taled 12,844, an increase of 52 over the first five months of 1942. However, there have been just 26,809 more births than deaths in North Carolina this year, erclusive of June figures, which will be avail-

Despite the phenomenal increase in the number of births through May, there were only 1,919 deaths reported among babies under a year old, as compared with 1,980 the corresponding months year, showing a decrease of 61 in favor of 1943. This is highly gratifying to public health officials, according to Dr. George M. Coo-per, Director of the Board of Health's services to mothers and babies. It shows, he pointed out, that the 300 maternal and infancy clinics throughout the State, as well as parents under the care of private practitioners, are doing a good job. "It is highly important that infancy and childhood be given every protection, if we are to build up a strong post-war race," Doctor Cooper said.

Only 140 mothers of the 39,653 babies born so far this year died in childbirth or as a result of pregnancy, Dr. Cooper pointed out, as compared with 135 who died in connection with the birth of 35,141 through May last year.
