SEASON PLANS FOR HIGHLANDS MUSEUM MADE

Summer Director, More Lectures, Nature Work Discussed

Museum plans for the coming season were discussed at an executive committee meeting of the Highlands Museum and Biological Laboratory Thursday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Sargent on East Main street.

These plans included the matter of a summer director for the museum, as well as ways in which the museum collections could be increased, more illustrated talks and lectures provided, and a wider program for children's nature study. Committee members present were Dr. Sargent, president; Mrs. Robert Hager, secretary; Miss Gertrude Harbison, treasurer; Miss Thelma Howell, assistant director of the Laboratory, and J. E. Potts.

Miss Howell, chairman of the Reinke Scientific Library committee, reported that the initial response to invitations to participate in this project have been gratifying, and that, with the additional aid promised by Highlands residents, a good beginning can be made towards a fitting memorial to Dr. Reinke.

At this meeting plans were also completed for a number of physical improvements to the laboratory, including work on the grounds, which is already under way, improvements in heating, and the painting of the building.

The coming season will mark the fifteenth year of operation of the laboratory, and a commemorative brochure showing its contribution to scientific investigation in the South will be sent to members of the corporation, colleges and universities, and scientific societies of the country. Research funds have been established at the laboratory by Miss Minnie D. Warren, Mrs. Margaret Cannon Howell, and Dr. Carl P. Haskins. Institutional memberships in the laboratory are carried by the University of North Carolina, Vanderbilt university, Duke university, and Wesleyan college.

There are 34 living founders of the corporation; 30 life members; 36 contributing members; 46 annual members; and 32 associate members.
