Macon Mica Figures In Magazine Article

OUT of the richness of forests and mines, Macon county is making valuable contribution to vital needs in this global war. And it must be remembered that there are hundreds of men and women laboring to produce wood products and mica, whose work is no less important because they do not wear a uniform.

Recognition has been given in a recent publication of Esso Oilways, a monthly publication of the Standard Oil Company, of the considerable mica industry that has been developed in this county, and that now is pouring out this precious non-metallic mineral to meet vast war demands for electrical equipment.

"Insulationists" is the striking head to this article and most of the information contained in it as well as illustrations were obtained from the Bradley Mica Mine and Charlie Bradley. The writer tells of the unique qualities of mica and how it fights the war on every front in electrical insulations. Esso Marketers products are used for lubrication of the machines which prepare the mica for the market. We outline some interesting bits from this story.

"Today mica is one of the most critical materials. It is perhaps the most valuable of all electrical insulating materials..." Mica, a name applied to a number of complex materials, all of which have aluminum silicate as the principal constituent has eight types... one characteristic common to all—perfect cleavage... Every electric generator requires mica as insulation between commutator segments... employed in television; every aircraft engine has mica-insulated spark plugs. Some industrial workers use mica goggles.

The Bradley mine is described as producing mica in sheet and scrap form from a vein 2,000 feet long, of varying width and up to 120 feet deep. All sheet mica is now sold to the government. The scrap mica is ground for industrial uses, largely in roofings, paint, etc.

Sheet mica is blasted out in rough blocks or "books." These are split into flawless pieces as large as possible. The rifters are women, who first split the books into sheets, then trim the sheets to remove imperfections. This work, done with a sharp pointed knife, requires skill and patience.

Macon county is referred to in this article as the state's most productive area.

Remember The Orphanages

THERE is perhaps no more universal appeal than that which goes out for little children. For many, the annual gifts requested for orphanages in the state is the only opportunity offered to do the kindly act that is in most people's hearts to do.

Thanksgiving Day is the time chosen in North Carolina for offerings from all citizens for the support of the many homes and orphanages for children who are the wards of the state. Always filled to overflowing, these institutions seldom have enough room to admit those who apply. Most orphanages have waiting lists and their hearts are always bigger than their accommodations. So all those with a heart for little children are asked to express their gratitude for blessings in terms of a gift to one or more of these homes for little children who are the responsibility of us all. The gifts may be placed in church offerings next Sunday and designated for the church orphanage, or for the Oxford Orphanage which is supported by the Ma-

Let Us Give Thanks From Our Hearts.

There is befitting humility in the act of a strong man giving thanks for his blessings. Arrogant self-sufficiency is being defeated upon the world's battlefronts by men who look with faith to the One on High for courage and strength. This Thanksgiving Day, let us give thanks with a conviction that we feel away down deep in our hearts.

And, let us pray for Divine comfort for those who, this day, mourn for loved ones who have given their lives that we may stay free.

Next Year Will Be Different

NEXT year will be different. Not only the weather, and markets, and the needs of the country. Our jobs will be different, too. Because next year we're going to do those jobs differently—and we hope better!

We, whose job is producing goods and services, have been making resolutions like this for years. And we've been keeping them! For in our kind of business, you either keep on finding better ways of doing things, or—you go backward! And if enough people do that, the thing we call progress goes down.

That's why farmers keep on trying new seed, and fertilizers, and machines, and strains of stock. That's the reason industry carries on research—another name for a constant search for new knowledge and better ways to do things. Because most of us have been doing this for years, America has had the highest standard of living in the world. And it's the reason, too, that American production is doing so much today to bring victory.

After the war, America is going to need more than ever men with the courage and enterprise to invest time, money, and hard work in the search for better things. And if America's producers understand each other, and each other's problems, we'll be able to do these all-important jobs better. General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.
