Meet Of Assemblies Of God Group Draws Folk Of Many States

The annual District Council of the Assemblies of God is being held in Franklin this year with approximately 100 ministers and delegates from North Carolina and visitors from California, South Carolina, Georgia, Montana, Texas.

The council will elect officers, ordain ministers, and outline the district programs for the year. The first Western North Carolina Campmeeting of the denomination will follow the District council session, and will continue until July 28, with the Rev. C. Stanley Cooke, of Charlotte, as campmeeting evangelist. The Rev. Fred Sorrells, of Cullasaja, pastor of the First Pentecostal Assembly there, is the host pastor and chairman of the campmeeting committee.

John Bulgin attended the meeting of the Asheville Presbytery, held at the Mountain Orphanage, Black Mountain, Tuesday.

Dr. W. F. Daggett, inventor of the locomotive air brake, and Mrs. Daggett, of Daytona Beach, Fla., are spending a few days at Cullasaja lodge.

Snake Venom

From W. N. C. Used By Army To Staunch Wounds

A large audience was fascinated this week at the Highlands Museum by the kodaslide lecture presented by J. C. Nicholls, Jr., on rattlesnake dens of Western North Carolina. With a series of colored slides, Mr. Nicholls showed the kind of places in which the rattlesnakes live, giving close-up shots of the reptiles and illustrating their migratory habits throughout the year.

For the past four years Mr. Nicholls has been exploring the Southern Appalachians for rattlesnakes, as an employee of the U. S. army, the venom which he procured being used by the medical corps as a help in staunching war wounds and to stop bleeding after operations.

Mr. Nicholls, a zoological collector whose home is in Andrews, has recently sent a large collection of Carolina snakes abroad to help replenish the London zoo.
