SARGENT AGAIN HEADS MUSEUM AT HIGHLANDS

Dr. Howell Designated Laboratory Director For Another Year

Dr. Ralph M. Sargent was re-elected president of the Highlands Museum and Biological Laboratory, and Dr. Thelma Howell again was designated resident director of the Laboratory, at the annual meeting of the corporation Sunday.

Dr. H. L. Blomquist was chosen vice-president, and Mrs. Robert Hager and Miss Gertrude Harbison were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Dr. W. C. Coker again was elected honorary president.

A plan designed to bring at least two outstanding Southern scientists to the Highland Laboratory next year, as well as a number of graduate students in the biological sciences, was adopted at the meeting on Sunday.

In announcing the accomplishments of the sixteenth year of the corporation, President Sargent pointed out that the Museum and Laboratory are performing all the functions for which they were organized: Providing an active museum of natural history; offering community entertainment and instruction in all phases of natural life; bringing together Southern biologists for consultation, work, and friendship; achieving research in the biological sciences.

The people of Highlands, it was pointed out, have shown by their efforts and money that they want this valuable work to be carried on, and are willing to give it their generous support. A flourishing and useful future for the institution was predicted by Dr. Sargent.

Clifford Pope, director of the Museum, in describing the live exhibits, revealed to the audience that two kinds of snakes had actually been born in the museum that very day: Some hatched from eggs, others given birth by their mother. He pointed out that reptiles and amphibians are the easiest way to interest children in outdoor life. Director Pope said that the series of events presented at the museum this summer under the direction of B. E. Fernow would do credit to any metropolitan museum in New York or Chicago.

Miss Howell, resident director of the Laboratory, announced that the Laboratory expects to publish soon a list of the summer flowering plants, of Highlands, compiled by the Misses Keever and Quarterman. It will contain more than 650 species.

Mrs. F. W. Altstaetter told the meeting that the finance committee had succeeded in raising the largest budget ever undertaken for the Museum and Laboratory. Special acknowledgment was made of the generosity of Mrs. Margaret Cannon Howell and Mrs. Paul Sanger.

New trustees elected are: B. E. Fernow, J. H. Harkey, and Mrs. Elliot Caziarc. Re-elected, after completing their four-year terms, were Wilton Cobb, Henry Wright, Dr. H. R. Totten, Mrs. F. W. Altstaetter, and Ralph H. Mowbray. Sidney Fransworth was elected chairman of the executive committee.
