to fight for personal gain while the government is sending others to the far corners of the world to fight for their lives. This lesson should come home to us back on the farm. Are we going to let our sons and brothers risk their lives while we produce the products that mean the most to us personally? Since we are the most patriotic people, let's produce the food that our country needs even though our profits are not as great.

The production of pork on small scale for the average mountain farmer is a good chance to use home grown feed and to give us an income during the winter months.

If pork is what our government wants, let's feed out a few more hogs.

F. F.'s Raising Pigs

The Franklin Future Farmers have 25 sows. Some of these sows have farrow pigs that will make good breeding stocks. To encourage the production of pork and the buying of War Bonds the following young farmers have agreed to fatten one or more hogs and buy Bonds: Gilmer Henson, Billy Cochran, Bob Fulton, Jay Meadows, Ralph Carpenter, Bill Meadows, Fred Bryson, Bill Gregory, Lee Roy Roper, Richard Bingham, Wint Duvall, Edgar Smith, Logan Allen, Sam Ramsey, Kenneth Waldroop, George Keener, Paul Holbrooks, Bill Raby, Tom Setser, Jack Blaine, Thad Blaine, Homer McCoy, Harry Kinsland, Earnest Dills, John Keener, Thad Byrd, Fred Slagle, Fred Cunningham, Ned Cabe, John Seay, Sam Mashburn, Esco Gibson.

Let's encourage these young farmers and our Future Farmers will be good farmers.

First Issue Of School Magazine Out

The September issue of "The Mountain Echo," published by the Journalism club of the High school, has appeared in printed form, and is a credit to its editors. It carries much school news in good articles, with editorials of a high order; attractive advertisements, interspersed with wit and humor. A cut of the school's new principal, J. F. Pugh, appears on the front page.

The staff is as follows: Charles Fulton, editor; Betty Horsley, assistant editor; Barbara Stockton, advertising manager; Merrily Brooks, assistant advertising manager; Sally Lou Moore, business manager; Inez Crawford, circulation manager; Elizabeth Wasilik, assistant circulation manager; Ida Mae Dowdle, society editor; Fred Houk, sports editor; James Furr, Gussie Leach, "Vic" Perry, associates; Carolyn Leach, home room news editor; Clell Bryant, art department; Gordon Porter, exchange editor; Lillian Jones, reporter.

The paper this year is printed by the Franklin Press.

At The Theatre

Next Monday and Tuesday's show, "Syncopation", combines music and drama in the story that embodies the typically American syncopated music—known at various times as "Jazz", "Rag-Time", "Swing" and "Boogie-Woogie."

The universal favorite of many seasons, Gene Autry, is coming back again; this time in a Republic picture entitled "Down Mexico Way."

"Calling Dr. Gillespie" is another in the Metro-Golwin-Mayer series following the famous Dr. Kildare stories, with outstanding stars putting on the usual type thriller, this time involving a young girl (Donna Reed) and her wealthy fiance whom she suspects of insanity.

Saturday, October 10, there will
