FARM MISHAPS
KILL, INJURE
MANY EACH DAY

Suggestions Offered On How To Prevent Accidents

During the one hour you take for dinner each day, two farm residents will be accidentally killed and 205 injured, according to David S. Weaver, head of the Agricultural engineering department at State college.

In giving these figures, compiled by the National Safety council, Mr. Weaver advises the use of common sense in keeping down the accident toll this year.

In 1946, about 4,500 farm workers were killed and approximately 300,000 farm workers were injured. During the same year it is estimated that motor vehicle deaths to farm residents increased about 1,000 over 1945.

Unless extra precautions are taken this year, one out of every 10 farmers will suffer a disabling injury, either on or off the job. One out of every 350 farm families will suffer the pain and sorrow which accompany accidental deaths. Fifty-two farm people will die as a result of accidents every day, and a disabling injury will strike some farmer in the United States every minute.

How can farm accidents be prevented? Farm safety is particularly a family affair because, unlike the urban dweller, the family is so closely associated with the actual operations of farming. "Common sense tells us, for example, that children have no more right to be near or on a piece of operating farm machinery than city children have to be around a punch press or a moving locomotive; they have no more business driving a tractor than city children have behind the wheel of a 100 horse power passenger automobile", he pointed out.

Many accidents can be prevented if each family will learn what hazards menace their lives at home, at work and on the highway; what each member of the family can do to eliminate as many of these hazards as possible; and that carelessness on the part of any member of the family perils the lives and happiness of all.

Have Only Till Aug. 1
To Pick Up Insurance

Veterans of World War 2 who wish to reinstate lapsed G. I. insurance in most cases have only until August 1 to do so, without physical examination, it was pointed out this week by Bill Bryson, county veterans service officer.

National Service Life Insurance proceeds are exempt from creditors' claims against the insured or the beneficiary.

A new building was recently dedicated in Pittsboro to be used by Negro agricultural workers of Chatham county.

Perverse old fellow this Mr. Sol. He's the most salubrious, benevolent soul out of this world but he'll turn right around and fry you to a crisp—if you DON'T watch out! So heed a word of caution and COAX him—don't force him—into tanning you to a gorgeous, golden bronze. Do your basking in graduated doses, a few minutes at first, then a little more each time. Help to get an even tan—but definitely!—by coating your skin liberally with Gypsy Tan Lotion. This greaseless, quick-drying solution provides a protective film which filters out much of the sun's injurious rays. You will tan safely, easily, painlessly if you avoid overexposure. Protein

Content Of Hay Major Consideration

Protein is the most valuable constituent in hay, and usually the most expensive to get, according to Dr. R. L. Lovvorn, professor of agronomy at State college. When making hay, especially legume hay, this should always be kept in mind.

The best time to cut hay is when the protein content is on the rise, the specialist said, adding that alfalfa gives the most in hay value if cut when approximately one-fourth in bloom. The first crop in the budstage, has about 23 per cent protein, but about 20 per cent when one-tenth in bloom, and only 17 per cent when in full bloom. The percentage of protein increases until one-tenth in bloom and then decreases until full bloom.

Where mixed hay crops are grown, especially those containing considerable clover or alfalfa, they should be cut during the most favorable time for whatever legume predominates. If the hay mixture contains a low percentage of legume, it is best to cut the crop at about the usual time for cutting the timothy or other grasses, he said.
