

Will Donate Books To Library, Unless Owners Want Them

Mrs. Reby Tessier said this week that she has half a dozen books, kept for several years for members of the former Franklin Study club, which she proposes to donate to the Franklin Public library, unless the owners wish to claim them.

Mrs. Tessier explained that it was the plan of the Study club for individual members to buy books, which were exchanged among the various members, and then returned to the purchasers. When the club was dissolved, Mrs. Tessier, as secretary, was left with six books that had not been the rounds of the members. She does not know, she said, to whom the books belong, but asks that the owners, if they desire them, call for the books. Otherwise she will give them to the library.

The books are Yates' "Autobiographies"; "To the Lighthouse", by Virginia Woolf; "The Road to the Temple", by Susan Glaspell; "The King's Henchman", by Edna St. Vincent Millay; "House Without Windows", by Follett; and "Mohammed", by R. F. Dibble.

West To Preach, Hold Quarterly Meetings Sunday

Dr. W. B. West, Methodist district superintendent, will preach at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning at the Franklin Methodist church, and, following the service, will conduct the second quarterly conference.

At 3 o'clock that afternoon, Dr. West will conduct a worship service and quarterly conference at the Mount Zion church.

Mt. Zion is a part of the newly formed Cartoogechay charge, which also includes the Gillespie and Maiden's chapel churches. These churches formerly belonged to the Macon charge.

American motor vehicles, pre-war, consumed 89 per cent of the nation's gasoline, 80 per cent of its rubber, 73 per cent of its plate glass, 73 per cent of its leather, 51 per cent of its malleable iron, 15 per cent of its steel and 11 per cent of its cotton.

The presence of rabies in wild life, including skunks, complicates the efforts of veterinarians to control the disease.

LIGHTHOUSE GETS NEIGHBOR

Near the historic lighthouse at Cape Hatteras, N. C., towers the drill rig of Esso No. 1, where Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has begun a study of oil production on the Atlantic Coast. The drilling is entirely experimental and intended primarily to provide needed information to serve as a guide in further geological exploration.

hog and associated strains should be kept in production. Less profitable animals may be discarded and more productive strains introduced, it was added.

In the past, Kelley says, "brood sows have been selected on the basis of body conformation which does not give a true picture of the sow's ability to raise large litters of fast-growing pigs. Breeders have often been disappointed upon buying a high-priced sow which failed to produce."

Cards for nominating litters of pigs for the "social register" can be obtained by the producer from breed associations and the entry must be made within five days after farrowing time. If a litter so entered reaches the required 56-day weight of 320 pounds, it automatically qualifies as a "Production Registry" litter.

Ray Takes Over His Former Feed, Grocery Business

R. G. Ray, who returned to Franklin the latter part of December from 21 months' service in the navy as a ship service operator, has resumed operation of the feed and grocery business on Palmer street which he carried on in civilian life.

During his absence, the business was operated by Lawrence Liner under the firm name of Baldwin and Liner, but, with Mr. Ray back, it again will be known as the Ray Feed and Grocery company.

Also back from service in the armed forces is Woodrow Dowdie, who again will be associated with Mr. Ray in the business.

"Social Register" Planned For Hogs

Declaring that the only "real" means of determining the sow's productivity is in the keeping of a "production register", Jack Kelley, animal husbandryman of the State College Extension service, urges all state swine producers to keep a record of litters produced, weight gained by pigs and the number of pigs in each litter, indicating that efficient production of hogs will result.

Inasmuch as prolificacy, milking ability and rate of weight gain by pigs are all characteristics inherited by litters from the mother animal, Kelley says, a careful record of the sow's performance will tell the farmer and researchers whether that

Revised Version Of New Testament Off Press Feb. 11

CHICAGO.—The new Revised Standard Version of the New Testament, prepared by a group of noted Bible scholar under the authorization of the International Council of Religious Education, will go on sale in bookstores throughout the nation on February 11, it has been announced by Dr. Luther A. Weigle of Yale University divinity school, chairman of the revision committee.

In celebration of the completion of this work, after eight years of research, study, and revision, a colorful service is planned as part of the 24th annual meeting of the International Council in Columbus, Ohio.

The first authorized revision of the New Testament in more than 40 years, this is the shortest translation ever made of it, Dr. Weigle pointed out.

"The new translation retains all the beauty of the King James version," he stated, "while at the same time it uses the everyday language of Americans today. It is printed in large, clear type on substantial paper, with one chapter leading into another like a continued story. Completion of the new Revised Standard Version of the Old Testament is expected by 1950."

Army Surplus Station Wagons, Cars Exhausted

Passenger cars and station wagons no longer are available to wear veterans from army surplus commodities materials, Bob Sloan, veterans service officer here, has been notified. The explanation given is that there is an inadequate supply to fill the certificates already issued to veterans.

A total of 8,856 veterans and wives or widows of veterans of World War I and World War II are employed by the army as civilian workers in the seven southeastern states.
