Methodist Leaders Of This Area Hold Meet In Franklin

Dr. Walter B. West, district superintendent, speaking before a group of leaders of Methodist churches west of Waynesville, Tuesday afternoon at the Franklin Methodist church, outlined the Methodist church, "Crusade for Christ program placing special emphasis on stewardship as it applies to the individual member.

According to the Rev. W. Jackson Huneycutt, pastor of the Franklin Methodist church, Dr. West defined stewardship for the individual as "dedicating one's time and talents to the furthering of Christ's work and teachings."

Mrs. E. L. McKee of Sylva gave a talk on "The Place of the Christian College in Educational Progress to-day."

Macon Health Picture Drawn At Public Meet

Dr. Edgar Angel told those present that the present good health campaign has as one of its aims the forestalling of socialized medicine. He declared that the present is an auspicious time for the campaign.

Mr. Morgan emphasized the importance of making the program specific, and of applying it directly to Macon County problems and conditions.

Dr. Furman Angel brought pertinent points of the program by means of a number of questions he raised.

Mr. McGlamery pledged his full support to the program of the Good Health association.

ed with him. The chief topics, he said, were schools and roads, most of those who saw him urging better pay for teachers and appropriation of funds for farm-to-market roads.
 Others discussed with him old-age pensions and taxation, while a number of persons interested in hunting and fishing conferred with him about legislation on this subject.

A number of persons, he said, made a point of seeing him merely to wish him "good luck." Mr. McGlamery probably will be in Raleigh for about three months, since most observers agree that the legislative session will continue until the last of March or early in April.

The Macon County Baptist Pastors' conference will hold a called meeting Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church here. The meeting is for the purpose of re-
