

Frank Saunders Carries On Farm Program Of Father

How One Boy Is Farming By Improved Methods

On a recent visit to the unit demonstration farm of the late C. H. Saunders, outstanding results were noticed from the following of a well rounded farm management program. Mr. Saunders was selected as a demonstration farmer late in 1939. Until his death, approximately two years ago, Mr. Saunders was doing a fine job building up his farm to a higher state of fertility and productivity. Upon his death the operation of this farm passed into the hands of his young son, Frank, who had not yet finished high school. Frank has accepted this responsibility and done an excellent job in carrying on where his father left off.

Young Mr. Saunders has succeeded in starting a very good pasture on a worn out hill that was badly eroded. This hill of approximately 7 or 8 acres has been thoroughly limed and phosphated and seeded to a good pasture mixture and is now beginning to afford very good grazing. Before this land was treated and put into pasture very poor returns were received from it.

Year Rotation
Frank is following a three year rotation of red clover and grass with his row crops. This rotation is proving very successful as it affords an abundance of high quality hay and at the same time makes it easy to control erosion and furnishes an excellent soil improving crop for the row that follows.

By the use of check pots in his fields it has been possible to observe the very good results obtained from the use of calcium meta phosphate used on legume crops. Where the phosphate was not applied it has been impossible to secure a good stand of clover and grass. Also these check plots show that the yields of small grain and corn have been greatly increased as a result of the use of phosphate on legumes to be turned under. Mr. Saunders says that their average yield of wheat before they became demonstration farmers was about 12 bushels per acre. Corn was about 40 bushels per acre and is now about 70. Wheat and corn grown on the check plot in his fields still shows this low yield and the wheat is badly damaged by smut. The limed and phosphated areas do not seem to be damaged by this disease. Hay has also increased in yield from less than a ton per acre to approximately two tons per acre. Through the use of lime and phosphate he is now able to produce clover which could not be done before. Mr. Saunders states that before the farm was approved as a demonstration farm they bought both hay and corn every year. He has already sold over $100 worth of hay this year and has well over a 100 bushels of corn for sale.

Diversified Program
In addition to the above good practices a very good diversified program of farming is carried out on this farm. For a number of years purebred Duroc Jersey hogs have been raised on this farm with an average income of approximately 450 to 500 dollars being realized per year.

There are about 60 laying hens on this farm that are at present producing approximately 50 eggs per day that bring in about 24 dollars per month from the sale of eggs on the local market. The flock on this farm was a mixture of several breeds until recent years. It has been changed to purebred New Hampshire Reds and increased production has been obtained. Also Mr. Saunders is using a lamp brooder which he finds very satisfactory in brooding out his young chicks.

Recently a whole milk route was established in this neighborhood. The income from the sale of milk on this farm for one month from three cows was $30 as compared to $12 from the sale of cream from the same cows for a like period of time. Mr. Saunders says that since they have an available milk market he plans to breed his cows to good dairy bulls and save the heifer calves for future herd replacements.

Mr. Saunders says that after the war is over he plans to build a new home and make some badly needed repairs on his outbuildings.

LAND OF PEAKS
North Carolina's mountains lift 125 peaks more than 5000 feet into the sky, 43 more than 6000 feet, and one, Mt. Mitchell, higher than any other in eastern United States.

WAR MANPOWER STABILIZED

Provisions Made To Aid Employment For War Production

A plan for stabilization of employment in North Carolina was announced in Raleigh, Saturday, by Dr. J. S. Dorton, state director of the War Manpower Commission.

The new stabilization plan became effective at 12:01 o'clock, Saturday, May 15.

"The purpose of the plan is to provide government, management, and labor with an effective system of providing workers where needed to do war production and essential civilian work", Dr. Dorton said. "The plan provides for holding workers on their jobs where needed or permitting them to transfer to other jobs under certain conditions."

"So long as employers and workers conform to provisions of the plan they will be in compliance with regulation 4 of the War Manpower Commission restricting the transfer of workers which was issued under the President's 'Hold the Line' order stabilizing wages, prices and employment."

The plan—1. Provides that employers in essential industries may not hire a worker whose most recent employment was in an essential industry unless such worker presents either a statement of availability from his most recent employer or a statement of availability from his local United States Employment office.

2. Sets up machinery enabling workers, under certain conditions, to transfer from one essential industry to another if such a step will aid in the effective prosecution of the war or compelling personal reasons make such a step advisable.

3. Establishes valid reasons which entitle an employe to a statement of availability and sets up procedures under which statements may be obtained. The plan provides that statements of availability shall be issued to any worker by his most recent employer or the United States Employment service, whenever the employe—

A. Is discharged by his last employer.

B. Is laid off for an indefinite period or for a period of 7 days or more.

C. Can establish that his present employment does not utilize him at his highest skill or that he is not being employed full time.

D. Has compelling personal reasons for change in employment.

4. Provides that under certain conditions a statement of availability may be issued if it is established that the change of employment will aid in the effective prosecution of the war.

5. Stipulates that where an employe has a valid reason for a job transfer within essential industries, the United States Employment service is authorized to grant such statements of availability when the employer refuses to grant a statement of availability.

6. Provides that employers may not hire in-migrants (workers who have not lived within the normal commuting distance of the prospective employer's establishment) except through the local United States Employment service.

7. Permits workers to transfer freely from other than essential to essential activities. No statement of availability is needed unless the worker is going to work outside the local commuting area.

8. Stipulates that while the worker may appeal from the decision of an employer or the United States Employment service when not granted a statement of availability, the worker must remain on the job until the appeal has been decided.

9. Authorizes the United States Employment service to grant statements of availability, upon request, to any employe of an employer who violates the regional plan, or the area plan, if one is in effect.

These statements may be issued regardless of whether the workers otherwise would be entitled to such statements.

10. Prevents workers from transferring from an essential activity to an activity other than essential at a higher rate of pay unless there is no full time job which he can fill, available locally in an essential activity.

11. Provides that a worker wishing to seek or accept employment outside the commuting area must obtain a statement of availability from the USES covering the locality in which he is currently or was most recently employed. Without such a statement of availability he will not be able to obtain employment.

12. Provides that the granting or denial of a statement of availability may be appealed by an employer from a decision of the United States Employment service, providing an appeal is filed within seven days from the date of such determination with the area manpower director or the regional director.
