For Precious Stones N. Y. Man's Hobby

Sherman E. McMillan, New York book dealer, has been spending the past two months in Macon County pursuing an interesting and, he hopes, profitable hobby.

Mr. McMillan's hobby is the finding of precious stones, particularly rubbites.

Having heard and read a great deal of the mineral wealth of Western North Carolina and particularly the corundum region, Mr. McMillan located in Franklin and procured options on properties owned by Weaver Gibson and Will Holbrooks on which abandoned mines were located.

In the past two months, he says that he has found stones of undetermined value which may when cut, prove to be worth large sums of money.

Mr. McMillan plans to leave for New York soon, where he will have samples of his finding assayed as to their true worth. If the reports are favorable, he will return and open the mines on a larger scale.

Rowan County is now one of the state's leading growers of purebred Hampshire hogs.

'University Of The Sea' To Open Soon At Morehead City

MOREHEAD CITY—First term of "The University of the Sea" will open here at the state-owned former naval section base September 23.

Dr. E. W. Ruggles, director, college extension division, North Carolina State college, in Raleigh, will direct the new school, to be known as Morehead City Technical Institute.

The first unit of the "University of the Sea," will offer a one-year course for marine technicians. In addition to the usual curriculum in mathematics, chemistry, and engineering drawing, there will be practical courses in naval architecture and elementary design, internal combustion and Diesel engines, shop practices, electrical engineering and other courses.
